STATE SENATE PASSES TAX CUT

Ike Will Meet Soviets Half Way For Peace

Doubts Sincerity Of USSR; Doesn't Want Tax Cut Yet

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — President Eisenhower raised a question today about the sincerity of Soviet peace talk. No overtures have reached him through proper channels, he said.

Kremlin expressions of an intention to seek peaceful settlement of cold war issues, now that the Russian regime has changed, the President said, are just as welcome as they are sincere. To that comment at the opening of his fourth presidential news conference, Eisenhower quickly added that there is a direct relationship between our attitude and the Soviet sincerity.

Will Be Met Half Way

The Russians will never be met less than half way, Eisenhower said, because this administration's purpose will always be to seek peace by every honorable and decent means. We will do anything that will be promising of results in that direction, he said.

The President saw no new threat of war in recent Soviet attacks on Allied planes. Serious as they are, he said, there seems to be no pattern to them, no difference of intention, no departure from the attitude of the past.

Later on, Eisenhower's special assistant on cold war planning, C. D. Jackson, told White House newsmen he certainly questions the sincerity of Russian peace talks.

As for taking steps in the United Nations to brand Russia a supporter of aggression in Korea, as proposed by Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.), President Eisenhower said he never would tolerate any infringement on American rights but neither would he want to do anything unnecessarily provocative at this moment.

Deprecated Church Probe

The President deprecated any investigation of communism in churches, spoke out again in favor of bringing a balanced budget into view before taxes are cut, and defended his choice of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Moscow.

Eisenhower said he isn't opposed to some revisions and reforms in the tax laws but doesn't want any reduction in revenue before a balanced budget is in sight.

What about the proposal of Rep. Reed (R-NY) to cut individual income taxes at the end of June? Eisenhower said he wants the revenue. And he said if the excess profits tax on corporations is allowed to die June 30, he wants a substitute.

Eisenhower said oh no, he didn't think it would be four years before taxes could be lowered, but he didn't predict when the budget could be balanced. The thing he is trying to prevent, he said, is more cheapening of money in people's pockets.

Criticized By McCarthy

The Bohlen nomination criticized by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and some other senators but approved unanimously by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday, was described by Eisenhower as very fine. Even if it was wrong, he said, it was based strictly on merit.

On a variety of other subjects, the President said:

Military power — No amount of military force can give real security. He doesn't think we can

Zorin Charges Russia Slandered

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 19 (AP)—Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin charged today that the United States has slandered Russia by asking for action in the U. N. disarmament debate to demonstrate that the Kremlin really wants peace.

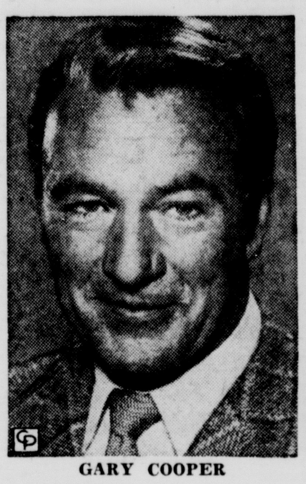

He told the U. N.'s 60-nation Political Committee that Russia had demonstrated her desire for peace repeatedly in the seven-year-old talks on disarmament and atomic control and would continue to do so.

For this reason, he said, the questions U. S. Delegate Ernest A. Gross asked yesterday about Russia's intentions were artificial.

"The preservation of peace and the struggle against a new war has been and is the main concern of the Soviet Union," Zorin said.

His answer, made within 24 hours after Gross challenged the Russians to show their sincerity, convinced Western delegates that there was no break in the offing in the deadlock on disarmament despite the change in the U. S. and USSR leaders.

Oscar Awards Winners

The Academy statuette for the best performance by an actress in a starring role went to Shirley Booth for her portrayal in "Come Back, Little Sheba."

Anthony Quinn won the Oscar for the best performance by an actor in a supporting role for his work in "Viva Zapata."

Quinn, a long-time Hollywood top actor, won his first Oscar for his portrayal of a greedy bandit brother of the legendary Zapata — a Mexican Robin Hood.

His wife accepted for Quinn, who is in Mexico.

Gloria Grahame won the best supporting actress accolade for her role as the Southern belle in "The Bad And The Beautiful."

John Ford, famed film director, tonight won new honors by getting an Oscar for his direction of "The Quiet Man."

23 Sailors Emerge Healthy But Pale From Submarine Submerged For Two Months

NEW LONDON, Conn., March 19 — (INS) — Twenty-three sailors, volunteers in an atomic age experiment, emerged pale but healthy today from the submarine in which they had been sealed, under submerged conditions, for two months.

The officer and 22 men aboard the submarine Haddock had done their part to prove that a new age in undersea warfare has dawned. The atomic submarine, now under construction at New London, reportedly will be able to remain submerged indefinitely. The problem the navy had to solve was: can the crew?

The sole officer aboard the Haddock, Lt. Comdr. Ralph R. Faucett of Perrysville, Ind., answered the question. He told newsmen:

"It is now feasible to remain submerged for two months or longer periods."

Glad It's Over

Faucett and his crew were "glad it's over" when they climbed through the hatch of the Haddock. Surprisingly, the two months "entombment" was very profitable for several of the seamen. Six of them completed their high school courses, another six gained first year college credits by passing special naval examinations.

Two others profited in a different way—at card games. When asked "who won all the money?" the sailors pointed to bearded William J. Copes, 20, of Maple Falls, Mich. and Jack I. Smith, 19, of Springfield, Ill. Smith will put his winnings to good use because he has a bride of five months.

For a while, Faucett said, everyone had trouble figuring out when it was night and when day. That problem was solved, he said, by following a set duty routine.

Had Movies, TV

To keep the "operation hideout" volunteers occupied, the sailors, most of them under 21, had movies, magazines, television, radio and, of course, the card games.

Faucett, a medical officer, said "the closest thing to a serious illness during the two-month period was an attack of sub-acute appendicitis." The stricken sailor recovered quickly, however, and stayed aboard.

The men were light-hearted and joked off the importance of the experiment. They said the big thing they were looking forward to was a beer party set to begin as soon as newsmen and photographers cleared out of the service club. They will not receive leaves from the base until medical tests show that the experiment did not harm their health.

More Crops Planned For Spring Planting

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Farmers plan to plant even more land to spring crops than was planted last year when production was the second largest of record.

The Agriculture Department, in a planting survey report, said today that plantings are expected to total about 271 million acres compared with 266,700,000 last year.

Plane Crashes Kill 33 Men

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 19 (AP)—The loss of a U. S. Air Force B29 bomber off Western Newfoundland was announced today even as rescuers searched for any survivors of an RB36, a bigger American plane which crashed on the east coast less than 300 miles away.

Both went down in murky weather yesterday, carrying a possible total of 33 men to death. Both were on training flights.

Wreckage of the B29 Superfortress, which was based at Harmon Field, was found floating in St. George's Bay with no sign that any of its 10 crewmen had survived.

The Air Force did not identify the 10 immediately.

Twenty-three men, including Brig. Gen. Richard E. Ellsworth, 42, were aboard the RB36 which smashed into a hilltop in the rugged, wooded country about 50 miles northwest of St. John's on a flight back from the Azores to its base at Rapid City, S. D.

Twelve bodies have been found near the wreckage of the plane, the reconnaissance version of the 10-engine B36 atom bomber. Search parties sought to determine definitely the fate of the other 11.

Seeks To Revoke Ban On Color TV

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Chairman Wolverton (R-NJ) of the House Interstate Commerce Committee announced today he has asked the National Production Authority to revoke its ban on the manufacture of color television sets.

At the same time he made public a list of TV industry officials he is calling as witnesses at hearings starting next Tuesday to determine if color TV has been "delayed deliberately."

Germany Gets Approval For Rearmament

Two Treaties Passed By Wide Margins In Victory For Adenauer

BONN, Germany, March 19 (AP)—The West German Bundestag (lower house) gave final approval by wide margins tonight to the twin treaties under which West Germany is to rearm as a partner of other free European nations for defense against Communist aggression.

It was a victory for the views of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Warned by Adenauer that Stalin's death increased the danger of a new world war, the House approved the European Army Treaty 224-165 and the Allied-Bonn Peace Contract 226-164.

Supply Half Million Troops

Under the European Army Treaty, West Germany is to supply a half million troops to a unified European command of two million that would take in also the troops of France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. In this third and deciding vote, the Bundestag became the first legislative chamber in Europe to ratify the treaty.

The peace contract is the instrument through which the Big Three Western Powers — the United States, Britain and France — renounce most of the rights they have held under the postwar occupation and grant West Germany near sovereignty.

Upper House Must Act

The Bundesrat (upper house) still must vote on the pacts and then a court battle looms over the constitutionality of rearming.

But the Bundestag is the popularly-elected house and Adenauer has proclaimed that its vote would be "the political decision on the German people's acceptance of European unity." He won by a sweeping majority, though his supporters fell short of the two-thirds which the anti-rearmament Socialists contend is necessary to give the army treaty constitutional legality.

Marines Repulse Commie Attacks

SEOUL, Friday, March 20 (AP)—U. S. Marines smashed two, 175-man Chinese attacks near Panmunjom with heavy losses Thursday, then seared the Reds with a flame thrower onslaught that left no living thing on an outpost hill.

The Marines mowed down an estimated 164 Chinese who uncorked two attacks near Bunker Hill, five miles northeast of the armistice town of Panmunjom, before going over to the attack themselves.

The three savage actions were the heaviest across the 155-mile battlefront. Rain and fog shrouded the front.

The Western Front fighting raged from near midnight until after dawn.

Chinese and Allied artillery shells criss-crossed overhead in a deadly high-explosive duel.

The Chinese company hitting to the southwest was almost wiped out. Moans of the wounded could be heard from the barbed wire ringing the outpost, an officer at the front reported.

The second Chinese attack moved up slopes laced with barbed wire to within hand-grenade range but was blasted back by machine guns and rifles.

A-Bomb Destruction

Many Persons Die As Quake Sweeps Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 19 (AP) —From 500 to 1,000 persons were reported today to have perished in a violent earthquake and fires which laid waste a rich farming and mining region northwest of Balikesir in Western Turkey.

The Interior Ministry announced tonight that 300 were listed dead and more bodies were being dragged from fire-blackened ruins in the village of Yenice alone.

With official reports still lacking from Cihan, another hard hit village, two Istanbul newspapers, Hergun and Yeni Gazette, put the death toll at 1,000. Earlier, Red Crescent, the Turkish Red Cross, had estimated the dead at 500 on the basis of incomplete and unconfirmed reports.

Police at Balikesir, 110 miles southwest of Istanbul, the provincial capital of the area, listed 38 confirmed dead at two other towns, Gonen and Manyas.

The shock at 9:07 p.m. Wednesday 2:07 p. m., (EST), said by the newspapers to have been the strongest felt in Istanbul in 80 years, caused buildings here to sway and damaged the city's main water line. But no other damage was reported. The pipeline break left a large section of Istanbul without water.

President Celal Bayar and several leading government officials, ordered emergency relief to the stricken area and set out by motor cars from Ankara for a personal visit to the scene. Ankara is 250 miles east of Balikesir.

Throughout the quake area of about 10,000 square miles persons fled from buildings and homes when the tremors were felt, and spent the night in open fields.

Doctors and nurses, with tents and hospital beds were sent from Ankara by military and chartered planes.

Educated Dogs Won't Need Leash Ordinance Says

WEST CALDWELL, N.J., March 19 (AP) — Educated dogs will get the privilege of going without leashes when accompanied by their masters, if a proposed ordinance is adopted here.

The borough took cognizance of obedience schools for canines in the measure last night.

It says any dog having taken an obedience training course, and having received a certificate of completion, may be permitted to accompany its master without being tied.

Ignorant dogs will have to be held on leashes not more than 8-feet long.

Actress Is Arrested On Morals Charge

HOLLYWOOD, March 19 (AP) — Dorothy Comingore, 40, a successful stage and film actress 10 years ago, was arrested on a prostitution charge today.

She pleaded innocent and asked for a jury trial.

Judge Charles J. Griffin in Beverly Hills Municipal Court fixed bail at $250 and set the trial for April 10.

Sheriff's officers William Baker and Peter Escanilla said they made the arrest in a parked car on a dark Hollywood street after they had picked her up in a bar.

Miss Comingore starred opposite Orson Welles in "Citizen Kane" 13 years ago. Her last picture was "The Hairy Ape" in 1944.

Assigned To Far East

WASHINGTON, March 19 (INS) — The Army announced today that Maj. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, commander of the First Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Texas, has been assigned to the Far East.

Reed Foregoes Plans To Fight For Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Rep. Reed (R-NY) today abandoned his fight to force early House action on his income tax cutting bill with a blast at leaders of his own party for "gaining office under false pretenses."

That was taken generally to include President Eisenhower, who a few hours earlier restated his contention that a balanced budget must be in sight before taxes can be cut.

Reed, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, unloosed a long, blistering attack after Eisenhower, at a news conference, put his foot down against Reed's bill to cut personal income tax rates 10 per cent annually starting June 30.

Reed had announced plans to go over the heads of House leaders and resort to a rarely used special privilege tactic to force his bill to the House floor before April 15.

But that would leave the bill open to amendments. And Reed said today a survey of members has shown so many amendments would be adopted that his bill would be destroyed.

So he reversed his field, dropped plans to force action, but said he will renew pressure on House leaders to bring the bill to a vote under procedure barring floor amendments.

Majority Leader Halleck (R-Ind) said there has been "no relaxation" of the stand by House leaders — in line with Eisenhower's —that spending must be cut and a balanced budget must be in sight before tax reduction is considered.

Halleck said there has been "no determination" when leaders will permit the Reed bill to come to a vote under the no - amendments rule. Previously, May 1 to 15 had been mentioned as a likely time, but there were signs of even more delay.

Reed, talking to reporters off the House floor, did not mention Eisenhower by name, but he said "every candidate for federal office promised to give the people if elected, a tax reduction."

Actress Irene Bordoni Succumbs At 55

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP) — French-born Irene Bordoni, actress and singer, died today. She was 55.

Miss Bordoni made her first stage appearance in France when she was 13. Just two months ago she played in "Maggie," a musical, on its road trials, but dropped out before the show came to New York.

She had played the role of "Bloody Mary" in the touring company of the hit musical "South Pacific" for a year and a half. She retired from that show last September.

Vote Of 18-10 Follows Strict Party Lines

Plan Has Automatic Reduction In Real Estate, Income Tax

ANNAPOLIS, March 19 (AP)—The Maryland Senate today approved and sent to the House the much-debated automatic tax reduction plan. The vote followed strict party lines, with 18 Democratis supporting it and 10 Republicans opposing it.

After more than a month of hot debate and behind-the-scenes maneuvering, the measure was voted on without a word of debate.

Gives Automatic Cut

The plan would grant automatic reduction in real estate and income taxes from surplus state funds.

Gov. McKeldin has made no secret of his objection to the plan. He said the fiscal condition of the state was too unbalanced to adopt a tax reduction plan similar to that of Virginia, the model for the Maryland bill sponsored by the economy bloc of Senate Democrats.

McKeldin added he would not veto the bill if the House approves it, but he made it plain he would hold the Democrats responsible for any necessary increases in taxes to make up for the loss of state funds turned back to the taxpayers under the plan.

The House sent on its way to the governor a bill which would force him to find two million dollars more for his budget next year. It would require all revenues from motor vehicles to be spent on highways. The governor now is using two million of those funds to pay for the state police.

No Debate On Bills

Also shipped to the executive was a bill requiring an increased contribution by oyster shucking houses to the state's propagation program. They will give to the state 50 per cent of their shells, a jump from 20 per cent. The state puts the shells back on public beds for baby oysters to grow upon.

There was no debate on either of the measures which had possibilities of controversy. Only two votes were cast among the delegates against the increased shell contribution.

The delegates were in a different mood on bills aimed at banning throwaway beer bottles and giving Montgomery County a choice of non-partisan elections. They defeated both.

Throwaways were made the target by proposing a three-cent deposit on all bottles used for beer. It was rejected, 66-45.

Non-partisan elections in charter counties were disapproved, 60-53. All Republicans and 18 Democrats were on the supporting side.

The leaders of both parties in the House asserted they were not making a political issue.

The Senate adopted a committee's favorable report on a bill to lower the assessment on inventory from 100 to 60 per cent in 14 counties. In effect, it would alter the amount of money received from the state by the various counties. Some counties would get more state aid, while others would receive less.

To Approve Appointments

The Senate also moved toward making it mandatory for it to approve all appointments to the county boards of education.

The bill was one result of a mix-up of school funds by the Calvert County Board of Education, which

Alied Planes Avoid Red Zone

WIESBADEN, Germany, March 19 (AP) — Most American military planes in Germany are under orders to keep well away from the Iron Curtain, the U. S. Air Force disclosed today.

All the planes, it announced, are barred from flying within 30 miles of the frontiers of Communist Czechoslovakia, East Germany and the Soviet zone of Austria except on border defense missions or authorized flights in Soviet-recognized corridors.

The announcement clarified confusion over operational policy that became evident after two Czechoslovak MIG15s shot down a U. S. F84 Thunderjet 15 miles inside the West German frontier March 10.

"These regulations have been in effect well over a year," the Air Force said, but were "reaffirmed today."

When the Air Force first reported the Thunderjet shot down, it said it and a sister plane had been on a routine patrol.

Later it disclosed that both Thunderjets were sent up to investigate two foreign planes traced on American radar screens near the Czech frontier.

Matter Of Fact

Eisenhower May Buy Air Defense Without Civil Defense

BY JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

The air defense program costing $16 to $20 billion, that is currently being considered by the President and the National Security Council has got to be regarded, unhappily, as only a beginning. The administration has sought to muffle the issue. But it can now be revealed on highest authority that the National Security Council is also considering an additional civil defense program that may cost another $6 to $7 billion.

The rationale of both the air defense and civil defense programs is solemn warning, already reported here, that this country will lie naked and open to devastating Soviet air-atomic attack within two years' time.

The warning emanates from a large group of the most highly qualified American scientists, who have worked on Project Lincoln and its offshoot, the Summer Study Group. These research groups, sponsored by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology on Air Force contract, elaborated the air defense program to ward off the air-atomic danger of which they warned. But no system of air warning and interception can achieve a 100 per cent kill of attacking aircraft, and this is not claimed for the Project Lincoln program.

There is a difference between complete air defense and effective air defense. Even when the attackers carry atomic bombs, a high kill rate of say 70 to 80 per cent is considered to provide an effective air defense. Enough of the attackers will be knocked down to make sure that this country will be neither devastated nor seriously crippled, and so can carry on the war. This, in itself, will be the best possible insurance against an attack being attempted. If attempted nonetheless, the attack will chiefly result in the exhaustion of the enemy's vital atomic stockpile and the crippling of his own striking force.

But nothing but a complete air defense with a 100 per cent kill rate will fully guard our most vital defense industries — the atomic production plants. More importantly, an air defense that is merely effective, with a kill rate of 70 to 80 per cent, will still leave huge urban population in considerable danger. Hence the need for the additional civil defense program, which can bring up the global total of spending for insurance against air-atomic attack to a fantastic $22 to $27 billion.

The civil defense problem was carefully studied by another major government research group, Project East River, which coordinated its work with that of Project Lincoln. Presumably the civil defense program now before the Security Council is based on Project East River's findings, scaled down to take account of Project Lincoln's promise of effective but not complete air defense. It is understood that providing deep shelters for the urban population and special

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 19 (AP)—The loss of a U. S. Air Force B29 bomber off Western Newfoundland was announced today even as rescuers searched for any survivors of an RB36, a bigger American plane which crashed on the east coast less than 300 miles away.

Both went down in murky weather yesterday, carrying a possible total of 33 men to death. Both were on training flights.

Wreckage of the B29 Superfortress, which was based at Harmon Field, was found floating in St. George's Bay with no sign that any of its 10 crewmen had survived.

The Air Force did not identify the 10 immediately.

Twenty-three men, including Brig. Gen. Richard E. Ellsworth, 42, were aboard the RB36 which smashed into a hilltop in the rugged, wooded country about 50 miles northwest of St. John's on a flight back from the Azores to its base at Rapid City, S. D.

Twelve bodies have been found near the wreckage of the plane, the reconnaissance version of the 10-engine B36 atom bomber. Search parties sought to determine definitely the fate of the other 11.

Seeks To Revoke Ban On Color TV

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Chairman Wolverton (R-NJ) of the House Interstate Commerce Committee announced today he has asked the National Production Authority to revoke its ban on the manufacture of color television sets.

At the same time he made public a list of TV industry officials he is calling as witnesses at hearings starting next Tuesday to determine if color TV has been "delayed deliberately."

Marines Repulse Commie Attacks

SEOUL, Friday, March 20 (AP)—U. S. Marines smashed two, 175-man Chinese attacks near Panmunjom with heavy losses Thursday, then seared the Reds with a flame thrower onslaught that left no living thing on an outpost hill.

The Marines mowed down an estimated 164 Chinese who uncorked two attacks near Bunker Hill, five miles northeast of the armistice town of Panmunjom, before going over to the attack themselves.

The three savage actions were the heaviest across the 155-mile battlefront. Rain and fog shrouded the front.

Chinese and Allied artillery shells criss-crossed overhead in a deadly high-explosive duel.

The Chinese company hitting to the southwest was almost wiped out. Moans of the wounded could be heard from the barbed wire ringing the outpost, an officer at the front reported.

The second Chinese attack moved up slopes laced with barbed wire to within hand-grenade range but was blasted back by machine guns and rifles.

A-Bomb Destruction

Many Persons Die As Quake Sweeps Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 19 (AP)—From 500 to 1,000 persons were reported today to have perished in a violent earthquake and fires which laid waste a rich farming and mining region northwest of Balikesir in Western Turkey.

The Interior Ministry announced tonight that 300 were listed dead and more bodies were being dragged from fire-blackened ruins in the village of Yenice alone.

With official reports still lacking from Cihan, another hard hit village, two Istanbul newspapers, Hergun and Yeni Gazette, put the death toll at 1,000. Earlier, Red Crescent, the Turkish Red Cross, had estimated the dead at 500 on the basis of incomplete and unconfirmed reports.

Police at Balikesir, 110 miles southwest of Istanbul, the provincial capital of the area, listed 38 confirmed dead at two other towns, Gonen and Manyas.

The shock at 9:07 p.m. Wednesday 2:07 p. m., (EST), said by the newspapers to have been the strongest felt in Istanbul in 80 years, caused buildings here to sway and damaged the city's main water line. But no other damage was reported. The pipeline break left a large section of Istanbul without water.

President Celal Bayar and several leading government officials, ordered emergency relief to the stricken area and set out by motor cars from Ankara for a personal visit to the scene. Ankara is 250 miles east of Balikesir.

Throughout the quake area of about 10,000 square miles persons fled from buildings and homes when the tremors were felt, and spent the night in open fields.

Doctors and nurses, with tents and hospital beds were sent from Ankara by military and chartered planes.

Educated Dogs Won't Need Leash Ordinance Says

WEST CALDWELL, N.J., March 19 (AP) — Educated dogs will get the privilege of going without leashes when accompanied by their masters, if a proposed ordinance is adopted here.

The borough took cognizance of obedience schools for canines in the measure last night.

It says any dog having taken an obedience training course, and having received a certificate of completion, may be permitted to accompany its master without being tied.

Ignorant dogs will have to be held on leashes not more than 8-feet long.

Actress Is Arrested On Morals Charge

HOLLYWOOD, March 19 (AP) — Dorothy Comingore, 40, a successful stage and film actress 10 years ago, was arrested on a prostitution charge today.

She pleaded innocent and asked for a jury trial.

Judge Charles J. Griffin in Beverly Hills Municipal Court fixed bail at $250 and set the trial for April 10.

Sheriff's officers William Baker and Peter Escanilla said they made the arrest in a parked car on a dark Hollywood street after they had picked her up in a bar.

Miss Comingore starred opposite Orson Welles in "Citizen Kane" 13 years ago. Her last picture was "The Hairy Ape" in 1944.

Assigned To Far East

WASHINGTON, March 19 (INS) — The Army announced today that Maj. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, commander of the First Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Texas, has been assigned to the Far East.

Reed Foregoes Plans To Fight For Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Rep. Reed (R-NY) today abandoned his fight to force early House action on his income tax cutting bill with a blast at leaders of his own party for "gaining office under false pretenses."

That was taken generally to include President Eisenhower, who a few hours earlier restated his contention that a balanced budget must be in sight before taxes can be cut.

Reed, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, unloosed a long, blistering attack after Eisenhower, at a news conference, put his foot down against Reed's bill to cut personal income tax rates 10 per cent annually starting June 30.

Reed had announced plans to go over the heads of House leaders and resort to a rarely used special privilege tactic to force his bill to the House floor before April 15.

But that would leave the bill open to amendments. And Reed said today a survey of members has shown so many amendments would be adopted that his bill would be destroyed.

So he reversed his field, dropped plans to force action, but said he will renew pressure on House leaders to bring the bill to a vote under procedure barring floor amendments.

Majority Leader Halleck (R-Ind) said there has been "no relaxation" of the stand by House leaders — in line with Eisenhower's —that spending must be cut and a balanced budget must be in sight before tax reduction is considered.

Halleck said there has been "no determination" when leaders will permit the Reed bill to come to a vote under the no-amendments rule. Previously, May 1 to 15 had been mentioned as a likely time, but there were signs of even more delay.

Reed, talking to reporters off the House floor, did not mention Eisenhower by name, but he said "every candidate for federal office promised to give the people if elected, a tax reduction."

Actress Irene Bordoni Succumbs At 55

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP) — French-born Irene Bordoni, actress and singer, died today. She was 55.

Miss Bordoni made her first stage appearance in France when she was 13. Just two months ago she played in "Maggie," a musical, on its road trials, but dropped out before the show came to New York.

She had played the role of "Bloody Mary" in the touring company of the hit musical "South Pacific" for a year and a half. She retired from that show last September.

Vote Of 18-10 Follows Strict Party Lines

Plan Has Automatic Reduction In Real Estate, Income Tax

ANNAPOLIS, March 19 (AP)—The Maryland Senate today approved and sent to the House the much-debated automatic tax reduction plan. The vote followed strict party lines, with 18 Democratis supporting it and 10 Republicans opposing it.

After more than a month of hot debate and behind-the-scenes maneuvering, the measure was voted on without a word of debate.

Gives Automatic Cut

The plan would grant automatic reduction in real estate and income taxes from surplus state funds.

Gov. McKeldin has made no secret of his objection to the plan. He said the fiscal condition of the state was too unbalanced to adopt a tax reduction plan similar to that of Virginia, the model for the Maryland bill sponsored by the economy bloc of Senate Democrats.

McKeldin added he would not veto the bill if the House approves it, but he made it plain he would hold the Democrats responsible for any necessary increases in taxes to make up for the loss of state funds turned back to the taxpayers under the plan.

The House sent on its way to the governor a bill which would force him to find two million dollars more for his budget next year. It would require all revenues from motor vehicles to be spent on highways. The governor now is using two million of those funds to pay for the state police.

No Debate On Bills

Also shipped to the executive was a bill requiring an increased contribution by oyster shucking houses to the state's propagation program. They will give to the state 50 per cent of their shells, a jump from 20 per cent. The state puts the shells back on public beds for baby oysters to grow upon.

There was no debate on either of the measures which had possibilities of controversy. Only two votes were cast among the delegates against the increased shell contribution.

The delegates were in a different mood on bills aimed at banning throwaway beer bottles and giving Montgomery County a choice of non-partisan elections. They defeated both.

Throwaways were made the target by proposing a three-cent deposit on all bottles used for beer. It was rejected, 66-45.

Non-partisan elections in charter counties were disapproved, 60-53. All Republicans and 18 Democrats were on the supporting side.

The leaders of both parties in the House asserted they were not making a political issue.

The Senate adopted a committee's favorable report on a bill to lower the assessment on inventory from 100 to 60 per cent in 14 counties. In effect, it would alter the amount of money received from the state by the various counties. Some counties would get more state aid, while others would receive less.

To Approve Appointments

The Senate also moved toward making it mandatory for it to approve all appointments to the county boards of education.

The bill was one result of a mix-up of school funds by the Calvert County Board of Education, which

Alied Planes Avoid Red Zone

WIESBADEN, Germany, March 19 (AP) — Most American military planes in Germany are under orders to keep well away from the Iron Curtain, the U. S. Air Force disclosed today.

All the planes, it announced, are barred from flying within 30 miles of the frontiers of Communist Czechoslovakia, East Germany and the Soviet zone of Austria except on border defense missions or authorized flights in Soviet-recognized corridors.

The announcement clarified confusion over operational policy that became evident after two Czechoslovak MIG15s shot down a U. S. F84 Thunderjet 15 miles inside the West German frontier March 10.

"These regulations have been in effect well over a year," the Air Force said, but were "reaffirmed today."

When the Air Force first reported the Thunderjet shot down, it said it and a sister plane had been on a routine patrol.

Later it disclosed that both Thunderjets were sent up to investigate two foreign planes traced on American radar screens near the Czech frontier.

Matter Of Fact

BY JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

The air defense program costing $16 to $20 billion, that is currently being considered by the President and the National Security Council has got to be regarded, unhappily, as only a beginning. The administration has sought to muffle the issue. But it can now be revealed on highest authority that the National Security Council is also considering an additional civil defense program that may cost another $6 to $7 billion.

The rationale of both the air defense and civil defense programs is solemn warning, already reported here, that this country will lie naked and open to devastating Soviet air-atomic attack within two years' time.

The warning emanates from a large group of the most highly qualified American scientists, who have worked on Project Lincoln and its offshoot, the Summer Study Group. These research groups, sponsored by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology on Air Force contract, elaborated the air defense program to ward off the air-atomic danger of which they warned. But no system of air warning and interception can achieve a 100 per cent kill of attacking aircraft, and this is not claimed for the Project Lincoln program.

There is a difference between complete air defense and effective air defense. Even when the attackers carry atomic bombs, a high kill rate of say 70 to 80 per cent is considered to provide an effective air defense. Enough of the attackers will be knocked down to make sure that this country will be neither devastated nor seriously crippled, and so can carry on the war. This, in itself, will be the best possible insurance against an attack being attempted. If attempted nonetheless, the attack will chiefly result in the exhaustion of the enemy's vital atomic stockpile and the crippling of his own striking force.

But nothing but a complete air defense with a 100 per cent kill rate will fully guard our most vital defense industries — the atomic production plants. More importantly, an air defense that is merely effective, with a kill rate of 70 to 80 per cent, will still leave huge urban population in considerable danger. Hence the need for the additional civil defense program, which can bring up the global total of spending for insurance against air-atomic attack to a fantastic $22 to $27 billion.

The civil defense problem was carefully studied by another major government research group, Project East River, which coordinated its work with that of Project Lincoln. Presumably the civil defense program now before the Security Council is based on Project East River's findings, scaled down to take account of Project Lincoln's promise of effective but not complete air defense. It is understood that providing deep shelters for the urban population and special

Klement Gottwald Is Buried As Czechs Plead For Unity

VIENNA, Austria, March 19 (AP)—Czechoslovakia buried President Gottwald, her Communist dictator, in the National World War I Liberation Monument on Vitkov Hill in Prague today. His Red aides used the funeral rites as an occasion to call for national unity.

The 56-year-old former carpenter, one of the Kremlin's most trusted tools, died in the Czech capital Saturday, only five days after he attended the funeral of Prime Minister Stalin, his old friend and protector, in Moscow's Red Square.

By official account, Gottwald was a victim of pneumonia and pleurisy. It has not been announced who will succeed him, but Premier Antonin Zapotocky, 68, is the most widely known among possible candidates.

The Prague radio announced details of the funeral:

The body, which had been lying in state for three days in the Spanish Hall of ancient Hradcany Castle, was carried through the streets of Prague on a gun carriage to his final resting place as church bells tolled.

The procession—including Gottwald's wife and daughter, all Czechoslovak Cabinet members and such visitors as Soviet Deputy Prime Minister Nikolai Bulganin and Red China's Premier Chou En-lai—halted twice on Gottwald's last way.

One stop was to let the late President's units of the Czechoslovak armed forces pass by. The second was on Prague's Wenceslaus Square, where 10,000 workers from all parts of the country were assembled to pay homage to the man who led Czechoslovakia into the Kremlin camp.

Waiting patiently in the sunshine, the crowd listened first to a repeat broadcast of an address Deputy Premier Viliam Siroky had made at Gottwald's bier in Hradcany Castle.

They were told "to increase discipline and will of defense," not to waste the heritage left them by Gottwald and to bear in mind "that anyone attempting to destroy the unity of the country or the Communist party would be wiped out mercilessly."

FBI Picks Up Armed Robber

DUSON, La., March 19 (INS)—Robert Benton Mathus, 25, one of the FBI's "10 most wanted fugitives," was arrested today by an FBI agent and local authorities at Duson, La.

Mathus, who was placed on the 10 most wanted list on March 16, was arrested after a private citizen saw him listed on a flyer issued by the FBI and informed Duson police.

He was captured about 8:30 a. m. and, although armed with a revolver offered no resistance.

G. E. Gotchall, acting agent in charge of the FBI office in New Orleans, said Mathus and two other armed men held up and pistol whipped a 74-year-old man and his aged sister near Alma, Ga., in 1951. They escaped in an automobile after taking more than $1,000 in cash.

Mathus and George Mantos escaped when the car was intercepted at Waycross, Ga. The third man was arrested when the vehicle overturned.

Mantos is still at large.

Reorganization Plan May Go Before Congress Soon

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—A new reorganization plan, giving the country for the first time a permanent agency for industrial and economic mobilization, is close to completion at the White House.

Officials said today President Eisenhower may send it to Congress next week, following up his program for streamlining the Agriculture Department.

The plan calls for merger of the Office of Defense Mobilization, until now viewed as a short-lived emergency agency, with the National Security Resources Board and possibly some other offices.

The strengthened ODM would be set up to manage the expansion of industrial capacity, the development of war resources, the maintenance of standby munitions capacity, and the advance planning for economic and production controls in event of full mobilization.

As a further step toward dovetailing the military and civilian phases of preparedness, Eisenhower reportedly also plans a reorganization and strengthening of the National Security Council. This is the Cabinet-level body which advises the President on major aspects of defense policy.

The council has been criticized—by the Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization among others—as lacking sufficient representation from the civilian departments which have major responsibilities in any war crisis.

The bill also would grant the county commissioners one additional member on the school boards. Those positions would not be subject to Senate approval.

Soldier Confirms Ammo Shortage

WINCHESTER, Va., March 19 (AP)—A 19-year old soldier back from the Korean battlefront today backed up charges of an ammunition shortage there.

Roy Carter Jr. of Route 1, Berryville, told the Winchester Star that "during the time I was on the front lines in Korea, there was a definite and continuing shortage of ammunition."

The testimony of young Carter, who served for nine months on the frontline as a machine gunner, agreed generally with that of Gen. James A. Van Fleet. After returning recently from command of U. N. forces in Korea, the general complained to a congressional committee that his soldiers had not always had enough ammunition. This has been denied by some frontline commanders, and supported by others.

In an affidavit to the Star, Carter said:

"There were times when we went on patrol that we lacked sufficient ammunition to fight with. There was a definite shortage of machine gun shells and hand grenades.

Carter said he served in Korea from Jan. 16, 1952 until Oct. 1, 1952.

Writers Told How To Portray Stalin

LONDON, March 19 (AP)—Russian authors were instructed today how to portray the late Joseph Stalin in literature.

In an article entitled "The Sacred Duties of Writers," Moscow's Literary Gazette said the most important task of Soviet men of letters was:

"To portray in Soviet literature, for their contemporaries and for future generations, the greatest genius of all time and all peoples—the immortal Stalin—and in their works, to show the material and spiritual development of Soviet society and the great achievements inspired by Stalin's genius."

The article was broadcast by Moscow radio.

Man Leaves Hospital 2 Weeks After Dying

HAVERHILL, Mass., March 19 (AP)—A man walked out of Hale Hospital today, two weeks and a couple of hours after he had been "dead" for nearly six minutes.

Doctors confirmed that Leonard Witham, 49, apparently died on the operating table March 5 and was without pulse or heartbeat for five minutes and 57 seconds.

The surgeon, who was operating on Witham for gall stone removal, and an anaesthetist revived him, the surgeon by making an incision and massaging the man's heart until it began to beat again.

Eisenhower May Buy Air Defense Without Civil Defense

protection for key industries are the main outlays proposed.

President Eisenhower may decide, after all, to buy air defense without civil defense. On the surface, it seems essential to provide protection for the people of our cities when one in every five attackers is expected to reach his target. Failure to buy civil defense looks like taking one chance in five that the population of any given city will experience the fate of Hiroshima. In fact, however, the chance taken will be far smaller. For the odds against an attack being delivered at all will rise steeply as our air defenses are improved from their present sorry state.

This grim arithmetic does not alter this additional civil defense program's very great significance. In effect, the air defense program may be regarded as the culminating symbol of the great choice history has thrust upon this country between comfortable prosperity for the short run or national security for the long run. By the same token, the additional civil defense program may be regarded as a symbol of the many new problems that are created by a preference for the survival of this republic.

Choosing national security will not reduce the need for defense economy, in the sense of the long, over-due attempt to reduce the high unit cost of American defense. True defense economy will remain as urgent as ever. But economies in unit costs will inevitably be swallowed up by new outlays, necessitated by the remorseless forward march of military technology and the increasing power of the Soviet war machine.

Take, for instance, the curious case of the meteor that fell on one of the Pacific islands. The first reports of this occurrence so alarmed the Joint Chiefs of Staff that they held an emergency night meeting. The reason was simple. The meteor had been mistaken for a long-range guided missile.

The range was right, for a missile flown from the expected testing area in Russia to the place of the meteor's fall. If you took a string on a globe, the same range would carry a missile from Kamchatka to Detroit. The problem was taken with the utmost seriousness, and the sighs of relief were very deep when the news came in that the supposed missile was a natural product of our stormy universe, and not the result of man's talent for destroying man.

Behind this story are some further unpleasant facts. A long range guided missile with atomic warhead, probably a two-stage version of the German V-2, is now known to be eventually possible. In their search for such a missile, the Soviets are using many of the best German missile experts captured at Penemunde. Most of the best American judges think that the Soviet investment in a long range guided missile program is very heavy indeed. Our investment is relatively light, for the long range missile project is only one among 27 other projects in a Pentagon missile program with an appropriation of about $1,000,000,000.

Furthermore, we are not merely running the risk of falling behind Soviet development of these dreadful weapons, which in themselves may decide the world power struggle. We are not even making the effort to find out all we can about Soviet programs.

The firing of such huge missiles causes violent ionization. The resulting ion cloud can be detected by appropriate instruments as it travels through the atmosphere, just as the radio-active cloud is now detected after an atomic explosion. But we have not even purchased the appropriate instruments to detect the ion cloud and thus to tell us definitely whether the Kremlin has, or has not, this all-important new weapon. What are we to do about these related deficiencies?

Again, there is the case of the seven groups of B-36s, which now constitute the backbone of our Strategic Air Command. These are our only bomber groups with inter-continental range, and thus the only groups not dependent on foreign bases. They are also, in all probability, the only groups that can carry the hydrogen bomb.

As is well known, there is considerable argument about whether the lumbering B-36s can get through the existing Soviet air defense system, which consists of MIG-15s directed to the general vicinity of the enemy by ground radar. The B-36s will go from being obsolescent to being completely obsolete, however, if and when a critical item of recent intelligence is directly confirmed.

This intelligence report is credited by the usually reliable British as well as by our own A-2. It is to the effect that the Soviets are now producing a high speed, high altitude jet-fighter-interceptor, with its own air-intercept radar. Such an aircraft would be able to seek and find the B-36 in the chilly upper air, besides out-performing it in every other way. Re-equipment of the Soviet Air Defense groups with this new aircraft will virtually render useless all the American Strategic Air Command groups that are still using B-36s.

The planned replacement for the B-36 is the B-52, an enlarged version of the B-47 jet bomber. The B-47 has just, at long last, been given its final triumphant test. The B-52 has not yet been fully tested, but the Strategic Air Commander, Gen. Curtis LeMay, has such great confidence in the new plane that he utterly disrupted the Air Staff, a few months ago, by demanding no less than 14 B-52 groups at a cost of $10 billion. Single line production of the B-52 has just begun. But the existing production line, even when working full speed, will take a matter of about four years to replace the B-36s with B-52s.

Having regard to all these facts, and after the most prolonged soul-searching, former Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett and former Secretary of the Air Force Thomas Finletter, took a very grave budgetary decision. Although the B-52 was still incompletely tested, and also the cost was very great, they included funds to start a second B-52 production line. Their aim was to speed B-36 replacement, in order to forestall the expected Soviet fighter-interceptor with air intercept radar.

The new regime at the Pentagon has recently shown signs of questioning this decision. They say, quite rightly, it involves a heavy gamble. But what of the other gamble? What of the risk that anywhere up to three-quarters of the most important groups in our Strategic Air Command will suddenly be rendered useless for a period of years?

These are questions that cannot be eluded, just as the air defense problem cannot be eluded. But when such questions are answered, and such problems are taken in hand, our whole national policy is bound to be transformed in all its branches.

An Old Homburg Man

Sorry to state the Homburg epidemic should be kept at the six-foot level. It makes short men look like inquisitive turtles with their top shell raised.

Contrary to generally accepted cataloguing, the Homburgian fad was not started by President Ike. It was the debonair Anthony Eden who inaugurated the stylish fireless cooker.

Antonio bloomed season in and out of season in his best parking regalia. Spats, striped trousers, Ascot bib and, as I said of O. O. McIntyre—stir with a cane and serve.

He topped it off with his Homburg wig-warmer. Compared with the immaculate Eden, old Solomon in all his glory was a bum of purest ray serene.

On inaugural day they tried to clamp the polished wrinkle incubator down over Ike's cupola. Caesar refused the crown three times. Ike made it the first time off the tee.

Rising Crisis For Berlin

Ratification by the West German Bundestag of the "peace contract" with the Western Allies and the European Defense Treaty offers the first real indication of how slavishly the Malenkov regime in Russia will follow the Stalinist pattern. If Malenkov follows through on Stalin's threats, the first moves will be against the already harried island in the Soviet zone of Germany, West Berlin.

Since the pacts were signed in May 1952 the Russians have been conducting a program of isolation for West Berlin. The Berlin branch of the Communist party on Febraury 11 proclaimed that ratification of the "war treaties" would directly threaten "the existence of the West Berlin people," involving "further isolation, pauperization, and danger."

Premier Malenkov on March 15 declared "There are not any, and there will not be any questions that cannot be resolved by peaceful means. This is true regarding all governments, including the United States of America." And on March 16 the Russians lifted a "baby blockade" of the Berlin-West German highway and announced that locks in a canal between West and East Germany—closed since August 1, 1952—would be reopened on March 25.

Ratification by the Bundestag of the Allied-German treaties, which now seems in certain prospect, will not mean irreversible approval. The Bundesrat (senate) could turn them down or the Federal Constitutional Court could declare them unconstitutional.

Defeat of the Adenauer government in the general election later this year could have the effect of nullifying the treaties. Or the legislature could simply neglect to take the steps needed to implement them.

Reprisals against West Berlin for actions of the West German government would emphasize the anomalous position of the city. West Berlin is not only a city but also a German state. In the city's legislature, a number of seats purposely are left vacant for eventual representation by the eastern (Soviet-occupied) sector.

But West Berlin is not a constituent part of the federation of West Germany. Because of Berlin's peculiar position as an island in the Soviet zone, the Western Allies ruled against the city's wish to become a part of the Bonn republic on its formation in September 1949. Berlin is thus excluded from the contractual agreements between Bonn and the Western Allies. But Berlin does have representation in the Bonn parliament by observers who can advise but cannot vote.

When the EDC treaty was signed last May, the Western Allies issued a tripartite statement reaffirming that they would "treat any attack against Berlin from any quarter as an attack upon their forces and themselves." The Eisenhower administration has renewed this pledge. In a message to Mayor Reuter of West Berlin on March 13 President Eisenhower noted the possibility of difficulties reaching "crisis proportions," and expressed confidence that the "same great qualities which carried you through the blockade (of 1948-1949) will once again prevail."

Less Anti-Semitism?

As the Malenkov government of Russia proceeds to consolidate itself, will the anti-Semitic program behind the iron curtain wax or wane? One report is that the new premier is strongly anti-Semitic, himself, but one of the new Soviet hierarchy is a Jew, and Molotov, the new foreign secretary, has a Jewish wife.

Anti-Semitism in the Communist world is all the more ironic inasmuch as the founder of modern communism, Karl Marx, was of Jewish blood. The Kremlin tries to get around the irony by arguing that the trouble isn't with Jews as such but with Zionists. The argument is that the Jews are a religion, not a race nor properly a nation, but if this is true, why did the Soviet Union recognize Israel as soon as that Jewish state became established?

The answer is, of course, that at that time (1948) the Soviet government would make any move to embarrass Great Britain, which had long antagonized the Jews in Palestine. And today one explanation of Communist anti-Semitism is that the Soviet government will do anything to embarrass the United States, which has antagonized the Arab world by its policy of friendliness toward Israel.

Some 2,500,000 Jews now live behind the Iron Curtain — about 2,000,000 in the Soviet Union and 500,000 in Romania, Hungary, Poland, other satellite states. The total is only one-third of what it was in that area at the outbreak of World War II in 1939.

Jets For Tito

Four American pilots swooped their jet fighters to an expected landing at Belgrade the other day. In a formal ceremony, Tito's air force accepted these latest tokens of the defensive partnership between this country and Yugoslavia.

It may be that the drama of this event is the sort of thing most likely to encourage elements in the Red satellite countries to assert a spirit of independence like Tito's. It is significant that the top military brass turned out for the jets' arrival, and the speeches were of ambassadorial level.

Ever since Tito first defied the comintern, the U. S. policy of backing his rebel independence has seemed to pay off. The U. S. does not endorse communism in Yugoslavia. It merely backs Tito's resistance to Moscow.

Back in 1949 some U. S.-made transport planes were delivered to Yugoslavia. An entire steel mill was shipped over to help strengthen the country's potential in peace or war. For a year and a half American military equipment has been going to Yugoslavia under the Mutual Security Program. Jets are merely the latest in a long line of deliveries.

Life In The Stockades

A new guidebook to the handling of oriental fanatics is being written in the lessons learned and applied by U. S. Army officers in command of Communist prisoner-of-war camps in Korea. There is a feeling now that if there is still dynamite in the compounds, it won't go off as it did when General Dodd, the former Koje commander, was captured, and U. S. troops fought desperately to quell the mutiny.

Working parties of prisoners are to be seen repairing roads or making repairs to buildings. It is not hard now to get plenty of help from docile POWs, according to one correspondent. The great majority of them are not fanatics, but simple fellows quite willing to take orders and do the camp work.

The fanatics, of course, never cease their plotting. Colonel Taylor, the present camp commander, will abide by the letter of the Geneva Convention — but have the tear gas and the automatic weapons ready in case of emergency.

How To Keep Well

Diphtheria Is Out Of Date

At present, diphtheria is like a hibernating bear. It lies dormant, unable to gain a foothold because most of us are immune through protective inoculations. This is not a "happenstance" but represents the result of years and years of vigilance on the part of our health departments. If we let the bars down, the malady would soon flare up in epidemic proportions.

The infection is highly contagious and the causative organism is acquired from contact with an infected person or a carrier. Old timers had to be careful of the drinking water and milk and of any animals or objects that might have been in contact with an active case. This was necessary because the virulent organisms live outside the body temporarily, which explains why the room in which the sick person was quarantined was cleansed so thoroughly before being used again.

What is diphtheria like? Many individuals have the idea that every victim hovered between life and death and only the lucky survived. This was true in severe cases but more often than not the condition was so mild as to escape detection. The last case I saw was that of a young woman who came to me after walking about for over a month with a nasal discharge that failed to respond to the usual medications. Secretions from the nose, sent to the laboratory, were found to contain diphtheria organisms. Antitoxin was administered and within a week the woman was well.

Such instances are the exception. The majority develop what amounts to a super-sore throat with headache, fatigue, and fever ranging from 101 to 103 degrees F. The throat and tonsils are congested and swollen and by the end of 24 hours a group of small, yellowish-white spots arise over the inflamed areas. These lesions coalesce into a membrane that spreads rapidly over the back of the throat and the tonsillar tissues. It has an offensive odor and the appearance is so characteristic most physicians order a throat culture immediately to ascertain whether or not the bacilli are present.

Inflammation in the respiratory passageways is only part of the disturbance. The organisms also give off a powerful toxin that is absorbed into the blood stream and has a poisonous effect on many organs. It is responsible for constitutional symptoms including marked prostration and toxemia. This is the rationale behind the use of antitoxin. A more serious complication occurs when infection spreads to the larynx. Swelling in this area narrows the airway and interferes with breathing. This is more likely to occur in children and produces hoarseness, noisy breathing, and a brassy cough. The youngster must be watched carefully lest complete obstruction and suffocation ensue. When it is obvious that the passageway is becoming smaller because breathing is labored, a small rubber tube is inserted into the lungs via the throat and larynx to prevent complete blockage. When diphtheria was rife this procedure (intubation) was given credit for saving thousands of lives annually.

TOMORROW: Coughing up blood a symptom to be investigated.

BONE GRAFTS

T. G. writes: If a bone graft "takes" at the time it is applied, will it need to be replaced from time to time, or is the original graft permanent?

REPLY

Once the grafted bone obtains its own blood supply and callus cements it into place (a "take"), the job is likely to be permanent.

CENTERED PAIN

M. C. writes: Could appendicitis cause pain in the center of the abdomen rather than on the right side?

REPLY

Yes, particularly in the early stages and when the organ is displaced toward the center. In a former patient of mine with gangrenous appendix, all the distress was on the left side yet inflammation was on the right. I would suggest an X-ray study in the case you mention.

PLASTICS AND ARTHRITIS

D. C. writes: Could a person develop arthritis from working with plastics in a factory?

REPLY

No. Arthritis is common and the condition is bound to develop in persons from all walks of life. Some will be printers; others, lumberjacks, stenographers, or workers in a plastics factory.

BRONCHITIS

K. Y. writes: Every winter I develop bronchitis. Is this condition curable?

REPLY

Seasonal colds are curable but the condition you describe may require extensive medical detective work to find the cause. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on acute and chronic bronchitis.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Eisenhower Administration Isn't "Buying" Latin Friendship; Brazilian Loan Causes Hassle; Malenkov Doesn't Want War, May Blunder Into It

WASHINGTON — Some will-o'-the-wisp, sleight-of-hand diplomacy reminiscent of Truman days took place backstage before the Eisenhower administration granted the recent $300,000,000 loan to Brazil. The diplomats didn't know it, but it was Ike himself, not the State Department, who finally OK'd the loan. And the man who deftly secured Ike's OK was Fortune publisher C. D. Jackson now head of psychological warfare.

The inside story indicates the difficulty of forming a definite policy on foreign loans, especially to Latin America. Secretary of State Dulles announced some time ago that the Republicans would push the good-neighbor policy. But at the same time he himself almost reneged on the Brazilian loan, and in a conversation with suave Brazilian Ambassador Walther Moreira Salles, the new secretary of State made this rather undiplomatic remark:

"Don't forget, Mr. Ambassador," Dulles said, "the Republicans are in control now. We're not Democrats. We don't buy friendship."

"And Brazil's friendship," snapped the ambassador, "is not for sale."

Down On Brazil

Earlier the ambassador had met with something of a rebuff from Undersecretary of the Treasury Randolph Burgess when he called to discuss the loan.

"My boss doesn't like Brazil very much," Burgess stated bluntly, and went on to tell how the M. A. Hanna Company of which Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey was long the president, had been negotiating for the manganese concession in the territory of Amapa, north of the Amazon, when suddenly it found that Bethlehem steel got the concession instead.

Undersecretary Burgess, formerly of the National City Bank, a company which negotiated a sour loan of $100,000,000 to Peru in the 1920's, was one of the chief opponents of the current loan to Brazil. Finally he proposed that Brazil take one-third—or $100,000,000—instead of $300,000,000.

Simultaneously, Assistant Secretary of State Linder lectured the Brazilians about not letting American oil companies operate in Brazil.

"What does Brazil mean," he asked, "by blocking oil exploitation and then turning round and importing $280,000,000 worth of oil a year? You'll never be solvent."

When the result of these negotiations was cabled back to Brazil, it hit the front pages with a bang. "U. S. abandons Brazil!" flared the headlines. Other papers talked of Yankee imperialism wanting oil in return for a loan.

It was at this point that the ambassador called on Secretary Dulles held an hour-long session reminding him that Argentina—no friend of the U.S.A.—had received a healthy loan, that Brazil had come into two world wars on the side of the United States while Argentina flirted with the enemy. The ambassador's potent appeal partially converted Dulles.

But in the end, Nelson Rockefeller, who knows Latin-American problems better than anyone else around Washington, put the facts before C. D. Jackson inside the White House, and Jackson got them to Eisenhower. Overnight, the President acted where his secretary of State and secretary of the Treasury had delayed. The full loan to Brazil was OK'd.

Inside Russia

U. S. diplomats and intelligence experts have worked out some theories on why the new Kremlin has been shooting down and bulldozing U. S.-British planes, but so far no definite plan has been evolved as to what we should do about it.

Probable reasons behind the Red brazenness are:

1. To create the impression inside Russia that the Soviet is being attacked; must defend itself from the outside world.

2. To impress the satellite countries—where the Kremlin is weakest—that the new Kremlin is afraid of nothing, would deal ruthlessly with satellite revolt.

3. To impress the outside world that while the new Kremlin is willing to negotiate it's not afraid of anyone.

Chief danger in all this is that a weak and uncertain Kremlin may blunder into war. Malenkov probably doesn't want war, first because he doesn't entirely control the Red army, second because he doesn't control the secret police. But a dictator who isn't sure of himself, and who relies on airplane incidents, can always "incident" himself into war.

On the other hand, the fluid condition inside Russia presents a golden opportunity for the United States to pry open some diplomatic doors, later widen them. If we don't move now, then our only alternative is to prepare for war later. So far we're not moving.

Merry-Go-Round

Quoth the London Times' John Miller when he heard Ike planned to send thrice-married Fleur Cowles, wife of Look publisher Mike Cowles, as special ambassador to Queen Elizabeth's coronation: "Who does he think is getting crowned — the Duchess of Windsor?" (divorced women are not presented at the Court of St. James's.) . . . Foreign Minister Molotov has a brother-in-law living in Connecticut, Sam Carp, who doesn't share his ideas and does a pretty good business running a filling station . . . Egyptian Ambassador Abdul Rahim, who was appointed by King Farouk, is being replaced by Ahmed Hussein, representing strong-man Naguib . . . Tip to the RFC: Take a good look at the proposed loan to financing mining of iron ore at Cedartown, Ga. Old-time ore people say they've already got ore piled up on the ground . . . Congressional friends of Bob Taft aren't against GOP Chairman Wesley Roberts as much as they are against his close friend, Barak Mattingly, wealthy St. Louis political boss. It was Mattingly who started the steamroller for Dewey at Philadelphia in 1948. Recently he's been an unofficial patronage adviser to Herbert Brownell . . . Taftites refer to Wes Roberts as "Mr. Peanuts."

Atomic Energy

If there is anything that few know about, it is atomic energy and what is being done by the Atomic Energy Commission. If there is anything that nobody, in or out of the government, can know anything about, it is what the future of the use of atomic energy can be, what changes will be wrought in our society because of it, what wonders research in this field will ultimately produce.

This subject ordinarily would be discussed openly in universities and in Congress. But we are at war. The enemy has already stolen some of our achievements in this field and is ready to steal everything we do. The perils, but not the benefits, of atomic fission are immediately upon us. Therefore, the very great secrecy is essential.

And it is because of this secrecy that the American people perhaps forget that there is an Atomic Energy Commission; that it is engaged in a great war of research in the use of fissionable materials in peace as well as war, for healing as well as destruction that it is stockpiling the atom and hydrogen bombs for our defense.

The present administration is looking for ways to save money and there are thousands of holes in the sieve called government that can be plugged up. Best opinion in Washington is that the Pentagon is probably the agency for the greatest waste.

But no one can actually know whether there is or is not waste in the work of the Atomic Energy Commission. Who is to place a limitation on the stockpiling of bombs? Who can know how many we shall have to use if the enemy attacks our country? There is no longer a shortage of fissionable materials; yet there are some who suggest that this would be a good time to stop stockpiling. Can anyone guarantee that there will be no shortage should war occur, despite the fact that most of the ores come from the Belgian Congo and Northwest Canada? We can be cut off from the source of supply.

Again, we must face the fact that the next war will not be fought as World War II was fought, just as World War II was not fought as World War I was fought. The existence of the atom bomb, of guided missiles, of the schnorkel and the atom-driven submarine, of supersonic airplanes and the widespread use of radar, and of many applications of electronics, have changed the techniques of warfare. The foot soldier, the ideal fighting force of the Pentagon, will probably become a small occupying and police force in the wars of the future, just as the horse cavalry began to disappear at the time when Herbert Hoover was President and Douglas MacArthur was his chief of staff.

Therefore, when the Bureau of the Budget seeks to save some money, let it keep its hands off the Atomic Energy Commission. That is one place where it is not safe, while we are actually at war, to make severe cuts. It would be safer to eliminate the expensive committee system in vogue in the Pentagon, a system which wastes time and money and gives the top brass and the governing civilians an alibi for avoiding direct responsibility. Group responsibility is expensive and confusing. This system was introduced by General George Marshall and can be discarded without any great loss.

But it would be foolhardy to make cuts in the work of the Atomic Eenergy Commission, particularly in relation to its researches. Often an administration seeking to avoid unpopularity, makes its cuts in obscure agencies, thus averting a quarrel with members of Congress who served vested interests in the expenditures.

Every citizen has a vested interest in the work of the Atomic Energy Commission, because each of our lives and the lives of our children are dependent upon the work of this agency of government. There is no private activity in this field; it is a government monopoly. Congress can keep it strong or reduce it to a sterile bureau of the administration. The Pentagon can take it over with the consent of Congress, and make it a soft-ball of inter-service politics.

This should be watched closely at this moment when the Bureau of the Budget is looking for something to lop off the government payroll.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — A clear-cut case for a naval blockade by the Western Allies on strategic materials destined for Red China from certain ports in Asia has been unwittingly made by the government of Ceylon.

Announcement that Ceylon, which is an independent British commonwealth, has rejected the pointed request of Anthony Eden, British Foreign secretary, that Ceylon refrain from shipping 250,000 tons of rubber to the Communist Chinese leaves only one course open — to seize the ships and confiscate their cargoes and, if they resist, to sink the vessels.

Mr. Eden and the British government acted in good faith in drawing to the attention of the Ceylon government so promptly the terms of the agreement reached with Secretary of State Dulles a fortnight ago in Washington. Under the terms of that agreement, Great Britain was to refuse permission to any ships to refuel in her ports if they were carrying strategic materials to Red China. But, since Polish ships are to carry Ceylon's rubber and these are Diesel-powered and will not have to put in at British ports en route to Red China, the only possible way to stop the cargoes is to stop the ships.

Activated By Money

The government of Ceylon professes to be opposed to communism and its doctrines, but says very frankly its own paramount interests is money. That's but another way of saying that the lives of American boys and British boys and French boys and all the other troops of the United Nations are not to be saved by depriving the Red Chinese of war materials and that financial gain is more important.

The Ceylon government had a chance to sell its rubber to the United States but insisted on trying to gouge the American government by demanding a high price. Indeed, the Red Chinese paid a 40 per cent premium above the world price to get the rubber, and they arranged to pay for it by shipping rice to Ceylon.

The American government, under the Truman administration, promised to obtain the rice for Ceylon's people and also started a negotiation for "Point Four" economic aid to Ceylon. But it became apparent soon that the government of this so-called free nation was engaged in blackmail.

Hence, the American government put a limit on the price of the rubber and the negotiations collapsed. Then Ceylon, deliberately disregarding the plight of the soldiers of the free world, arranged to send rubber to help the Red Chinese trucks carry their munitions and to equip Red planes to drop bombs so that the murder on the Korean front might be prolonged.

The words of the Ceylon government, in seeking a few weeks ago to justify its action, sound empty in the face of the conditions in Korea. It isn't as if Ceylon's people would have been deprived of rice or of money for their rubber at the price prevailing at the Singapore market, but profiteers would not have got as much profit. Yet, the Ceylon government's statement says:

"The government of Ceylon has shared and will always share the aspirations of the Western democratic world in the preservation of democratic institutions and the democratic way of life, but it does not consider the mere formulation of political slogans and political doctrines can replace the sincere purpose and a genuine will to cooperate internationally.

Payoff May Come

"In the present context, while the government of Ceylon is in complete sympathy with the democratic world in its opposition to communism, it cannot be a party to any policy which sacrifices economic well-being for political expediency and so is apt to produce just those undesirable consequences which are sought to be avoided or eliminated."

Paraphrasing the above, what it means realistically is that Ceylon claims to be opposed to communism and claims that it shares the aspirations of the West, but only as long as it cannot gain more profit by trading with the Communists than with the defenders of freedom in the world.

Americans have long memories and there may come a time when Ceylon will ask for admission to the United Nations or for "Point Four" aid from Congress. There may come a time when America will have to remember that, when the blood of her sons was flowing, the Ceylon government trafficked with the enemy and preferred to enrich itself. Under the circumstances, a naval blockade as well as a severance of diplomatic relations with Ceylon is in order. No diplomatic representatives of the Ceylon government should be permitted in Washington as long as the Ceylon rubber is being shipped to Red China to help kill American boys.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 19 (INS)—Some of the people on hand to cover the most recent test of an atomic device expressed themselves as disappointed. One lady who writes about Hollywood people was interviewed atop Mt. Charleston, about 40 miles from the scene and was prominently quoted as having been "let down."

Probably because it was unlike any the world has ever known, the A-bomb got off to a bad publicity start. The scientists who built it became political pundits and predicted direly that if their handiwork became a weapon in the hands of the military—whom the studious men held in contempt, intellectually — the world would be blown to bits.

A whole raft of left-wing writers, lecturers, critics, and radio commentators, obviously acting in concert, began blasting Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the military aspect of the bomb. A group of 60 scientists, who knew from the start that they were building a bomb (matter of fact, Albert Einstein, who was not considered security conscious enough to work on the bomb, was the first person to use the word "bomb" in connection with the release of atomic energy) tried to dictate how the military should use it.

Became Symbol Of Horror

When the War Department refused to submit to this pressure, because the purpose of the department was to end World War II as quickly as possible, one of the scientists publicly offered to die with the first bomb dropped on a city.

Anyway, the A-bomb became a symbol of horror. It would make the earth as barren as the moon. The left-wingers haven't been as articulate since it became known that Russia has one like it. Apparently, they are relieved, their chief complaint seems to have been that we wouldn't share it with Mother Russia in the first place.

The attitude of Joe Doakes, American, toward the bomb has become scrambled. Joe was told that this was the biggest thing since the deluge. He was told in advance by exuberant quasi-experts (in 1946) that the bomb would sink most of that obsolete fleet chained in Bikini lagoon. When it didn't sink the entire fleet, a suggestion of a shrug was noticeable.

A year ago last October at Frenchman Flat, Nev. a lot of us shuddered in the pre-dawn cold and scoffed at innocuous-appearing experiments by the AEC—including one bomb which I remember calling the "atomic grenade."

Bomb's Yield Improved

What we didn't know was that this country was forging ahead of Russia, which had stolen the original product, by learning how to graduate the size and power of the stupendous weapon. What we didn't know was that we were building up to the atomic cannon which will be fired soon at Yucca Flat. At the same time, we were learning how to improve the yield of a bomb to such a degree that bombs of this type could not be tested within the continental U. S., but had to be taken to far-off Eniwetok to be touched off. Apparently we have an A-bomb now with a power somewhere between 50 and 60 kiloton. At the maximum that would mean a bomb with an explosive substance hardly larger than a football) equal to 60,000 tons of TNT.

Perhaps, more importantly, we have a bomb that can be tuned down, made compact enough to be fitted into a 11-inch shell. When one considers the thickness of the hide of a shell, this means that the fantastic apparatus of detonating a nuclear mass has been reduced to something hardly as large as a midget radio.

That first atomic shell will produce about as much of a conflagration as the one which, last Tuesday, distressed the lady columnist and some others. The crust of the earth will not be cracked. Troops in foxholes a mile or so away will survive, and some disappointment will be expressed in nearby Las Vegas because it didn't break a window or turn over a "seven" into a "three" at a Sands Hotel dice table.

Momentous Moment

But when the first shot is fired the course of warfare (and thus history) will take a violently abrupt tack. It will be as momentous a moment as the introduction of the military elephant, the first use of the catapult, the first use of the bow and arrow, the crossbow, gunpowder, Mr. Churchill's tank, the first war plane.

None of this could be possible if we had not discovered ways and means of making atomic explosions less ferocious than those at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The fruit of this research, however, draws cynical statements which must persuade a lot of people to believe that the thing isn't what it was cracked up to be. We have bombs today which if touched off on the tower at Yucca Flat the other day would have destroyed not only "Doom Town," but probably Las Vegas, 75 miles away, and would have ruptured things in Los Angeles, 300 miles away. We also have a bomb which can be handled as safely, in shell form, as men handled cannon balls at Bull Run. It is this that has been scoffed at—though it may in time knock Red China out of Korea, save us billions of dollars a year, and force that lump to come up in Malenkov's throat, which could stop his hand.

Rising Crisis For Berlin

Ratification by the West German Bundestag of the "peace contract" with the Western Allies and the European Defense Treaty offers the first real indication of how slavishly the Malenkov regime in Russia will follow the Stalinist pattern. If Malenkov follows through on Stalin's threats, the first moves will be against the already harried island in the Soviet zone of Germany, West Berlin

Since the pacts were signed in May 1952 the Russians have been conducting a program of isolation for West Berlin. The Berlin branch of the Communist party on Februray 11 proclaimed that ratification of the "war treaties" would directly threaten "the existence of the West Berlin people," involving "further isolation, pauperization, and danger."

Premier Malenkov on March 15 declared "There are not any, and there will not be any questions that cannot be resolved by peaceful means. This is true regarding all governments, including the United States of America." And on March 16 the Russians lifted a "baby blockade" of the Berlin-West German highway and announced that locks in a canal between West and East Germany—closed since August 1, 1952—would be reopened on March 25.

Ratification by the Bundestag of the Allied-German treaties, which now seems in certain prospect, will not mean irreversible approval. The Bundesrat (senate) could turn them down or the Federal Constitutional Court could declare them unconstitutional.

Defeat of the Adenauer government in the general election later this year could have the effect of nullifying the treaties. Or the legislature could simply neglect to take the steps needed to implement them.

Reprisals against West Berlin for actions of the West German government would emphasize the anomalous position of the city. West Berlin is not only a city but also a German state. In the city's legislature, a number of seats purposely are left vacant for eventual representation by the eastern (Soviet-occupied) sector.

But West Berlin is not a constituent part of the federation of West Germany. Because of Berlin's peculiar position as an island in the Soviet zone, the Western Allies ruled against the city's wish to become a part of the Bonn republic on its formation in September 1949. Berlin is thus excluded from the contractual agreements between Bonn and the Western Allies. But Berlin does have representation in the Bonn parliament by observers who can advise but cannot vote.

When the EDC treaty was signed last May, the Western Allies issued a tripartite statement reaffirming that they would "treat any attack against Berlin from any quarter as an attack upon their forces and themselves." The Eisenhower administration has renewed this pledge. In a message to Mayor Reuter of West Berlin on March 13 President Eisenhower noted the possibility of difficulties reaching "crisis proportions," and expressed confidence that the "same great qualities which carried you through the blockade (of 1948-1949) will once again prevail."

Less Anti-Semitism?

As the Malenkov government of Russia proceeds to consolidate itself, will the anti-Semitic program behind the iron curtain wax or wane? One report is that the new premier is strongly anti-Semitic, himself, but one of the new Soviet hierarchy is a Jew, and Molotov, the new foreign secretary, has a Jewish wife.

Anti-Semitism in the Communist world is all the more ironic inasmuch as the founder of modern communism, Karl Marx, was of Jewish blood. The Kremlin tries to get around the irony by arguing that the trouble isn't with Jews as such but with Zionists. The argument is that the Jews are a religion, not a race nor properly a nation, but if this is true, why did the Soviet Union recognize Israel as soon as that Jewish state became established?

The answer is, of course, that at that time (1948) the Soviet government would make any move to embarrass Great Britain, which had long antagonized the Jews in Palestine. And today one explanation of Communist anti-Semitism is that the Soviet government will do anything to embarrass the United States, which has antagonized the Arab world by its policy of friendliness toward Israel.

Some 2,500,000 Jews now live behind the Iron Curtain — about 2,000,000 in the Soviet Union and 500,000 in Romania, Hungary, Poland, other satellite states. The total is only one-third of what it was in that area at the outbreak of World War II in 1939.

Jets For Tito

Four American pilots swooped their jet fighters to an expected landing at Belgrade the other day. In a formal ceremony, Tito's air force accepted these latest tokens of the defensive partnership between this country and Yugoslavia.

It may be that the drama of this event is the sort of thing most likely to encourage elements in the Red satellite countries to assert a spirit of independence like Tito's. It is significant that the top military brass turned out for the jets' arrival, and the speeches were of ambassadorial level.

Ever since Tito first defied the comintern, the U. S. policy of backing his rebel independence has seemed to pay off. The U. S. does not endorse communism in Yugoslavia. It merely backs Tito's resistance to Moscow.

Back in 1949 some U. S.-made transport planes were delivered to Yugoslavia. An entire steel mill was shipped over to help strengthen the country's potential in peace or war. For a year and a half American military equipment has been going to Yugoslavia under the Mutual Security Program. Jets are merely the latest in a long line of deliveries.

Life In The Stockades

A new guidebook to the handling of oriental fanatics is being written in the lessons learned and applied by U. S. Army officers in command of Communist prisoner-of-war camps in Korea. There is a feeling now that if there is still dynamite in the compounds, it won't go off as it did when General Dodd, the former Koje commander, was captured, and U. S. troops fought desperately to quell the mutiny.

Working parties of prisoners are to be seen repairing roads or making repairs to buildings. It is not hard now to get plenty of help from docile POWs, according to one correspondent. The great majority of them are not fanatics, but simple fellows quite willing to take orders and do the camp work.

The fanatics, of course, never cease their plotting.

Colonel Taylor, the present camp commander, will abide by the letter of the Geneva Convention — but have the tear gas and the automatic weapons ready in case of emergency.

Diphtheria Is Out Of Date

At present, diphtheria is like a hibernating bear. It lies dormant, unable to gain a foothold because most of us are immune through protective inoculations. This is not a "happenstance" but represents the result of years and years of vigilance on the part of our health departments. If we let the bars down, the malady would soon flare up in epidemic proportions.

The infection is highly contagious and the causative organism is acquired from contact with an infected person or a carrier. Old timers had to be careful of the drinking water and milk and of any animals or objects that might have been in contact with an active case. This was necessary because the virulent organisms live outside the body temporarily, which explains why the room in which the sick person was quarantined was cleansed so thoroughly before being used again.

What is diphtheria like? Many individuals have the idea that every victim hovered between life and death and only the lucky survived. This was true in severe cases but more often than not the condition was so mild as to escape detection. The last case I saw was that of a young woman who came to me after walking about for over a month with a nasal discharge that failed to respond to the usual medications. Secretions from the nose, sent to the laboratory, were found to contain diphtheria organisms. Antitoxin was administered and within a week the woman was well.

Such instances are the exception. The majority develop what amounts to a super-sore throat with headache, fatigue, and fever ranging from 101 to 103 degrees F. The throat and tonsils are congested and swollen and by the end of 24 hours a group of small, yellowish-white spots arise over the inflamed areas. These lesions coalesce into a membrane that spreads rapidly over the back of the throat and the tonsillar tissues. It has an offensive odor and the appearance is so characteristic most physicians order a throat culture immediately to ascertain whether or not the bacilli are present.

Inflammation in the respiratory passageways is only part of the disturbance. The organisms also give off a powerful toxin that is absorbed into the blood stream and has a poisonous effect on many organs. It is responsible for constitutional symptoms including marked prostration and toxemia. This is the rationale behind the use of antitoxin. A more serious complication occurs when infection spreads to the larynx. Swelling in this area narrows the airway and interferes with breathing. This is more likely to occur in children and produces hoarseness, noisy breathing, and a brassy cough. The youngster must be watched carefully lest complete obstruction and suffocation ensue. When it is obvious that the passageway is becoming smaller because breathing is labored, a small rubber tube is inserted into the lungs via the throat and larynx to prevent complete blockage. When diphtheria was rife this procedure (intubation) was given credit for saving thousands of lives annually.

TOMORROW: Coughing up blood a symptom to be investigated.

BONE GRAFTS

T. G. writes: If a bone graft "takes" at the time it is applied, will it need to be replaced from time to time, or is the original graft permanent?

REPLY

Once the grafted bone obtains its own blood supply and callus cements it into place (a "take"), the job is likely to be permanent.

CENTERED PAIN

M. C. writes: Could appendicitis cause pain in the center of the abdomen rather than on the right side?

REPLY

Yes, particularly in the early stages and when the organ is displaced toward the center. In a former patient of mine with gangrenous appendix, all the distress was on the left side yet inflammation was on the right. I would suggest an X-ray study in the case you mention.

PLASTICS AND ARTHRITIS

D. C. writes: Could a person develop arthritis from working with plastics in a factory ?

REPLY

No. Arthritis is common and the condition is bound to develop in persons from all walks of life. Some will be printers; others, lumberjacks, stenographers, or workers in a plastics factory.

BRONCHITIS

K. Y. writes: Every winter I develop bronchitis. Is this condition curable?

REPLY

Seasonal colds are curable but the condition you describe may require extensive medical detective work to find the cause. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on acute and chronic bronchitis.

Eisenhower Administration Isn't "Buying" Latin Friendship; Brazilian Loan Causes Hassle; Malenkov Doesn't Want War, May Blunder Into It

WASHINGTON — Some will-o'-the-wisp, sleight-of-hand diplomacy reminiscent of Truman days took place backstage before the Eisenhower administration granted the recent $300,000,000 loan to Brazil. The diplomats didn't know it, but it was Ike himself, not the State Department, who finally OK'd the loan. And the man who deftly secured Ike's OK was Fortune publisher C. D. Jackson now head of psychological warfare.

The inside story indicates the difficulty of forming a definite policy on foreign loans, especially to Latin America. Secretary of State Dulles announced some time ago that the Republicans would push the good-neighbor policy. But at the same time he himself almost reneged on the Brazilian loan, and in a conversation with suave Brazilian Ambassador Walther Moreira Salles, the new secretary of State made this rather undiplomatic remark:

"Don't forget, Mr. Ambassador," Dulles said, "the Republicans are in control now. We're not Democrats. We don't buy friendship."

"And Brazil's friendship," snapped the ambassador, "is not for sale."

Down On Brazil

Earlier the ambassador had met with something of a rebuff from Undersecretary of the Treasury Randolph Burgess when he called to discuss the loan.

"My boss doesn't like Brazil very much," Burgess stated bluntly, and went on to tell how the M. A. Hanna Company of which Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey was long the president, had been negotiating for the manganese concession in the territory of Amapa, north of the Amazon, when suddenly it found that Bethlehem steel got the concession instead.

Undersecretary Burgess, formerly of the National City Bank, a company which negotiated a sour loan of $100,000,000 to Peru in the 1920's, was one of the chief opponents of the current loan to Brazil. Finally he proposed that Brazil take one-third—or $100,000,000—instead of $300,000,000.

Simultaneously, Assistant Secretary of State Linder lectured the Brazilians about not letting American oil companies operate in Brazil.

"What does Brazil mean," he asked, "by blocking oil exploitation and then turning round and importing $280,000,000 worth of oil a year? You'll never be solvent."

When the result of these negotiations was cabled back to Brazil, it hit the front pages with a bang. "U. S. abandons Brazil!" flared the headlines. Other papers talked of Yankee imperialism wanting oil in return for a loan.

It was at this point that the ambassador called on Secretary Dulles held an hour-long session reminding him that Argentina—no friend of the U.S.A.—had received a healthy loan, that Brazil had come into two world wars on the side of the United States while Argentina flirted with the enemy. The ambassador's potent appeal partially converted Dulles.

But in the end, Nelson Rockefeller, who knows Latin-American problems better than anyone else around Washington, put the facts before C. D. Jackson inside the White House, and Jackson got them to Eisenhower. Overnight, the President acted where his secretary of State and secretary of the Treasury had delayed. The full loan to Brazil was OK'd.

Inside Russia

U. S. diplomats and intelligence experts have worked out some theories on why the new Kremlin has been shooting down and bulldozing U. S.-British planes, but so far no definite plan has been evolved as to what we should do about it.

Probable reasons behind the Red brazenness are:

1. To create the impression inside Russia that the Soviet is being attacked; must defend itself from the outside world.

2. To impress the satellite countries—where the Kremlin is weakest—that the new Kremlin is afraid of nothing, would deal ruthlessly with satellite revolt.

3. To impress the outside world that while the new Kremlin is willing to negotiate it's not afraid of anyone.

Chief danger in all this is that a weak and uncertain Kremlin may blunder into war. Malenkov probably doesn't want war, first because he doesn't entirely control the Red army, second because he doesn't control the secret police. But a dictator who isn't sure of himself, and who relies on airplane incidents, can always "incident" himself into war.

On the other hand, the fluid condition inside Russia presents a golden opportunity for the United States to pry open some diplomatic doors, later widen them. If we don't move now, then our only alternative is to prepare for war later. So far we're not moving.

Merry-Go-Round

Quoth the London Times' John Miller when he heard Ike planned to send thrice-married Fleur Cowles, wife of Look publisher Mike Cowles, as special ambassador to Queen Elizabeth's coronation: "Who does he think is getting crowned — the Duchess of Windsor?" Atomic Energy

If there is anything that few know about, it is atomic energy and what is being done by the Atomic Energy Commission. If there is anything that nobody, in or out of the government, can know anything about, it is what the future of the use of atomic energy can be, what changes will be wrought in our society because of it, what wonders research in this field will ultimately produce.

This subject ordinarily would be discussed openly in universities and in Congress. But we are at war. The enemy has already stolen some of our achievements in this field and is ready to steal everything we do. The perils, but not the benefits, of atomic fission are immediately upon us. Therefore, the very great secrecy is essential.

And it is because of this secrecy that the American people perhaps forget that there is an Atomic Energy Commission; that it is engaged in a great war of research in the use of fissionable materials in peace as well as war, for healing as well as destruction that it is stockpiling the atom and hydrogen bombs for our defense.

The present administration is looking for ways to save money and there are thousands of holes in the sieve called government that can be plugged up. Best opinion in Washington is that the Pentagon is probably the agency for the greatest waste.

But no one can actually know whether there is or is not waste in the work of the Atomic Energy Commission. Who is to place a limitation on the stockpiling of bombs? Who can know how many we shall have to use if the enemy attacks our country? There is no longer a shortage of fissionable materials; yet there are some who suggest that this would be a good time to stop stockpiling. Can anyone guarantee that there will be no shortage should war occur, despite the fact that most of the ores come from the Belgian Congo and Northwest Canada? We can be cut off from the source of supply.

Again, we must face the fact that the next war will not be fought as World War II was fought, just as World War II was not fought as World War I was fought. The existence of the atom bomb, of guided missiles, of the schnorkel and the atom-driven submarine, of supersonic airplanes and the widespread use of radar, and of many applications of electronics, have changed the techniques of warfare. The foot soldier, the ideal fighting force of the Pentagon, will probably become a small occupying and police force in the wars of the future, just as the horse cavalry began to disappear at the time when Herbert Hoover was President and Douglas MacArthur was his chief of staff.

Therefore, when the Bureau of the Budget seeks to save some money, let it keep its hands off the Atomic Energy Commission. That is one place where it is not safe, while we are actually at war, to make severe cuts. It would be safer to eliminate the expensive committee system in vogue in the Pentagon, a system which wastes time and money and gives the top brass and the governing civilians an alibi for avoiding direct responsibility. Group responsibility is expensive and confusing. This system was introduced by General George Marshall and can be discarded without any great loss.

But it would be foolhardy to make cuts in the work of the Atomic Eenergy Commission, particularly in relation to its researches. Often an administration seeking to avoid unpopularity, makes its cuts in obscure agencies, thus averting a quarrel with members of Congress who served vested interests in the expenditures.

Every citizen has a vested interest in the work of the Atomic Energy Commission, because each of our lives and the lives of our children are dependent upon the work of this agency of government. There is no private activity in this field; it is a government monopoly. Congress can keep it strong or reduce it to a sterile bureau of the administration. The Pentagon can take it over with the consent of Congress, and make it a soft-ball of inter-service politics.

This should be watched closely at this moment when the Bureau of the Budget is looking for something to lop off the government payroll.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — A clear-cut case for a naval blockade by the Western Allies on strategic materials destined for Red China from certain ports in Asia has been unwittingly made by the government of Ceylon.

Announcement that Ceylon, which is an independent British commonwealth, has rejected the pointed request of Anthony Eden, British Foreign secretary, that Ceylon refrain from shipping 250,000 tons of rubber to the Communist Chinese leaves only one course open — to seize the ships and confiscate their cargoes and, if they resist, to sink the vessels.

Mr. Eden and the British government acted in good faith in drawing to the attention of the Ceylon government so promptly the terms of the agreement reached with Secretary of State Dulles a fortnight ago in Washington. Under the terms of that agreement, Great Britain was to refuse permission to any ships to refuel in her ports if they were carrying strategic materials to Red China. But, since Polish ships are to carry Ceylon's rubber and these are Diesel-powered and will not have to put in at British ports en route to Red China, the only possible way to stop the cargoes is to stop the ships.

Activated By Money

The government of Ceylon professes to be opposed to communism and its doctrines, but says very frankly its own paramount interests is money. That's but another way of saying that the lives of American boys and British boys and French boys and all the other troops of the United Nations are not to be saved by depriving the Red Chinese of war materials and that financial gain is more important.

The Ceylon government had a chance to sell its rubber to the United States but insisted on trying to gouge the American government by demanding a high price. Indeed, the Red Chinese paid a 40 per cent premium above the world price to get the rubber, and they arranged to pay for it by shipping rice to Ceylon.

The American government, under the Truman administration, promised to obtain the rice for Ceylon's people and also started a negotiation for "Point Four" economic aid to Ceylon. But it became apparent soon that the government of this so-called free nation was engaged in blackmail.

Hence, the American government put a limit on the price of the rubber and the negotiations collapsed. Then Ceylon, deliberately disregarding the plight of the soldiers of the free world, arranged to send rubber to help the Red Chinese trucks carry their munitions and to equip Red planes to drop bombs so that the murder on the Korean front might be prolonged.

The words of the Ceylon government, in seeking a few weeks ago to justify its action, sound empty in the face of the conditions in Korea. It isn't as if Ceylon's people would have been deprived of rice or of money for their rubber at the price prevailing at the Singapore market, but profiteers would not have got as much profit. Yet, the Ceylon government's statement says:

"The government of Ceylon has shared and will always share the aspirations of the Western democratic world in the preservation of democratic institutions and the democratic way of life, but it does not consider the mere formulation of political slogans and political doctrines can replace the sincere purpose and a genuine will to cooperate internationally.

Payoff May Come

"In the present context, while the government of Ceylon is in complete sympathy with the democratic world in its opposition to communism, it cannot be a party to any policy which sacrifices economic well-being for political expediency and so is apt to produce just those undesirable consequences which are sought to be avoided or eliminated."

Paraphrasing the above, what it means realistically is that Ceylon claims to be opposed to communism and claims that it shares the aspirations of the West, but only as long as it cannot gain more profit by trading with the Communists than with the defenders of freedom in the world.

Americans have long memories and there may come a time when Ceylon will ask for admission to the United Nations or for "Point Four" aid from Congress. There may come a time when America will have to remember that, when the blood of her sons was flowing, the Ceylon government trafficked with the enemy and preferred to enrich itself. Under the circumstances, a naval blockade as well as a severance of diplomatic relations with Ceylon is in order. No diplomatic representatives of the Ceylon government should be permitted in Washington as long as the Ceylon rubber is being shipped to Red China to help kill American boys.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 19 (INS)—Some of the people on hand to cover the most recent test of an atomic device expressed themselves as disappointed. One lady who writes about Hollywood people was interviewed atop Mt. Charleston, about 40 miles from the scene and was prominently quoted as having been "let down."

Probably because it was unlike any the world has ever known, the A-bomb got off to a bad publicity start. The scientists who built it became political pundits and predicted direly that if their handiwork became a weapon in the hands of the military—whom the studious men held in contempt, intellectually — the world would be blown to bits.

A whole raft of left-wing writers, lecturers, critics, and radio commentators, obviously acting in concert, began blasting Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the military aspect of the bomb. A group of 60 scientists, who knew from the start that they were building a bomb (matter of fact, Albert Einstein, who was not considered security conscious enough to work on the bomb, was the first person to use the word "bomb" in connection with the release of atomic energy) tried to dictate how the military should use it.

Became Symbol Of Horror

When the War Department refused to submit to this pressure, because the purpose of the department was to end World War II as quickly as possible, one of the scientists publicly offered to die with the first bomb dropped on a city.

Anyway, the A-bomb became a symbol of horror. It would make the earth as barren as the moon. The left-wingers haven't been as articulate since it became known that Russia has one like it. Apparently, they are relieved, their chief complaint seems to have been that we wouldn't share it with Mother Russia in the first place.

The attitude of Joe Doakes, American, toward the bomb has become scrambled. Joe was told that this was the biggest thing since the deluge. He was told in advance by exuberant quasi-experts (in 1946) that the bomb would sink most of that obsolete fleet chained in Bikini lagoon. When it didn't sink the entire fleet, a suggestion of a shrug was noticeable.

A year ago last October at Frenchman Flat, Nev. a lot of us shuddered in the pre-dawn cold and scoffed at innocuous-appearing experiments by the AEC—including one bomb which I remember calling the "atomic grenade."

Bomb's Yield Improved

What we didn't know was that this country was forging ahead of Russia, which had stolen the original product, by learning how to graduate the size and power of the stupendous weapon. What we didn't know was that we were building up to the atomic cannon which will be fired soon at Yucca Flat. At the same time, we were learning how to improve the yield of a bomb to such a degree that bombs of this type could not be tested within the continental U. S., but had to be taken to far-off Eniwetok to be touched off. Apparently we have an A-bomb now with a power somewhere between 50 and 60 kiloton. At the maximum that would mean a bomb with an explosive substance hardly larger than a football) equal to 60,000 tons of TNT.

Perhaps, more importantly, we have a bomb that can be tuned down, made compact enough to be fitted into a 11-inch shell. When one considers the thickness of the hide of a shell, this means that the fantastic apparatus of detonating a nuclear mass has been reduced to something hardly as large as a midget radio.

That first atomic shell will produce about as much of a conflagration as the one which, last Tuesday, distressed the lady columnist and some others. The crust of the earth will not be cracked. Troops in foxholes a mile or so away will survive, and some disappointment will be expressed in nearby Las Vegas because it didn't break a window or turn over a "seven" into a "three" at a Sands Hotel dice table.

Momentous Moment

But when the first shot is fired the course of warfare (and thus history) will take a violently abrupt tack. It will be as momentous a moment as the introduction of the military elephant, the first use of the catapult, the first use of the bow and arrow, the crossbow, gunpowder, Mr. Churchill's tank, the first war plane.

None of this could be possible if we had not discovered ways and means of making atomic explosions less ferocious than those at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The fruit of this research, however, draws cynical statements which must persuade a lot of people to believe that the thing isn't what it was cracked up to be. We have bombs today which if touched off on the tower at Yucca Flat the other day would have destroyed not only "Doom Town," but probably Las Vegas, 75 miles away, and would have ruptured things in Los Angeles, 300 miles away. We also have a bomb which can be handled as safely, in shell form, as men handled cannon balls at Bull Run. It is this that has been scoffed at—though it may in time knock Red China out of Korea, save us billions of dollars a year, and force that lump to come up in Malenkov's throat, which could stop his hand.

Housing Unit Kitchen Bids To Be Asked

Bids will be asked in the near future to supply the kitchens in the Benjamin Banneker Housing Development on Frederick street, according to James M. Raines, executive director of the Cumberland Housing Authority.

The 30 kitchens in the low-rent apartment house for Negroes will be supplied with stoves and refrigerators, Raines said.

As of the first of this month, work on the three story structure was 40 per cent completed by the contractor, the John I. Vandegrift Company.

Raines also said he has received information from the New York regional office of the Public Housing Administration that bonds to cover both Jane Frazier and Benjamin Banneker Homes will be offered on the market soon.

The Cumberland Housing Authority, Raines said, has received authority to sell bonds in the immediate future.

The permanent financing procedure calls for the issuing of $1,700,000 bonds which will mature in 40 years, the director said. This type of bond has been selling on the market for interest rates from 2¼ to 2½ per cent.

The work on the completed Jane Frazier Village, 125-unit dwelling project at Mapleside and the Benjamin Banneker job has been done under temporary financing of the Public Housing Administration.

Raines said a housing authority is allowed up to 90 per cent of the total cost of its projects under the temporary set up.

Mt. Savage Students Visit Court House

A group of students from the new Mt. Savage High School visited the Court House yesterday as part of their training program.

Highlight of their visit was attendance at a trial in Circuit Court with Associate Judge George Henderson presiding. The jurist lectured the group concerning the part played inour American way of life by the judicial branch of government.

Clerk of the Court Joseph E. Boden conducted the boys and girls on a tour of the various other offices at the Court House, including the photostat room where various documents are reproduced on an elaborate device.

Schraeder Faces Bigamy Charge

Heinz Albert Schraeder, alias Johann Albert Schroeter, this city, is free under $2,000 bond on a bigamy charge preferred by his first wife, Elsie.

The criminal docket of Trial Magistrate J. Milton Dick states that the defendant "on May 30, 1952 in Cumberland, having a wife then living, feloniously married Betty Jane Wilson." Norman Kline posted bond for Schraeder.

Authorities indicated the case will be presented to the grand jury at the April term of Circuit Court.

RAY BLOSE

Blose Named To Bank Post

Ray Blose of Rural Valley, Pa., in Butler County, has been named an assistant cashier of First National Bank to head the firm's new charge account department, Albert W. Tindal, president, announced yesterday.

Under the plan, merchants affiliate and the bank handles their credit buying for them. The individual who participates can shop at member stores and get one bill monthly which is handled through the bank, Tindal pointed out.

Blose was associated with the Rural Valley National Bank and its successor, Peoples National Bank of Rural Valley, from 1924 to 1946.

In December 1946 he became affiliated with the Lawrence Savings and Trust Company of New Castle, Pa., being assistant secretary and assistant manager of the firm's Ellwood City, Pa., branch.

Blose is married and the father of four children, Barbara, 16; Betsy, 13; John, 7; and Jerry, 6.

Schools Alloted Turkey, Butter

Students in Allegany County schools will be feeding "high on the hog" in the next few weeks as a result of the generosity of Uncle Sam in providing foods purchased in the subsidy program.

A total of 10,000 pounds of fresh frozen turkey was delivered to the county this week for use in the various schools as part of the lunch program, according to William P. Cooper, director of school cafeterias.

In addition to the turkey, a shipment of 7,000 pounds of butter will also be received within a short time from government cold storage.

There's surprising variety in the foodstuffs the schools receive absolutely free from the federal subsidy program. This year school menus have been enlivened by gifts of ham, pork shoulder, eggs, pecans, dried prunes, American cheese, dried beans, canned peaches, sour cherries, peas, tomato paste, canned snap beans, tomatoes, orange concentrate, honey, peanut butter and apples.

All these items have been declared surplus under federal price control an dsupport projects and have no price tag for the schools. The single infinitesimal expense is transportation from the Baltimore distribution center to this county.

Armed Forces To Pay Recalled Officers $100

Cumberland area commissioned officers who have gone on active duty in the armed forces since the Korean war begin will be $100 richer soon.

The various branches of service feel that officers themselves paid that much on an average to buy uniforms and equipment not covered by past allowances. It was authorized by Congress in 1952.

The money will go to those who have been released from active duty, as well as those now serving. To get the payment, each officer must file a claim.

Federation Supports Proposal

Clubwomen yesterday announced their support of President Eisenhower's proposal to place commissions of education, health and welfare under the Federal Security Agency with cabinet rank.

Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and her executive committee, said the plan is one the GFWC has backed in resolutions since 1904.

While formally commending the President's plan, the executive committee informally expressed its pleasure that the proposed head of such an administrative department is a woman, Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby.

Federation resolutions seeking cabinet status for health or education departments were passed by the GFWC in 1904, 1910, 1920, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925 and 1926.

The General Federation's first resolution in 1904 advocated enactment of legislation that would provide "a department of education whose head shall be a cabinet officer."

In 1910 the General Federation supported a bill "to establish a national department of health under a secretary who shall be a member of the president's cabinet."

A succeeding resolution recommended creation of a department of education and appropriations by Congress to encourage the states in "the removal of illiteracy, the promotion of health education, sanitation, recreation and the preparation of better trained and better paid teachers."

In commending the President's proposal, Mrs. Ahlgren said, "The establishment of a department of education, health and welfare is entirely consistent with the thinking of clubwomen for the last 49 years. Such a department can supply both information and leadership in fields that are of particular interest to women. It has been the women of America who have assumed the responsibility of national health through the family unit. Women have constantly agitated for improvement of the educational systems and women always have taken an active part in welfare projects at the community and state level."

Federation Supports Proposal

Clubwomen yesterday announced their support of President Eisenhower's proposal to place commissions of education, health and welfare under the Federal Security Agency with cabinet rank.

Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and her executive committee, said the plan is one the GFWC has backed in resolutions since 1904.

While formally commending the President's plan, the executive committee informally expressed its pleasure that the proposed head of such an administrative department is a woman, Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby.

Federation resolutions seeking cabinet status for health or education departments were passed by the GFWC in 1904, 1910, 1920, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925 and 1926.

The General Federation's first resolution in 1904 advocated enactment of legislation that would provide "a department of education whose head shall be a cabinet officer."

In 1910 the General Federation supported a bill "to establish a national department of health under a secretary who shall be a member of the president's cabinet."

A succeeding resolution recommended creation of a department of education and appropriations by Congress to encourage the states in "the removal of illiteracy, the promotion of health education, sanitation, recreation and the preparation of better trained and better paid teachers."

In commending the President's proposal, Mrs. Ahlgren said, "The establishment of a department of education, health and welfare is entirely consistent with the thinking of clubwomen for the last 49 years. Such a department can supply both information and leadership in fields that are of particular interest to women. It has been the women of America who have assumed the responsibility of national health through the family unit. Women have constantly agitated for improvement of the educational systems and women always have taken an active part in welfare projects at the community and state level."

Your children are sure to imitate your speech habits. Set them an example worth copying!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Listen to the voices of your children if you wish to learn the truth about your own speech habits. Any woman who shouts at her children, admonishing them in harsh phrases and pitch should never be surprised, annoyed or disappointed to find them speaking in the same way. Above all, speech is imitative. During the first six years of a child's life, speech patterns and practices are acquired that imitate and reflect what has been heard at home.

Ask any grade school teacher and she will tell you that the problems any pupil has with grammar and speech are relative to the kind of language the child has heard at home. The child who is exposed to incorrect usage and grating voices has two strikes against him when he enters school; until he can be freed of these handicaps his acquisition of knowledge is sure to be slowed.

Parroted Speech

Many a child has been unjustly punished for parroting his mother's tone in chiding him. To avoid any unfortunate "back talk" from her children, a mother should address them only in polite words and a calm tone. She can be as firm as any situation may demand, but remembering their initative powers, she should take care that her children hear from her only what she would care to have them emulate.

Setting your children the kind of example you would like to see them follow is actually far easier than speaking less carefully. Over a period of time, you will discover that the control and thought this effort costs will be far less than the toll taken in correcting their speech practices. Furthermore, it will contribute to an atmosphere in your home that even the neighbors will note and try to imitate.

Good Speech At Home

Much of your own charm and that of your children—the smoothness of their future life—depends on what you say today, the words, grammar and voice you use, the scope of your vocabulary and the care you take in your pronunciations. More and more mothers are realizing this and so have asked me to help in improving hearthside talk and tone. Toward this end, a series of columns has been planned which will appear from time to time in the future. In the meantime, send for a copy of our booklet, "Your Most Attractive Voice." It will provide you with comprehensive instruction on making what you say pleasant to the ear.

YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE

You can achieve an appealing, resonant, sonorous voice — one that can be a vibrant attribute to charm and success — by reading the new booklet, YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE, which gives complete instructions on how to overcome such wearisome speaking qualities as tonelessness, dullness and lack of proper modulation. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c in coin, plus self-addressed, stamped envelope.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—There is nothing like the calm, relaxing hours after a long poker game to make a man feel reflective and meditative. He philosophizes about darn near everything. The last time I drew a straight flush, for example, I philosophized myself dreamily into the fender of a car at 42nd and Fifth and ended up doing a stretch in Bellevue with a bent back.

At the game the other night I drew no straight flushes; au contraire. I was thus in a dark mood as I headed cross-town on the way home, and when I dropped into one of the theaters to catch an act of one of the new dramatic hits I was ready to be pretty glumly philosophical about almost anything. I didn't have long to wait. I found a topic by intermission time. Why do New Yorkers have to keep up with the Joneses?

If there's one place in the world where actually nobody cares whether you drive a $10,000 car or a $1,500 one, whether you pay $40 or $500 monthly rent—or, in short, where nobody cares a great deal what you do at all—it's New York. Yet, in that theater lobby, everybody was keeping up with the Joneses.

The production was an artistic one. A couple of big names were in it, the author was so literarily blue-blooded it hurts and the entire show was given in a solemn, reverent tone of sheer tragedy, like some of the Eugene O'Neill plays that are so stark they become burlesque and you find yourself giggling.

When this play opened, the Manhattan critics — who are not too skillful, it must be admitted sadly—coughed politely, cleared their throats pontifically and announced in print that Great Art had come to town. The theater housing this play became Mecca. It became the place to go.

Only one thing was wrong. The play was a pretentious, deadly dull, artistically laborious bore.

Here, however, were the New Yorkers in the lobby, keeping up with the Joneses. Being clear-headed and melancholy from missing inside straights earlier, I had sat on my hands during that first act. I recognize art as quickly as the next poseur but this was not it. This was high school art. The production was worse than the Cherry Sisters.

As they came out into the lobby for that furtive intermission smoke, the customers were only momentarily sad-looking. As they made their entrances into the mob, their faces lighted up magically.

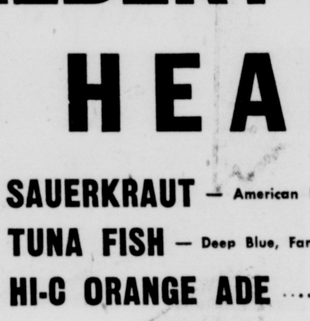

"Isn't this the greatest?" they said. "Oh, my dear, it's absolutely superb!" they said. "I wouldn't have missed it," they said. "I don't say it's better than Barrymore's Hamlet, but it's at least as good," they said.

They said a lot more but it was all along those lines. Nobody would admit he had been squirming in his seat, wishing he was home watching Sid Caesar or some other entertainment that was at least professional. Nobody would admit he had been bored. They were watching a Classic. In the presence of Classics, if you keep up with the Joneses, you are properly awed. You speak only in superlatives. You look sidewise at your neighbor, you note that he's not going to be the one who breaks down and says hootingly "ehhh," so you go along with the gag. You rave, dutifully.

The New Yorker is so famous for his indifference to public opinion, his insistence on a dollar's worth for each dollar paid — that I couldn't believe my ears. I could see this theatrical monstrosity going on for weeks and months. Only when the poor, artistically unconscious suburbanites came to town, would it receive anything like a true evaluation. The suburbanite bends over backward to escape Art. He distrusts it.

I felt so depressed that, suddenly, I felt a kinship toward a local saloon keeper whom I can't stand—but who said honestly, during the intermission of one Classic, "I bet I'm the only guy in the joint who's going back in to see how this thing comes out." He was, of course, wrong. The New Yorker, average, wouldn't know Art if it hit him in the face. Only he'll never let the Joneses know. I wish I understood why.

Pantry Shelf-- Boon To Homemakers

The fruit cellar of grandmother's day has moved upstairs to the kitchen and now holds an eminent position in the modern home as a pantry shelf. Here the change which the years have wrought is great. While grandmother necessarily prepared most of her own food for storage, the modern homemaker has only to make an occasional trip to the market to keep her shelf well stocked—and with a wide assortment of packaged and canned foods that would have made grandmother's eyes pop with wonderment.

Modern homemakers have found this pantry shelf not only a convenience, but almost a necessity. With so many activities outside of their homes, quickly prepared foods are important to the preparation of good and well balanced meals. No matter how busy you are, meals need not suffer when there's a well stocked pantry shelf to pick from.

This recipe for Chicken Sub Gum is a combination of three pantry items which should always be found on any complete pantry shelf, packaged pre-cooked rice, which gives you fluffy white rice in minutes, canned soup and canned chicken. By combining the three you have a simply prepared, but delicious dinner mainstay.

Chicken Sub Gum

1⅓ cups packaged pre-cooked rice
1½ cups water
½ teaspoon salt
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can cream of celery soup
⅓ cup milk
2 teaspoons soy sauce
1 cup slivered cooked chicken
Dash of pepper
¼ cup toasted almonds

Combine rice, water, and salt in saucepan. Mix just until all rice is moistened. Bring quickly to a boil over high heat, uncovered, fluffing rice gently once or twice with a fork. (Do not stir.) Cover and remove from heat. Let stand 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine soups, milk, and soy sauce in saucepan. Mix well to blend. Heat, stirring occasionally. Add chicken and pepper. Mix and heat thoroughly.

Arrange rice in serving dish. Top with chicken and sauce. Sprinkle almonds over top. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

Here's Proper Way To Broil Meats

Steaks and chops are perhaps the meat cuts most frequently considered for broiling. However, there are many more cuts you may prepare by this method. Broiling is an excellent way of cooking a quantity of bacon, or Canadian-style bacon, as well as beef and lamb patties, to name a few.

Two meats are not broiled — fresh pork and veal. This is because pork is always cooked to the well-done stage. And in broiling it may become brown on the outside without being cooked well done throughout. Veal is not broiled because it lacks sufficient fat covering.

For this cookery method, first set your oven regulator to "broil." Then place the meat on the broiler rack and adjust the pan so that the top of the meat is 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Meat cut 1 inch thick should be 2 inches from the heat, 2 inches thick, 3 inches from the heat. For best results in cooking steaks have them cut at least 1 inch thick, chops ¾ inch thick.

Broil the meat until brown. This is an indication that the meat is cooked halfway through. Then season with salt and pepper. Always season broiled meat after it is browned. Then turn the meat and broil on the second side. For a test as to the doneness, cut a gash in the meat next to the bone and note the color. Follow a reliable timetable for broiling to the desired degree of doneness.

Quick Casserole

For a tempting casserole combine smoked shoulder butt and green lima beans. Line bottom of casserole with slices of cooked shoulder butt. Then cover with cooked lima beans mixed with salt and grated cheese. Arrange remaining slices of the shoulder butt on top of casseroles. Sprinkle with additional grated cheese. Heat in a slow oven (300°F.) for 20 minutes.

Corn Meal Hush Puppies Satisfy 'Growling' Tummies

There is an exceptional taste treat in store for you any time the table fare calls for a flavorful bread to go along with a meal. Whether it's a party for friends or just an every day dinner for the family, you'll find Hush Puppies the corn meal food to delight hard-to-please appetites.

High in nutritive value yet low in cost, Hush Puppies make a delightful service when combined with vegetables, meat, fish or poultry. And they're extra good when served with fresh, boiled shrimp, too. You can serve them with every meal, any time of the day or night, and you'll have the family coming back for more.

Whatever the occasion, prepare Hush Puppies and you'll make meal-time so nice to come home to.

Hush Puppies

2 cups white corn meal*; 2 teaspoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ cup finely chopped onions; 2 cups sweet milk.

Combine dry ingredients and sift together. Add onion and milk and blend well. Preheat deep fat to 365°F., dip tablespoon into hot fat and then into mixture, shaping each spoonful slightly to make fairly round. Drop into hot fat and cook until well browned. Yield: 15-20 hush puppies.

*To use yellow corn meal, decrease corn meal to 1½cups and add ¾ cup all-purpose flour. (Do not sift yellow corn meal.); decrease milk to 1½ cups.

Deviled Cheese Toastwich

¼ cup soft butter or margarine; 12 slices enriched bread; 6 tablespoons deviled ham; 6 slices process American cheese; 2 eggs, beaten slightly; ⅓ cup milk; ¼ cup shortening.

Butter bread. Make sandwiches by placing 1 tablespoon deviled ham and 1 slice American cheese between slices of buttered bread. Combine beaten eggs and milk. Dip each sandwich into egg mixture, turning it to coat both sides. Brown sandwich, on both sides, in small amount of hot shortening in a skillet. Serve immediately.

Yield: 6 Deviled-Cheese Sandwiches.

Save Meat By Correct Roasting

Are you making work for yourself when you roast meat? The fact is the correct method of roasting meat is just about the simplest possible. And you follow this same method whether it be a beef, veal, fresh or cured pork, or lamb roast.

Here are the simple steps for you to follow:

(1.) Season the roast with salt and pepper. Actually this may be done before, after or during roasting. It makes no difference since salt penetrates the meat to less than one-half inch.

(2.) Place meat on a rack in a shallow open roasting pan. A rack is not necessary for a standing rib of beef or a pork loin roast as these form a natural rack that keeps the meat up off the bottom of the pan. With the meat placed fat side up, basting is entirely eliminated.

(3.) If you have a roast meat thermometer, insert it into the largest meat muscle before you place the roast in the oven. The bulb should not rest in fat or on bone. Use a reliable timetable to determine the approximate cooking time.

(4.) Do not add water. Do not cover.

(5.) Roast in a slow oven. A temperature of 300° F. is recommended for beef, veal, cured pork, and lamb. Fresh pork should be roasted at 350° F.

(6.) Cook to the desired degree of doneness. Beef may be rare, medium or well done. Lamb is served either medium or well done. Veal and pork are always cooked to the well-done stage. Plan roasting time so the meat may "set" in a warm place for 30 minutes after it is roasted. This makes carving easier.

Braised Meat Cubes

Prepare beef cubes by the same method as Swiss steaks or country-fried steak. Dredge the beef with flour, then brown slowly in lard or drippings. Season, then add ½ cup water and cook slowly for 1 hour. At the end of this time add sliced mushrooms, then continue cooking until the meat is tender, about thirty minutes. Thicken the liquid for gravy.

Baked Desserts Favored Made With Fresh Pears

Fragrant and spicy are these pear dumplings baked in a homespun manner. Whole pears are encased in rich pastry to hold in the sweet juice of the fruit.

The sugar syrup, spicy with cinnamon and tangy with lemon juice is poured over the uncooked dumplings. As it bubbles away in the baking, the juice thickens to become a rich, thick sauce which enhances the pear dumplings.

As the pastry bakes to a golden brown the pear is gently cooked to a turn, producing a dessert that is hearty and enticing. Dip some of the sauce over the dumpling and serve with sweet cream.

PEAR DUMPLINGS

5 medium sized pears
⅔ cup sugar
1½ cup water
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅓ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
Juice of one lemon
Pastry for 9" double pie crust

Place the sugar, water, butter and cinnamon in a saucepan and let boil for three minutes. Roll out pastry ⅛' thick and cut in 8" squares. Pare and core pears and place in center of each pastry square. Fill cavities of pears with mixture of sugar, cinnamon and lemon juice. Fold opposite points of pastry over the top of the pear, moisten with water and seal. Place in baking dish and pour hot syrup around dumplings. Bake in hot oven 425 degrees for 35 minutes or until done. Serve with sweet cream.

Pears Polynesian Lend Atmosphere To Meal

Pears Polynesian is an appropriate dessert for informal buffet or dinner service. Choose your prettiest platter or bowl and arrange the fruits so that they show to best advantage. The snowy white coconut and the bright red of the cherries dramatizes the pear and pineapple combination.

Creamy, flavorful canned Bartlett pears from Pacific coast orchards are picked and canned at the peak of their juicy goodness. They're tops in taste and quality. Their firm flesh has a delicate but palate-pleasing flavor that is especially pleasing with a highly seasoned or filling meal.

Broiled Western Pears For Taste Treats

Broiled pears are versatile, and fit into many a role. They may be used as a meat accompaniment, a salad or a dessert.

Halve and core fresh pears and place on broiler pan about 6 inches below the source of heat. It will require about 7 or 8 minutes to broil the pears, depending upon their ripeness.

For a meat accompaniment, top pears with a bit of butter and brown sugar. Put under broiler unit and broil until barely tender, about 7 minutes.

A broiled pear may become a salad if topped with mayonnaise when about half done. The mayonnaise will bubble and brown under the direct heat.

A dessert may be quickly and easily prepared by topping a ripe pear half with a sweet fruit sauce. Or, put a marshmallow on top of the pear when it is just tender and permit the marshmallow to brown slightly and melt to form a sauce with the juice of the pear.

There are many ways to fix broiled pears. These are only a few suggestions. Try them and broiled pears will find a permanent place in your cooking repertoire.

Baked Desserts Favored Made With Fresh Pears

Fragrant and spicy are these pear dumplings baked in a homespun manner. Whole pears are encased in rich pastry to hold in the sweet juice of the fruit.

The sugar syrup, spicy with cinnamon and tangy with lemon juice is poured over the uncooked dumplings. As it bubbles away in the baking, the juice thickens to become a rich, thick sauce which enhances the pear dumplings.

As the pastry bakes to a golden brown the pear is gently cooked to a turn, producing a dessert that is hearty and enticing. Dip some of the sauce over the dumpling and serve with sweet cream.

PEAR DUMPLINGS

5 medium sized pears
⅔ cup sugar
1½ cup water
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅓ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
Juice of one lemon
Pastry for 9" double pie crust

Place the sugar, water, butter and cinnamon in a saucepan and let boil for three minutes. Roll out pastry ⅛" thick and cut in 8" squares. Pare and core pears and place in center of each pastry square. Fill cavities of pears with mixture of sugar, cinnamon and lemon juice. Fold opposite points of pastry over the top of the pear, moisten with water and seal. Place in baking dish and pour hot syrup around dumplings. Bake in hot oven 425 degrees for 35 minutes or until done. Serve with sweet cream.

Pears Polynesian Lend Atmosphere To Meal

For a tropical treat that is as delicious to eat as it is delightful to behold serve Pears Polynesian. In this simple but smart dessert, canned Bartlett pear halves are combined with crushed pineapple and shredded coconut. The dessert is a refreshing and colorful final touch to a full course company meal.

Pears Polynesian is an appropriate dessert for informal buffet or dinner service. Choose your prettiest platter or bowl and arrange the fruits so that they show to best advantage. The snowy white coconut and the bright red of the cherries dramatizes the pear and pineapple combination.

Creamy, flavorful canned Bartlett pears from Pacific coast orchards are picked and canned at the peak of their juicy goodness. They're tops in taste and quality. Their firm flesh has a delicate but palate-pleasing flavor that is especially pleasing with a highly seasoned or filling meal.

Be sure to have table ready canned Bartlett pears on the shelf for use in many attractive and tasteful ways. The nutritious pear is a versatile fruit—excellent in salads, as a meat accompaniment, as a breakfast fruit, in elegant and simple desserts and for between meal snacks.

PEARS POLYNESIAN

1 No. 2½ can Bartlett pear halves
1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple
1 cup shredded coconut
Maraschino cherries

Make a bed of pineapple and coconut on platter or bowl. Arrange pear halves cut side up on top of pineapple and coconut. Place maraschino cherry in cavity of each pear half. In serving place pear half with a spoonful of pineapple-coconut mixture in each dessert plate or sauce dish. Serves eight or more.

Jiffy Pear Salad

3 firm ripe pears
Juice of 1 lemon
1 3 oz. package cream cheese
1 lb. can whole cranberry sauce

Cut pears in halves. Remove core. Brush pears with lemon juice. Divide cream cheese in six cubes, then form into balls. Put in cavities of pear halves. Arrange pear halves in lettuce cups on salad plates. Top cheese-filled pears with whole cranberry sauce. Garnish with mayonnaise. Serve 6.

Diced Pear Salad

2 cups diced pears
Juice of ½ lemon
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup broken walnuts
6 marshmallows, quarters
¼ cup mayonnaise

Wash, core and dice pears. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Combine with celery, walnuts, marshmallows and mayonnaise and toss lightly. Chill thoroughly. Serve on crisp lettuce.

The Rio Grande is the largest river in Mexico.

Broiled Western Pears For Taste Treats

Broiled pears are versatile, and fit into many a role. They may be used as a meat accompaniment, a salad or a dessert.

Halve and core fresh pears and place on broiler pan about 6 inches below the source of heat. It will require about 7 or 8 minutes to broil the pears, depending upon their ripeness.

For a meat accompaniment, top pears with a bit of butter and brown sugar. Put under broiler unit and broil until barely tender, about 7 minutes.

A broiled pear may become a salad if topped with mayonnaise when about half done. The mayonnaise will bubble and brown under the direct heat.

A dessert may be quickly and easily prepared by topping a ripe pear half with a sweet fruit sauce. Or, put a marshmallow on top of the pear when it is just tender and permit the marshmallow to brown slightly and melt to form a sauce with the juice of the pear.

There are many ways to fix broiled pears. These are only a few suggestions. Try them and broiled pears will find a permanent place in your cooking repertoire.

Sugar 'n' Spice 'n' Everything Nice--Goes With Grapefruit

TANGY Florida grapefruit halves are a boon to hurried meal-planners, for with variations in toppings they'll please every member of the family. Those who like things tart and on the sharp side may add salt or nutmeg, or eat the fruit plain. The sweet-tooths have a wide choice—honey, brown sugar, maple syrup, or molasses. And for a special flavor treat, put a spoonful of warm mincemeat in the center of each half. Sharp French dressing ladled over the sections is mighty good eating, too, as a dinner appetizer.

The fruit which Florida is shipping to all parts of the country now is of excellent quality. There is both the pretty pink-fleshed fruit and the white-meated; seeded or seedless varieties. When you purchase grapefruit, pick out the plump, heavy ones, and be sure to get the most for your money.

To prepare for serving, cut fruit in half; with a sharp knife, cut around each section, loosening fruit from dividing membranes; do not cut around entire outer edge of fruit. Serve with any of the toppings mentioned, or dot with butter and put under your broiler until slightly browned on top. Broiled grapefruit is a good winter dessert, and one that's as good for you as it is good to eat.

Breakfast Special

Appetites will quicken when this morning meal special is served. Plan a Sunday breakfast around fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter, then add the "something special"—softly scrambled eggs topped with a sprinkling of crisp corn soya shreds.

Fruited Pork Steaks

4 pork shoulder steaks
Flour, salt, paprika
2 cooking apples (Jonothan, Winesap or Rome Beauty)
Raisins, brown sugar.

Trim fat from edge of pork steaks and fry out in a large skillet or Dutch oven. Remove pieces. Flour pork steaks and brown on both sides in hot fat. Sprinkle each side with salt and paprika. Pour off excess fat. Core apples, but do not pare; cut into thick slices. Top each steak with one or two apple slices and fill centers with raisins. Sprinkle apples with brown sugar. Pour ¼ cup water around steaks, cover and cook over low heat for 45 minutes or until steaks are tender. Baste once or twice during cooking with liquid in pan. Add more water, if needed. (If desired, pork steaks may be baked with the fruit in a large covered baking dish at 350°F. for 45 minutes.) 4 servings.

Glorified sweet potatoes: Cook sweet potatoes in jackets; peel and whip with butter, brown sugar and orange juice to suit taste. Place in a greased casserole, sprinkle with nuts and bake at 350°F. for 15-20 minutes.

Oysters For Lenten Meals

Creamed Oysters

1 pint oysters (well drained and chopped coarse)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons cream
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Melt butter in a saucepan; add flour and blend well. Stir in cream and enough oyster liquor to make ¾ cup. Add seasonings. When sauce is smooth and boiling, add chopped oysters. Bring to boiling point. Stir in well beaten egg yolks. Cook one minute, or until thick. Fill individual patty shells or serve on toast.

Lumbering employs 8,000 persons in Idaho.

Salads For Easter Turkey

Flower-pink cranberry salads bring a touch of Spring to the Easter table. They're jeweled with cubes of ruby red cranberry sauce and so easy-to-make. Takes only seconds to fold ingredients together and spoon into your most festive mold for overnight chilling. Make the salads in advance and forget about them 'til dinner time. Cranberry salads are good-eating with turkey or ham. The colorful red sauce is a "must" with turkey whenever it's served.

Cranberry Fluff Salad

1 envelope unflavored gelatine; ¼ cup cold water; ¼ cup chopped nuts; 1 pound can whole cranberry sauce; 1 cup sour cream, whipped;.

Place gelatine in custard cup. Add cold water. Soften for 2 minutes. Place cup with softened gelatine in pan of boiling water until gelatine dissolves. Add to whole cranberry sauce. Fold in whipped sour cream and chopped nuts. Pour into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold and serve in lettuce cups.

Cranberry Party Salads

14 marshmallows; 2 tablespoons orange or pineapple juice; ⅛ teaspoon peppermint extract; ½ cup cream, whipped; 1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce, cubed; ¼ cup mayonnaise.

Put marshmallows and fruit juice over low heat, folding until marshmallows are melted. Remove from heat. Add flavoring. Fold in cranberry cubes, mayonnaise, and whipped cream. Pour into individual molds and chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold garnish with sprigs of mint. Makes 4 large individual molds or 6 small molds.

Make these salads for the Easter ham.

Cranberry Grapefruit Salad

Cut chilled canned jellied cranberry sauce in half-inch slices; then cut each slice in half. Arrange alternate sections of either fresh or canned grapefruit and the half-circles of cranberry sauce in lettuce cups, allowing two sections of grapefruit and three of cranberry sauce for each salad. Serve with French dressing.

Frozen Cranberry-Pineapple Salad

1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple, drained (1½ cups) 1 pound can whole cranberry sauce ½ pint dairy-made sour cream; ¼ cup pecans, coarsely chopped.

Combine all ingredients and spoon into an 8-inch square cake pan if the freezing unit in your refrigerator or food freezer will accommodate it otherwise, use a 1-quart refrigerator ice-cube tray. Freeze with control at highest point, for several hours or overnight if more convenient. To serve, cut in squares (or slices) and arrange on crisp lettuce. Makes 8 to 9 servings.

Mocha Frosting

½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup cocoa
4 teaspoons instant coffee
3 tablespoons unsulphured molasses
2 egg yolks
4 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon milk

Mix first 5 ingredients together until fluffy. Gradually add confectioners' sugar and milk. Spread over top and sides of a 10"-tube cake or on tops and sides of two 9-inch layers. Decorate with candles and icing forced through decorator's tube.

Sugar 'n' Spice 'n' Everything Nice--Goes With Grapefruit

TANGY Florida grapefruit halves are a boon to hurried meal-planners, for with variations in toppings they'll please every member of the family. Those who like things tart and on the sharp side may add salt or nutmeg, or eat the fruit plain. The sweet-tooths have a wide choice—honey, brown sugar, maple syrup, or molasses. And for a special flavor treat, put a spoonful of warm mincemeat in the center of each half. Sharp French dressing ladled over the sections is mighty good eating, too, as a dinner appetizer.

The fruit which Florida is shipping to all parts of the country now is of excellent quality. There is both the pretty pink-fleshed fruit and the white-meated seeded or seedless varieties. When you purchase grapefruit, pick out the plump, heavy ones, and be sure to get the thin-skinned ones to get the most for your money.

To prepare for serving, cut fruit in half with a sharp knife, cut around each section, loosening fruit from dividing membranes; do not cut around entire outer edge of fruit. Serve with any of the toppings mentioned, or dot with butter and put under your broiler until slightly browned on top. Broiled grapefruit is a good winter dessert, and one that's as good for you as it is good to eat.

Breakfast Special

Appetites will quicken when this morning meal special is served. Plan a Sunday breakfast around fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter, then add the "something special"—softly scrambled eggs topped with a sprinkling of crisp corn soya shreds.

Fruited Pork Steaks

4 pork shoulder steaks
Flour, salt, paprika
2 cooking apples (Jonothan, Winesap or Rome Beauty)
Raisins, brown sugar.

Trim fat from edge of pork steaks and fry out in a large skillet or Dutch oven. Remove pieces. Flour pork steaks and brown on both sides in hot fat. Sprinkle each side with salt and paprika. Pour off excess fat. Core apples, but do not pare; cut into thick slices. Top each steak with one or two apple slices and fill centers with raisins. Sprinkle apples with brown sugar. Pour ¼ cup water around steaks, cover and cook over low heat for 45 minutes or until steaks are tender. Baste once or twice during cooking with liquid in pan. Add more water, if needed. (If desired, pork steaks may be baked with the fruit in a large covered baking dish at 350°F. for 45 minutes.) 4 servings.

Glorified sweet potatoes: Cook sweet potatoes in jackets; peel and whip with butter, brown sugar and orange juice to suit taste. Place in a greased casserole, sprinkle with nuts and bake at 350°F. for 15-20 minutes.

Oysters For Lenten Meals

Creamed Oysters

1 pint oysters (well drained and chopped coarse)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons cream
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Melt butter in a saucepan; add flour and blend well. Stir in cream and enough oyster liquor to make ¾ cup. Add seasonings. When sauce is smooth and boiling, add chopped oysters. Bring to boiling point. Stir in well beaten egg yolks. Cook one minute, or until thick. Fill individual patty shells or serve on toast.

Lumbering employs 8,000 persons in Idaho.

Salads For Easter Turkey

Flower-pink cranberry salads bring a touch of Spring to the Easter table. They're jeweled with cubes of ruby red cranberry sauce and so easy-to-make. Takes only seconds to fold ingredients together and spoon into your most festive mold for overnight chilling. Make the salads in advance and forget about them 'til dinner time. Cranberry salads are good-eating with turkey or ham. The colorful red sauce is a "must" with turkey whenever it's served.

Cranberry Fluff Salad

1 envelope unflavored gelatine; ¼ cup cold water; ¼ cup chopped nuts; 1 pound can whole cranberry sauce; 1 cup sour cream, whipped;.

Place gelatine in custard cup. Add cold water. Soften for 2 minutes. Place cup with softened gelatine in pan of boiling water until gelatine dissolves. Add to whole cranberry sauce. Fold in whipped sour cream and chopped nuts. Pour into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold and serve in lettuce cups.

Cranberry Party Salads

14 marshmallows; 2 tablespoons orange or pineapple juice; ⅛ teaspoon peppermint extract; ½ cup cream, whipped; 1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce, cubed; ¼ cup mayonnaise.

Put marshmallows and fruit juice over low heat, folding until marshmallows are melted. Remove from heat. Add flavoring. Fold in cranberry cubes, mayonnaise, and whipped cream. Pour into individual molds and chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold, garnish with sprigs of mint. Makes 4 large individual molds or 6 small molds.

Make these salads for the Easter ham.

Cranberry Grapefruit Salad

Cut chilled canned jellied cranberry sauce in half-inch slices; then cut each slice in half. Arrange alternate sections of either fresh or canned grapefruit and the half-circles of cranberry sauce in lettuce cups, allowing two sections of grapefruit and three of cranberry sauce for each salad. Serve with French dressing.

Frozen Cranberry-Pineapple Salad

1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple, drained (1½ cups) 1 pound can whole cranberry sauce ½ pint dairy-made sour cream; ¼ cup pecans, coarsely chopped.

Combine all ingredients and spoon into an 8-inch square cake pan if the freezing unit in your refrigerator or food freezer will accommodate it otherwise, use a 1-quart refrigerator ice-cube tray. Freeze with control at highest point, for several hours or overnight if more convenient. To serve, cut in squares (or slices) and arrange on crisp lettuce. Makes 8 to 9 servings.

Mocha Frosting

½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup cocoa
4 teaspoons instant coffee
3 tablespoons unsulphured molasses
2 egg yolks
4 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon milk

Mix first 5 ingredients together until fluffy. Gradually add confectioners' sugar and milk. Spread over top and sides of a 10"-tube cake or on tops and sides of two 9-inch layers. Decorate with candles and icing forced through decorator's tube.

FIRST TO LEAVE "OPERATION HIDEOUT" — Gerald C. Leighton, a fireman from Stafford Springs, Conn., is the first of 22 volunteers to leave the submarine Haddock in the Navy's "Operation Hideout" at Groton, Conn., yesterday. The crew volunteered to stay below water for two months to see how long they could stand a percentage of carbon dioxide.

Easy Rice and Cherry Pie With Coconut Crust is a New Idea for Heavenly Eating

This is a pie to remember! It is so good you won't be able to forget it. The rice and cherry filling is tinted a luscious red. The sweet and chewy coconut crust turns a golden brown as it bakes in the oven. As a fitting halo for this rice dessert, which is positively out of this world, clouds of fluffy whipped cream swirl over the luscious rice and cherry filling.

The family can enjoy this sumptuous pie all the time because the rice and cherry filling cooks in a hurry and the coconut crust takes only seconds of attention before the oven takes over.

The three magnificently good parts of this pie — the coconut crust — the rice and cherry filling — the whipped cream topping — combine to make one of the year's most talked about pies.

INGREDIENTS:

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1, 5 oz. package or can of moist coconut (1½ cups)
2 cups cooked rice
2 eggs
¾ cup beet or cane suger
1½ cups canned tart, red cherries, drained
Red food coloring, if desired
1 cup whipping cream, chilled
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup beet or cane sugar

PREPARING THE FLUFFY WHITE RICE: To make 3 liberal cups of fluffy rice, put 1 cup of uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt into a 2-quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover saucepan with a lid and leave over this low heat for 14 minutes. Turn off the heat. Do not remove lid nor stir rice while it is cooking. After rice has cooked, remove saucepan from heat — but keep the lid on until you are ready to use the rice.

Use exact measurements of uncooked rice and water. Time the cooking accurately.

For real convenience and economy of time and effort, keep unused rice in the refrigerator in a covered container at all times. Use it for many quick, delicious and inexpensive soups, salads, casserole dishes, hot breads and desserts.

METHOD: To make the coconut crust, spread butter or margarine evenly over an 8 or 9 inch pie pan. Sprinkle the coconut into the pan and press into the butter. It helps to use a moist teaspoon to press the coconut against the pan. Bake in a 350° F. oven until crisp and golden brown.

To make the rice and cherry filling, mix together the rice, eggs, sugar and cherries and cook over a low heat, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. The egg whites make the mixture foamy, but soon cook into the rice. If desired, add red food coloring. This makes a more delicious looking filling. Pour the filling into the coconut crust. Cover with wax paper or aluminum foil and chill in the refrigerator.

To serve, whip the cream and fold in the vanilla and sugar. Spread over the rice and cherry filling.

This recipe makes 8 servings.

Pork Pair

For breakfast, lunch or brunch, pork pair with pineapple makes a tempting serving. Wrap two sausage links—side by side—in a slice of "boiled" ham. Fasten securely with wooden picks. Place each on a pineapple slice on a rack in an open roasting pan and cook in a moderate oven (350°F.) for 30 to 40 minutes.

Potato Puffs

For a ham or pork loin roast garnish, sweet potato puffs are a clever choice. Cut marshmallows in half, then shape ¼ cup of mashed sweet potato around each. Roll in crushed corn flakes and fry in deep hot lard (360°F.) until brown. Drain on absorbent paper, then arrange on meat platter.

Hot Ham Sandwich With Raisin Sauce

Place sliced, broiled ham on toast and top with raisin sauce made as follows: In a saucepan, combine ⅓ cup firmly packed brown sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon dry mustard and dash of salt and pepper. Gradually stir in 1⅔ cups boiling water and 1¼ cup vinegar. Simmer 10 minutes. Add seedless raisins and cook 2 minutes, or until raisins are plump; add 1 tablespoon butter and stir until melted. Makes about 2 cups sauce.

Idaho's first permanent irrigation system was a canal four miles long, built by Mormon pioneers at Franklin.

Lamb, Scrambled Eggs

Lamb news for scrambled eggs. Cut meat into small cubes and brown slowly in a frying-pan. Season with salt and pepper, then cover and cook slowly for 45 minutes or until tender. Remove the cover the last few minutes of cooking so the lamb will become crisp. Scramble eggs (4 beaten eggs, ¼ cup milk) and serve on warm platter surrounded with lamb.

Tip For Economy

Your bargain in breakfast eating —cereal and milk serving—costs only about 5 cents as based on Chicago retail prices, January, 1952. In addition to the thrift advantage, you also get nutrients to supply ¼ to ⅓ of the day's food needs.

Breakfast Is The Key Meal In Reducing Diets

THE news in reducing diets is right in the first meal of the day. Scientific research gives new importance to breakfast as the key to any successful reducing plan.

Previous scientific studies show that you'll feel better, you'll work better, and you'll be quicker on the draw when you eat a breakfast that gives you ¼ to ⅓ of the day's food—and calories—at breakfast.

Breakfast Job

If you skip breakfast, or any meal, you're more apt to resort to between-meal snacks which add calories, or you're apt to overeat at the other two meals.

The food you eat at breakfast is used efficiently; you're not as apt to store it as fat.

Breakfast for the reducer has many jobs to do. It should give its share of the food essentials everyone needs to be well-nourished — the vitamins, minerals, protein, and energy-giving foods. It should include foods that are put to work effectively by the body. It should be appetizing and should taste good; it should be thrifty, easy to buy, easy to prepare.

List Two Menus

The two reducing diet breakfasts illustrated above are cut from this basic pattern. If your reducing diet calls for a 400-calorie breakfast, eat the breakfast on the left. Start with an eight-ounce glass of unsweetened grapefruit juice. Two-thirds of a cup of cooked oatmeal topped with one-half cup of whole milk is the main dish. One slice of rye toast with a teaspoon of butter, an additional half cup of milk to drink, and black coffee complete the menu.

Here's a menu typical of a 600-calorie breakfast based on the pattern: sliced banana with half a cup of whole milk, one ounce of bite-size shredded rice topped with half a cup of whole milk, one slice white toast, one teaspoon butter, and black coffee.

Crisp Coating For Fish

Since you may be serving fish more often during Lent, try new ways to add flavor. Finely crushed cereal give a crisp and tasty coating to fish for broiling, baking, or frying. Dip the pieces of fish in slightly beaten egg, then in the cereal crumbs.

With the size of the average family on the decline over recent years, smaller cans and jars are becoming the order of the times among the manufacturers who can apple sauce. The 15-ounce glass jar is growing in popularity, and the 16-17 ounce can for apple sauce is largely taking the place of the 20-ounce can. Containing approximately 2 cups, these smaller cans and jars are just right for today's average family of four. Besides these, there is also an even smaller size can, an 8-ounce size, holding about 1 cup of apple sauce.

Crisp crackers spread with cream cheese and accompanied by a glass of apple juice offer a means of satisfying late evening hunger.

Salmon Slaw

1 —pound can salmon, flaked; 2 cups shredded cabbage; ½ cup diced celery; ¼ cup chopped, green pepper, or drained pickle relish; 1 tablespoon lemon juice; ½ cup teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon Tabasco; ½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing. Salad greens.

Combine salmon, shredded cabbage, celery and green pepper or pickle relish. Mix together lemon juice, salt, Tabasco and mayonnaise; add to salmon mixture and toss lightly. Serve on salad greens. If desired, serve in avocado halves or as filling for tomatoes. Yield: 6 servings.

Fried Shrimp For Home Party

Batter-fried shrimp, a seafood delicacy that's a top-favorite in restaurants, is a wonderful choice for informal party menus at home. The shrimp are practically a meal in themselves and are surprisingly easy to fix. The preliminary preparation involves only three quick steps—the removal of the shells, washing away the sand veins and coating the shrimp with a seasoned batter. The cooking time takes but three to five minutes. To make sure that the crust will be crisp and unbroken, chill the batter-coated shrimp at least one hour before they're cooked. The thorough chilling sets the coating. Whether eaten with forks or fingers, you'll want to serve the piping hot shrimp with lemon wedges and a zesty cocktail sauce. And, to turn the shore dinner into a real treat, serve beer, the perfect flavor complement to delicate shrimp and the zesty accompaniments. Some heated French bread goes nicely, too.

Batter-Fried Shrimp

(Makes 4 servings)

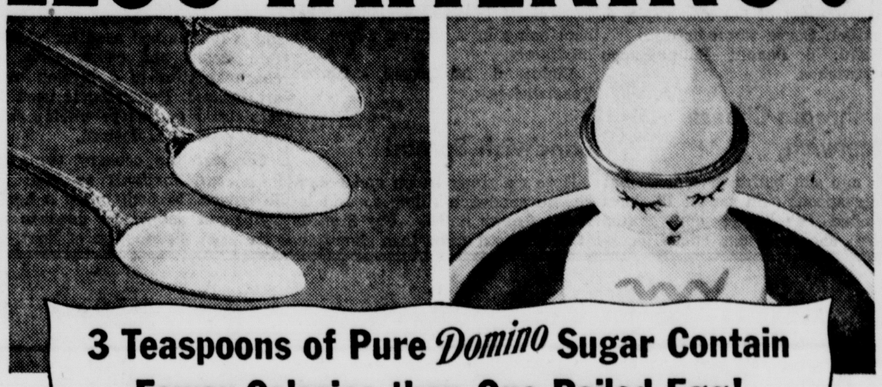

1 pound shrimp, fresh or frozen
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 tablespoon water
⅓ cup fine dry bread crumbs
¼ cup flour
2 tablespoons paprika

Remove shells from shrimp, being careful not to break off tail meat. With a sharp knife, slit backs of shrimp, cutting almost through. Wash away sand veins. Salt shrimp. In a small bowl, beat egg with water. On a piece of wax paper, combine remaining ingredients. Dip shrimp in egg, then roll in batter mixture. Chill coated shrimp one hour or longer. When ready to cook, fry 3 to 5 minutes, or until golden brown, in deep fat heated to 350 degrees. Drain on absorbent paper toweling. Serve immediately.

Keep Cereals Fresh

Leave cereals in their original packages to assure freshness, for today's modern packaging offers sufficient protection for them. They should be stored in a place where it is cool, clean, and dry.

Toastwich For Lent Parade

Red circle the toastwich for Lenten meals. It is a dish, with a difference. for quick lunches or suppers. Some will say that a toastwich is an ordinary sandwich dipped into an egg and milk mixture and browned in a little fat in a skillet. Others will say—"Why, that is nothing but a French toast sandwich!" Truth is, that both definitions are correct and all will vote for its extra-good variations.

This month, parade seven new toastwich ideas that have been triple-tested and sampled by a discriminating panel. Three feature cheese with a flavor-change for each-mushrooms, deviled ham, and tuna. Two play up crisp bacon, another teams up with peanut butter, red-ripe tomato slices and green pepper to climax the array.

No toastwich recipe collection would be complete without a variation of two that cater to the sweet tooth. This is no exception to the rule for it spotlights an Apricot-Coconut Toastwich that is just about the most delightful thing one ever put a fork to. On stage, too, is an Apple-Cinnamon Toastwich, so spicy and good.

Sandwich Spread

Here's a zippy bacon and cream cheese sandwich filling to add interest to any lunch. Fry 8 slices of bacon until crisp, then chop fine. Combine the bacon with 1 tablespoon of chutney and 1 3-ounce package of cream cheese and mix thoroughly.

When To Panbroil, Panfry Meat

Panbroil and panfry. Just what is the difference between these two meat cookery methods? Panbroiling is the method used for cooking thin steaks and chops when the characteristics of a broiled meat are desired. Panfrying is used for thin steaks and chops when a crisp outer coating is desired.

Consider the cookery steps for these two methods to note the difference. In both cases a heavy frying-pan should be used to assure even distribution of heat. To panbroil, place the meat in a frying-pan. Do not add water or fat. Do not cover. Cook slowly, turning occasionally and pouring off the fat as it accumulates. Brown meat on both sides, season and serve at once.

To panfry, brown the meat on both sides in a small amount of fat. Season with salt and pepper. Do not cover. Cook at a moderate temperature until done, turning occasionally. Remove and serve immediately.

When To Panbroil, Panfry Meat

Panbroil and panfry. Just what is the difference between these two meat cookery methods? Panbroiling is the method used for cooking thin steaks and chops when the characteristics of a broiled meat are desired. Panfrying is used for thin steaks and chops when a crisp outer coating is desired.

Consider the cookery steps for these two methods to note the difference. In both cases a heavy frying-pan should be used to assure even distribution of heat. To panbroil, place the meat in a frying-pan. Do not add water or fat. Do not cover. Cook slowly, turning occasionally and pouring off the fat as it accumulates. Brown meat on both sides, season and serve at once.

To panfry, brown the meat on both sides in a small amount of fat. Season with salt and pepper. Do not cover. Cook at a moderate temperature until done, turning occasionally. Remove and serve immediately.

Russian Pastor Will Speak In Cumberland On Sunday

PASTOR MALOF

Pastor Basil A. Malof, exiled Russian church leader and now president of the Russian Bible Society, Washington, D. C., will speak in Cumberland on three different occasions on Sunday, March 22.

He will speak at the First Baptist Church, Bedford and Columbia streets, at 11 a. m. and at a mass meeting there at 2:30 p. m. His morning subject will be: "Russia and the Bible". The afternoon subject will be: "Communism — the Greatest Enemy of God, The Church, and The American Way of Life."

Rev. Malof will also speak at 7:30 p. m. that Sunday in the Grace Baptist Church, Greene street.

Rev. Malof was founder of the First Russian Baptist Church at St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) seating 2,000 people; the first Protestant church in Moscow, a Sunday School in the Palace of a Princess, and other churches and missions throughout Russia.

He was tried in the Kremlin, sentenced to imprisonment in a fortress and later banished to Siberia, but finally exiled from Russia. He has been considered Russia's most outstanding evangelist. The Soviet Communist Government confiscated his two large churches and murdered his own brother, who was his assistant pastor in Siberia.

At present, Pastor Malof is conducting a crusade of Bibles for Russia, with Bible and Missionary lectures throughout the country. In November he presented the first newly completed copy of the Russian Bible printed in America, to President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The Bible consists of both the old and new Testaments, printed in Russian spelling, with the officially approved complete text of the holy Synod of the Russian Church.

Negro Preacher Wins Damages Against Bishop

BALTIMORE, March 19 — A Federal Court Jury yesterday awarded $7,500 in damages to the Rev. Mackay Clarence Carpentier who sued his African Methodist Episcopal Church bishop for slander.

The preacher, who now works as a dining room captain in a Harrisburg, Pa., hotel, charged that Bishop Lawrence H. Hemingway at a church conference here last year falsely accused him of a crime and refused to give him a pastoral appointment.

Bishop Hemingway testified during the trial that he owns about $45,000 worth of property in Washington and that he and his family also have about $67,000 in securities. He said his salary is $6,000 per year with an equal amount for expenses.

The bishop, who lives in Washington, denied that he made any derogatory statements about the plaintiff.

He said he appointed a committee to investigate charges against the Rev. Carpentier and then decided against assigning him to a church.

Mine-To-Market Coal Pipelines Called Practical

PITTSBURGH, March 19 (AP) — Coal may flow from mine to market soon in pipelines—just as gas and oil do now.

An experimental coal pipe line in Ohio has been tested for eight months and pronounced practical by Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., one of the world's largest coal producers.

Pitt Consol transports coal via its pilot size pipeline by mixing it with water to form a soupy, black mixture called slurry. Coal in the usual lump form can't be used. Before it can be pumped through a pipeline under pressure the coal has to be ground up or pulverized.

At the end of the pipeline, the company dries out the coal and it's ready to burn. Some customers, like utility companies, want their coal in pulverized form for consumption in their power plant boilers.

The latest report on coal pipelines was in the big company's annual report, which said:

"After eight months operation, the experimental pipeline project in Ohio has provided sufficient data to satisfy us that transmission of coal by pipeline can be developed economically.

"The pipeline product is essentially coal in a new form and we are now proceeding to develop the commercial aspects of providing sales outlets for it."

High freight rates make the coal men look with favor on pipelines as a possible replacement for the familiar railroad gondola car.

The company earmarked more than a half-million dollars back in February of 1951 to build a demonstration-size coal pipeline system near Cadiz, O. The project consisted of a 12-inch pipeline about 17,000 feet long, special crushing and slurry preparation equipment and specially designed pumps.

The experimental pipeline was operated continuously, handling several thousand tons of coal a day.

Street Department Plans Spring Projects

The batch plant of the Cumberland Contracting Company started making black top Wednesday after a lay off during the cold winter months when mixing was not possible.

With the start of the plant, a number of projects on Cumberland streets will be started, Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, announced.

First on the list will be the patching of holes in the surfaces of streets that were made during winter, Mrs. Roeder said.

Two major street resurfacing jobs will get underway shortly after bids are opened March 30, she said. These will be Washington Street, from Prospect Square to Chase Street, and a portion of Williams Road in the city limits.

The aboriginal inhabitants of Formosa practiced head-hunting until a few years ago.

Rev. Malof will also speak at 7:30 p. m. that Sunday in the Grace Baptist Church, Greene street.

Rev. Malof was founder of the First Russian Baptist Church at St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) seating 2,000 people; the first Protestant church in Moscow, a Sunday School in the Palace of a Princess, and other churches and missions throughout Russia.

He was tried in the Kremlin, sentenced to imprisonment in a fortress and later banished to Siberia, but finally exiled from Russia. He has been considered Russia's most outstanding evangelist. The Soviet Communist Government confiscated his two large churches and murdered his own brother, who was his assistant pastor in Siberia.

At present, Pastor Malof is conducting a crusade of Bibles for Russia, with Bible and Missionary lectures throughout the country. In November he presented the first newly completed copy of the Russian Bible printed in America, to President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The Bible consists of both the old and new Testaments, printed in Russian spelling, with the officially approved complete text of the holy Synod of the Russian Church.

Negro Preacher Wins Damages Against Bishop

BALTIMORE, March 19 — A Federal Court Jury yesterday awarded $7,500 in damages to the Rev. Mackay Clarence Carpentier who sued his African Methodist Episcopal Church bishop for slander.

The preacher, who now works as a dining room captain in a Harrisburg, Pa., hotel, charged that Bishop Lawrence H. Hemingway at a church conference here last year falsely accused him of a crime and refused to give him a pastoral appointment.

Bishop Hemingway testified during the trial that he owns about $45,000 worth of property in Washington and that he and his family also have about $67,000 in securities. He said his salary is $6,000 per year with an equal amount for expenses.

The bishop, who lives in Washington, denied that he made any derogatory statements about the plaintiff.

He said he appointed a committee to investigate charges against the Rev. Carpentier and then decided against assigning him to a church.

Mine-To-Market Coal Pipelines Called Practical

PITTSBURGH, March 19 (AP) — Coal may flow from mine to market soon in pipelines—just as gas and oil do now.

An experimental coal pipe line in Ohio has been tested for eight months and pronounced practical by Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., one of the world's largest coal producers.

Pitt Consol transports coal via its pilot size pipeline by mixing it with water to form a soupy, black mixture called slurry. Coal in the usual lump form can't be used. Before it can be pumped through a pipeline under pressure the coal has to be ground up or pulverized.

At the end of the pipeline, the company dries out the coal and it's ready to burn. Some customers, like utility companies, want their coal in pulverized form for consumption in their power plant boilers.

The latest report on coal pipelines was in the big company's annual report, which said:

"After eight months operation, the experimental pipeline project in Ohio has provided sufficient data to satisfy us that transmission of coal by pipeline can be developed economically.

"The pipeline product is essentially coal in a new form and we are now proceeding to develop the commercial aspects of providing sales outlets for it."

High freight rates make the coal men look with favor on pipelines as a possible replacement for the familiar railroad gondola car.

The company earmarked more than a half-million dollars back in February of 1951 to build a demonstration-size coal pipeline system near Cadiz, O. The project consisted of a 12-inch pipeline about 17,000 feet long, special crushing and slurry preparation equipment and specially designed pumps.

The experimental pipeline was operated continuously, handling several thousand tons of coal a day.

Street Department Plans Spring Projects

The batch plant of the Cumberland Contracting Company started making black top Wednesday after a lay off during the cold winter months when mixing was not possible.

With the start of the plant, a number of projects on Cumberland streets will be started, Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, announced.

First on the list will be the patching of holes in the surfaces of streets that were made during winter, Mrs. Roeder said.

Two major street resurfacing jobs will get underway shortly after bids are opened March 30, she said. These will be Washington Street, from Prospect Square to Chase Street, and a portion of Williams Road in the city limits.

Trained Dogs Teach Children Traffic Safety

By HENRY C. NICHOLAS
Written for Central Press

A group of trained dogs owned by a former policeman, more than all the laws and regulations of municipal, school and police authorities, has reduced the number of traffic injuries and deaths among the school children of the nation.

Sponsored by the American Trucking association and endorsed by J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI, the National Safety Council and the International Chiefs of Police, this unique Animal Safety Circus completed during the last school term a tour of 15 states, performing before some five million children.

So remarkable were the results obtained from the tour during last year's school term, and so numerous were the requests from school authorities for the Animal Safety Circus to appear in their city, that the American Trucking association found it impossible to accept all of these invitations. As finally arranged the tour will cover some 15 other states during the current school term.

The Animal Safety Circus is the brain child of Ernest E. Pressley, formerly of the police force of Charlotte, N. C. A great lover of children and animals, Pressley had spent years in training dogs in strict obedience to his commands, whether on the streets, in the field, or around the house.

He liked to hunt with his pedigreed setter, Lady, and was an acknowledged expert in field training of dogs of every bred.

When Pressley was appointed a traffic officer near one of the largest schools in Charlotte, he was amazed and shocked at the children's disregard of traffic regulations, even at times when accompanied by their parents. There's something wrong somewhere, thought Pressley. You can't tell me that a child hasn't as much sense as a dog.

It was then that the great idea which has saved the lives of so many school children came to Pressley. Why not use his setter, Lady, and his wife's collie, Lassie, to teach school children traffic safety rules?

During his spare time over a period of some months he trained Lady and Lassie, and then invited the school children to his two-dog show.

The show proved a tremendous success, and there was a noticeable improvement in which school children of all ages observed traffic rules and regulations.

Encouraged, Pressley added more dogs to interpret more traffic safety rules. Today he has eight dogs in his troupe, which is transported in a station wagon and truck.

The troupe now includes Lassie, the leading lady, Susie, Elmer, Lady, Jingles, Dot and Annie. Elmer is the clown, the dog that attempts to take advantage of Officer Pressley as the show progresses and does everything wrong. Finally he is punished for his misbehavior.

Officer Pressley is in receipt of all kinds of letters from children pleading for "poor little Elmer." He is clearly the children's favorite.

One of the show's most effective means of teaching observance of traffic safety rules among children comes at the end of the performance, when Pressley tells them about the Junior Traffic Safety club. This club now has a membership of more than 700,000 school children and is rapidly expanding.

To qualify for membership, the pupils must answer a series of questions which they are given to take home and study. When a boy or girl passes the examination without missing a single question, the teacher enters him as a member and he receives from the American Trucking association a membership certificate, inscribed with his name over the pictorial background of Pressley and four of his performing dogs.

"The Officer Pressley Safety Circus," and George N. French of the American Trucking association, "is designed to teach American school children traffic safety practices.

"From the mail we have received from thousands of children and from their parents, teachers, principals, school superintendents, mayors, police chiefs, traffic policemen, school safety supervisors it is apparent to us that the Animal Safety Circus message has hit the bull's-eye."

While French says it is impossible to estimate the number of limbs saved and lives spared as the result of this educational campaign, yet independent studies made in some of the communities where the animal circus appeared have shown amazing results. The accident rate among school children in these communities is reported to have been reduced by the astonishing figures of from 25 per cent to over 75 per cent.

Saved By Hair

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 (AP)—Remember the guy who was saved by the skin of his teeth? Phil Rauch, 2, was saved by the hair on his head.

Phil tumbled into five feet of water in a partially dug well. He can't swim.

But, a 17-year-old neighbor girl grabbed Phil's hair and pulled him to safety.

Thelma Fowler was able to yank the boy out because he hadn't had a haircut for several weeks and his blond hair was extra long on top.

New U. Of Md. Buildings Will Be Ready For Use This Fall

COLLEGE PARK, Md., March 19 (AP)—The University of Maryland reported today three new buildings now under construction on the College Park campus will be ready for use when the 1953-54 school year opens next September.

Ten fraternity and sorority houses recently begun are scheduled for completion in October.

The three major structures are:

An $800,000 mathematics buildings, 70 per cent complete.

A $300,000 industrial education building now 45 per cent completed.

A $375,000 poultry research building, 35 per cent complete.

The sorority and fraternity buildings, to cost a total of $900,000, were financed by a bond issue to be paid off with rental charges.

Ground was broken recently for a $3,329,000 physical activities and student union building which is scheduled for completion in July of 1954.

It will become the center of the university's indoor sports program —basketball, boxing, wrestling, and indoor track. The Coliseum, now used for these events, is to be converted into a university theater.

The university also has obtained authorization for but has not yet started construction of a one million dollar addition to its central heating and utilities plant, and a $350,000 engines research building.

Its announcement of the status of the building program added:

"This physical expansion has neither kept pace with nor caught up with the academic and personnel expansion, emphasized by overcrowded dormitories and the need for more space at all levels."

Archaeologists have found traces of a prehistoric iron industry in Sarawak, Borneo, where today's tribes live close to the Stone Age, says the National Geographic Society.

The city of Sheffield, in England, has long been noted for its cutlery.

Colonel Says Negro Who Saved Life "The Bravest Man I've Ever Seen"

MANSFIELD, La., March 19 (AP)—A 19-year-old Negro soldier in his first combat after being transplanted from the home of his Louisiana farm-hand parents to the battlefields of Korea saved the life of his colonel who called him "the bravest man I've ever seen."

The soldier, Pvt. Courtney L. Stanley of Mansfield, about 35 miles south of Shreveport, said he was "helped by the Lord" as he kept attacking Chinese Communists from reaching his wounded commanding officer and two other men in a bunker on bloody Little Gibraltar three days ago.

"He saved everybody's life in that bunker," said PFC William Wuorinen of Neselle, Wash., who was with the wounded officer whose named was withheld.

"I think God was really with me that time," Stanley said after he had been found by Second Division officers who had been looking for him since Tuesday after the colonel told how the Negro soldier had saved his life. "I know he was."

In Mansfield, his parents, Aubrey and Blanche Stanley, said they first thought their son was dead when they heard about his feat in a radio newscast.

"I jumped straight up into the air," his mother said. "I left my dishes I was washing and ran to the radio and then I heard him say that my boy had said, 'The Lord was with me,' and I knew he was still alive."

His father commented:

"He done something I don't think I could have done. The Lord sure must have been with him."

The Louisiana soldier said he killed eight Chinese who attacked the bunker over a period of almost four hours.

Standing in a trench outside the bunker, he saw 15 Reds move toward the position.

"I just stood out there and fired with my BAR (Browning automatic rifle). I fired until it jammed," Stanley said. "Then I got an M-1 (rifle) from Wuorinen in the bunker and I fired it."

He fired 31 magazines, each holding about 12 rounds with the M-1.

"I was standing there to protect the colonel and myself and the rest of the guys.

"I knew that unless there was someone there shooting, the Chinese would have got the colonel and would have taken him prisoner," Stanley related.

"I'm positive I killed eight Chinese. Every time one poked his head over the trench I fired about a dozen rounds. I saw eight drop."

But the Negro soldier didn't consider himself a hero.

"If the Lord wasn't with me, I wouldn't have made it. I said to myself, 'The Lord is my shepherd.'"

Stanley suffered only a few scratches from Communist concussion grenades and was still on duty on Little Gibraltar yesterday.

Termites can live thirty years or more.

King-Size Easter Toy Parade Is Trend

THE BIGGER THE BETTER — That's the verdict of this young lady, admiring her giant sleeping bunny, which carries three baby cottontails in zippered pocket.

Harvey, the giant rabbit of stage and movie fame, seems to have started a trend.

Easter toys this year are bigger in many instances, than the children who will play with them. King-size bunnies, ducks and storks are creating a storage problem for toy stores, since they take up 10 times as much room as the miniatures of yesteryear.

Among the sleepy-eyed "cuddle" toys is a mammoth mama rabbit with a zipper pocket in her back from which emerge three small bunnies as a surprise dividend.

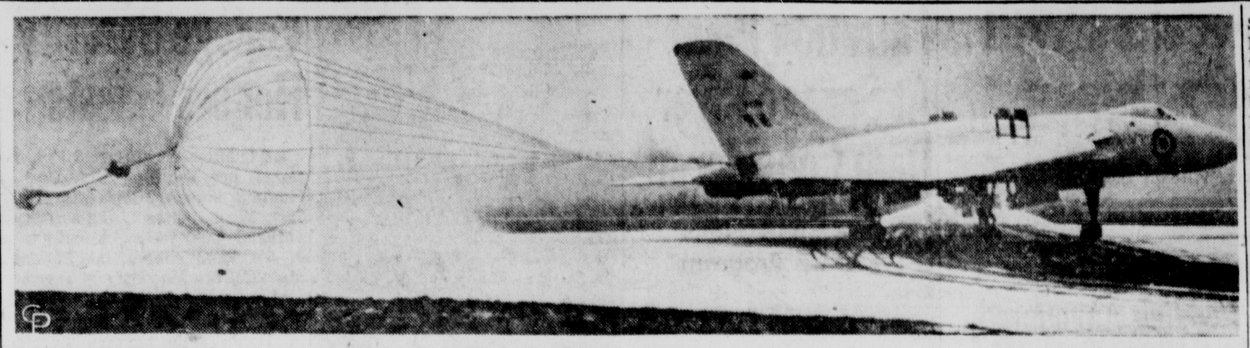

Peter Rabbit has grown up to startling proportions, comes dressed in high-fashion costumes and has acquired an appealing soft, plastic face.

The fluffy barnyard animals being readied for the Easter parade at the American Toy Institute have acquired new textures, colors and personalities this year, too, which give them an "out-of-this-world" look.

So if you see a six-foot rabbit in your living room on Easter morning don't call the psychiatrist. It's just the modern trend.

TWO WAYS TO COUNT IT

MANY of the tables of card values, found fairly satisfactory for a long term of years, have emphasized the difference between a short suit in the declarer's hand and one in the dummy when bidding to a trump contract. Such shortage is worthless in the declarer's holding, since he would thereby be counting doubly some trump already rated as a trump trick, whereas the shortage in dummy would afford a place to take an additional trick or so by using dummy's trumps separately. At least, that's what the older books used to say. But how right were they?

Without exception, all of the leading new methods of valuing hands for suit bids by means of the old 4-3-2-1 count for No Trumps, plus allowances for suit lengths or shortages, would rate East's hand as improved because of the minor suit situation. They have contrasting ways of doing it, some placing a value on the singleton and some on the fourth card of the diamond suit, thereby arriving at the same point.

Others, using honor card counts as in earlier days, might be prone to pay no heed to the value of the minor distribution. But the better ones have always known that the arrangement which existed was more desirable than having three in one of those suits and two in the other. In this case, possession of a club doubleton would have caused defeat of the heart game contract, as two tricks instead of one would have been lost there.

The club K took the first trick, the A was ruffed, three top hearts left the 10 out, and a diamond trick remained losable to the K on a finesse. So, with just one trick each lost in hearts, diamonds and clubs, the contract was assured. If, however, East had held two clubs, it is easy to see he would have dropped another trick. East said he considered that singleton decisive in making his opening bid.

art of politics. The book exposes all the top secret strategists that have enabled men, for centuries, to be first class powers.

"Naturally, as men, we cannot condone or promote such a book."

If that won't sell books to both sexes, I don't know what will. (I've peeked into it and it's a pretty funny book. There's a chapter advising girls never, never, under any circumstances to go to a man's apartment. Next chapter: what to do when you get there.)

Probably the worst shellacking any author ever took in advertising was Bob Hope concerning his book "So This Is Peace." This was an almost unreadable collection of gags—and don't say you weren't warned by the ads. One of Goodman's ads ran: "Buy this man's new book! Some people will laugh at anything, and you may be one of them." Another: "Those ghosts you hear groaning this Halloween did not write Bob Hope's new book. They just read it."

Some of Goodman's finest and most insulting prose was lavished on S. J. Perelman's "Westward Ha!" One ad ran: "Once in a blue moon, there comes a book so patently a work of genius, so brilliant in scope and thrilling in execution that it oozes greatness at every pore. But in the meantime publishers have to keep on publishing books they think people will enjoy reading anyway. Books like this one."

Much of Goodman's stuff is simply a spoof of all the advertising fraternity. (Goodman is essentially an editor and would be horrified at the idea that he's a paid up member of the same fraternity.) One ad for a book called "Merely Colossal" which is about the motion picture business was adorned with the cartoon of a bosomy female under which was the legend in huge type: "WHAT WAS HER STRANGE SECRET THAT DROVE MEN MAD!" The body type started out prosaically: "We really haven't the slightest idea. But since all movie adds start like this, we thought it would be a good way to lead into an announcement that the new book 'Merely Colossal' reveals the whole unlikely truth about The Industry."

I was especially taken with the candor of an ad about Walt Kelly's book "I Go Pogo," which read:

"NO BIGGER!
"NO BETTER!
"(But new)"

I keep wondering what would happen if Goodman started advertising something else, like toothpaste. "Avoid it at all costs," I can see in my mind's eye. "It contains irium! Your teeth will be so gleaming white it'll frighten the children into hysterics." It'd be kind of fun for a change.

Woman Receives Suspended Term For Extortion

Associate Judge George Henderson yesterday gave Mrs. Ida Viola Files, 56-year-old mother of eight children, a two-year suspended sentence on her guilty plea to a charge of attempted extortion. She was also placed on probation for five years.

Judge Henderson, who heard the case on criminal information filed by State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, said due to the circumstances in the case he was giving Mrs. Files a susenpded sentence.

It was brought out by Clarence Shutter, attorney for Mrs. Files, that she had been in poor health both physically and mentally and was distraught because one of her sons is in Korea with American forces.

Various members of the family testified that Mrs. Files had seemed in this condition for some time prior to the attempt to extort $500 from Morton W. Peskin Sr., local businessman, on a threat to tell police "about him and the murder of Mrs. Odessa Meister". She said she had wanted the money "to go see her son in Korea".

The pathetic story was unfolded as Mrs. Files, and several members of the family sobbed quietly.

Judge Henderson said Mrs. Files could not have pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity, because she is not insane, but she definitely was "mentally abnormal" at the time she entered into the attempted extortion.

It was also stated by both Judge Henderson and State's Attorney Fletcher that it was the first extortion case heard in Circuit Court in many years.

USAF Weather Equipment Found

Air Force high altitude weather observation equipment, attached to a large parachute, was found by an area man yesterday afternoon in wooded area near Lonaconing. It had drifted all the way from New Mexico.

State Police Trooper First Class Harry S. Bosley said the rectangle-shaped metal box was found by Julius Wattenschaidt, of Water Slate Run, near Lonaconing. He added Wattenschaidt saw the parachute and equipment snagged in the top of a tree about two miles east of Lonaconing.

Trooper Bosley said they had to cut down the tree before they were able to carry the piece of equipment to the police car.

Bosley described the equipment as two feet wide, three feet long and about two and a half feet high. The box, which weighed about 150 pounds, was tightly sealed and of heavy metal with two blinker lights on the top side. The lights were still blinking and in operation when the piece was located.

Bosley explained that probably the blinkers served as a warning to aircraft while the weather instruments were in flight. He said a clicking sound came from inside the metal container. On the top side a switch, which apparently operated the equipment, was tapped into "open" position.

Instructions printed on the box indicated that the equipment was released, towed by a plastic balloon, from Holloman Air Force Base at Alamogordo, N. M.

Bosley surmised that the balloon had drifted from New Mexico to this area. As the balloon gained altitude, air in the bag expanded bursting it and automatically setting the parachute into action.

The instructions requested that the finder send a telegram to the air base and send the equipment by railway express. A $25 reward will go to the finder.

Bill To Extend Hancock Limits Is Introduced

HANCOCK, March 19. (AP) — This Western Maryland city sandwiched between West Virginia on the south and Pennsylvania on the north, would double its population if a proposal to extend its city limits passes the General Assembly.

Mayor Lemuel Kirk said over 940 persons living in suburbs outside the city line, want to be included in Hancock's population so they can benefit from various municipal services.

Hancock's population now is about 900.

The proposal before the Legislature would extend the city's boundaries about a half mile west and north.

If it passes, Mayor Kirk said the new residents would be taxed at one-half of the rate the first year and 10 per cent more each year until all city services, police, fire, water, street lights, sewage and garbage collection, are provided.

Woman Receives Suspended Term For Extortion

Associate Judge George Henderson yesterday gave Mrs. Ida Viola Files, 56-year-old mother of eight children, a two-year suspended sentence on her guilty plea to a charge of attempted extortion. She was also placed on probation for five years.

Judge Henderson, who heard the case on criminal information filed by State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, said due to the circumstances in the case he was giving Mrs. Files a susenpded sentence.

It was brought out by Clarence Shutter, attorney for Mrs. Files, that she had been in poor health both physically and mentally and was distraught because one of her sons is in Korea with American forces.

Various members of the family testified that Mrs. Files had seemed in this condition for some time prior to the attempt to extort $500 from Morton W. Peskin Sr., local businessman, on a threat to tell police "about him and the murder of Mrs. Odessa Meister". She said she had wanted the money "to go see her son in Korea".

The pathetic story was unfolded as Mrs. Files, and several members of the family sobbed quietly.

Judge Henderson said Mrs. Files could not have pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity, because she is not insane, but she definitely was "mentally abnormal" at the time she entered into the attempted extortion.

It was also stated by both Judge Henderson and State's Attorney Fletcher that it was the first extortion case heard in Circuit Court in many years.

USAF Weather Equipment Found

Air Force high altitude weather observation equipment, attached to a large parachute, was found by an area man yesterday afternoon in wooded area near Lonaconing. It had drifted all the way from New Mexico.

State Police Trooper First Class Harry S. Bosley said the rectangle-shaped metal box was found by Julius Wattenschaidt, of Water Slate Run, near Lonaconing. He added Wattenschaidt saw the parachute and equipment snagged in the top of a tree about two miles east of Lonaconing.

Trooper Bosley said they had to cut down the tree before they were able to carry the piece of equipment to the police car.

Bosley described the equipment as two feet wide, three feet long and about two and a half feet high. The box, which weighed about 150 pounds, was tightly sealed and of heavy metal with two blinker lights on the top side. The lights were still blinking and in operation when the piece was located.

Bosley explained that probably the blinkers served as a warning to aircraft while the weather instruments were in flight. He said a clicking sound came from inside the metal container. On the top side a switch, which apparently operated the equipment, was tapped into "open" position.

Instructions printed on the box indicated that the equipment was released, towed by a plastic balloon, from Holloman Air Force Base at Alamogordo, N. M.

Bosley surmised that the balloon had drifted from New Mexico to this area. As the balloon gained altitude, air in the bag expanded bursting it and automatically setting the parachute into action.

The instructions requested that the finder send a telegram to the air base and send the equipment by railway express. A $25 reward will go to the finder.

Bill To Extend Hancock Limits Is Introduced

HANCOCK, March 19. (AP) — This Western Maryland city sandwiched between West Virginia on the south and Pennsylvania on the north, would double its population if a proposal to extend its city limits passes the General Assembly.

Mayor Lemuel Kirk said over 940 persons living in suburbs outside the city line, want to be included in Hancock's population so they can benefit from various municipal services.

Hancock's population now is about 900.

The proposal before the Legislature would extend the city's boundaries about a half mile west and north.

If it passes, Mayor Kirk said the new residents would be taxed at one-half of the rate the first year and 10 per cent more each year until all city services, police, fire, water, street lights, sewage and garbage collection, are provided.

Grafton Upsets Benwood, 63-58, In Tournament

Parkersburg Beats Princeton, 58-51

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 19 (AP)—Ball-Hawking Grafton upset Benwood, 63-58, and Parkersburg's height beat off a late Princeton rush, 58-51, in the West Virginia Class A High School Basketball Tournament's first two games today.

Morgantown (19-1) went against Huntington East (13-10) , and Charleston (22-2) met Beckley's defending champions (21-4) tonight for the other two semi-final berths.

Grafton's Bearcats wiped out a 10-point third - period deficit to storm ahead at 58-56 on Frank Knotts' theft of the ball and ensuing layup with 3:22 of the game remaining. The Bearcats then stayed in front.

Princeton managed to lead Parkersburg at the end of the first quarter 15-13. But then the Tigers fell off the pace as 6-5 Dick Custer and 6-2 Bob Peters began controlling the backboards.

Princeton was behind at halftime, 32-29, and after three periods, 42-36, only to unleash a last-period rally of its own which carried the Tigers briefly into the lead at 49-48 on Ronnie Steorts' set shot with 3:41 to play.

The hulking Custer then came to the front again, however. Parkersburg surged back into the lead as Custer ran the count to 51-49 in favor of the Big Reds with a basket from close in and a free throw.

Peters followed up with two foul shots and then a basket to run the Big Red edge to 55-49 with but 1:18 remaining.

Basketball Will Retain "One And One" Foul Rule

Regulation To Remain At Least Another Year

KANSAS CITY, March 19 (AP) — Basketball rules makers decided today to keep the widely criticized "one and one" free throw regulation for lack of an adequate substitute.

They acknowledged "a lot of people are not satisfied" with the rule but it said it would have to so until something better comes along —another year, at least.

Thus the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada, which writes the book for colleges, high schools, Amateur Athletic Union, YMCA and Canadian groups, wound up two days of conferences without making a single major change.

This, in itself, is something of an accomplishment since the restless cage fathers have made approximately 3,000 alterations since Dr. James A. Naismith tacked up his original 14 rules back in the 1890's.

The "one and one," adopted a year ago amid considerable misgivings, stipulates that the victim of a common foul get two chances to make one basket until the last three minutes of the game when he gets two shots with a chance to make both good.

The common foul is one committed not in the act of shooting and until a year ago brought only a one-shot penalty. A foul on a shooter provides two free throws.

Indiana Cagers Annex National College Title

Stop "Finger Man," Beat Kansas, 69-58

By WILL GRIMSLEY

KANSAS CITY, March 19 (AP)—Indiana's Hoosiers are national collegiate basketball champions today because they spotted Phog Allen's "finger man"—and got him.

They clipped Kansas, 69-68, last night in the closest, hair-raisingest final in the history of the NCAA tournament.

Foul Wins Game

Leonard, perhaps the deadliest outside shooter in present-day college ranks, got two shots. With heavy pressure, he missed the first. Then he calmed jumpy nerves and the second was good. Indiana led, 69-68.

Coach Phog Allen called a quick time-out. His team had the ball with 27 seconds to make the field goal that could bring the Jayhawks their second straight college championship.

The Hawks huddled on what was meant to be the winning maneuver. For 22 seconds they were to freeze the ball—counting off the seconds to themselves like this "one thousand and one, one thousand and two, etc." Then with the clock showing five seconds to go, the ball was whipped to Allen Kelley, the team's best outside shooter, and he was to pop it in from the side. He was the "finger man."

Didn't Get Shot

All worked well and the ball was shot to Kelley as scheduled. But three Indiana men—Leonard and two mates not identified in the pell-mell commotion—pounced in front of the Kansas guard and six wild-flinging hands barred the road to the basket. He didn't have a shot.

He was forced to pass out to Jerry Alberts, substitute for the ejected B. H. Born. Alberts made a frantic but fruitless stab at the bucket and missed as the game ended in wild bedlam.

History credits the first use of macaroni to the Chinese.

Cartier was disqualified for holding in the second round of the bout in London. The disqualification touched off a wild scene in the ring, with Cartier attempting to attack Referee Tommy Little.

A quarter of a century ago this young heavyweight knockout artist was packing 'em in at the State Armory here. "Vic" Ricker promoted all of the shows in which he appeared and Charley Short of Baltimore refereed all the bouts.

In 1928 he made his debut in a four round preliminary and knocked out "Buck" Greb, local heavy, in the first round.

Within a period of eight months he was graduated from the curtain raiser class to a main bout performer. During that time he flattened seven consecutive opponents in three rounds or less.

On August 27, 1928 he belted out Sammy Oliverio of Clarksburg, W. Va., in two heats. In October he stopped Cliff Stufft of Ralphton, Pa., in the second round. The following month he added two more K. O. victims to his growing list, tagging Jack Roberts of Wellersburg, Pa., in the third round and Martin Lunsford, of Washington, D. C. in 1:01 of the opening stanza.

Making his debut as a main bouter, December 21, 1928, he floored Ray Braun of Pittsburgh seven times and then starched him in two rounds. This bout was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Before a jam-packed house on Feb. 18, 1929 he liquidated Battling John Conrad, Frostburg tire builder, in the second round of a scheduled 10-rounder for his 7th win in a row.

It was on March 19, 1929 that he finally met his Waterloo. Before a capacity crowd he was knocked out in 1:32 of the second round by Joe Proctor, the "Fighting Bank Clerk" of Washington, D. C. He belted Proctor all over the ring in the first round then was flattened by a left hook and took the full count.

In a rematch he was kayoed again by Proctor — this time in the opening round. In succeeding matches here, this scrapper knocked out "Curly" Reese, a highly touted heavy from Buckhannon, W. Va., and was stopped by Billy Van Meter, Ohioan, who was managed by the late Tommy Maus.

These bouts were warm-ups to a series of the best ring battles ever staged in Cumberland. Harold Scarney, of Youngstown, Ohio, whipped Proctor. Then Charley "Chuck" Burns, the rugged Texan, decisioned Scarney and in turn was outpointed by Patsy Perroni, of Canton, Ohio, in a scrap that was sought by Columbus, Ohio. On January 4, 1935 Perroni gave Joe Louis a great fight in Detroit, losing a 10-round decision.

His son has taken over his former charge in Belvoir, Va., where the Treamans were very successful in their religious work. The photo was taken of "Socko" in the days when he carried a stick of dynamite in his right hand.

Toth Is 10th Player Signed By Baltimore

BALTIMORE, March 19 (AP)—Zollie Toth, a durable carry-over from the disbanded Dallas Texans, was announced today as the tenth player to sign a National Football League contract with the new Baltimore Colts.

A 215-pounder who averaged 3.5 yards a carry for the Texans, Toth came to terms after considering and rejecting bids from two Canadian league teams.

A native of Pocahontas, Va., he played for Louisiana State University and is a deputy sheriff at Baton Rouge.

Charley Trippi Must Stick To Football

ATHENS, Ga., March 19 (AP)—Charley Trippi, Georgia football All-America, is not going to be able to mix a little baseball with his pro football this season.

He disclosed today that the Chicago Cardinals had turned thumbs down on his taking a turn at baseball with the Jacksonville, Fla. Braves of the Class A South Atlantic League.

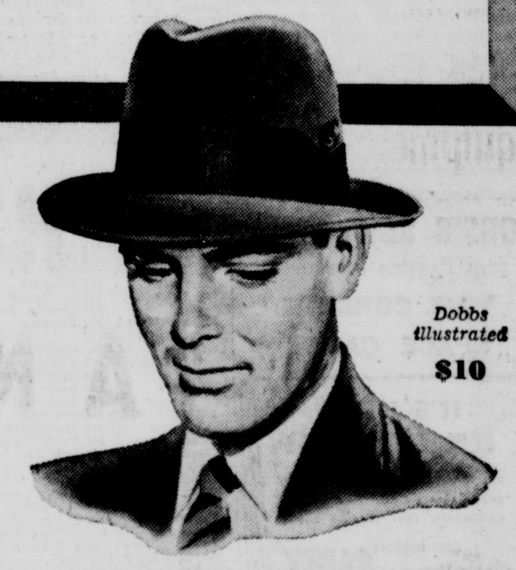

Trippi explained that the management of the National Football League club felt that baseball would conflict with his getting into trim for grid duty.

Trippi is under contract with the Cardinals.

Parkersburg Beats Princeton, 58-51

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 19 (AP)—Ball-Hawking Grafton upset Benwood, 63-58, and Parkersburg's height beat off a late Princeton rush, 58-51, in the West Virginia Class A High School Basketball Tournament's first two games today.

Morgantown (19-1) went against Huntington East (13-10) , and Charleston (22-2) met Beckley's defending champions (21-4) tonight for the other two semi-final berths.

Grafton's Bearcats wiped out a 10-point third - period deficit to storm ahead at 58-56 on Frank Knotts' theft of the ball and ensuing layup with 3:22 of the game remaining. The Bearcats then stayed in front.

Princeton managed to lead Parkersburg at the end of the first quarter 15-13. But then the Tigers fell off the pace as 6-5 Dick Custer and 6-2 Bob Peters began controlling the backboards.

Princeton was behind at halftime, 32-29, and after three periods, 42-36, only to unleash a last-period rally of its own which carried the Tigers briefly into the lead at 49-48 on Ronnie Steorts' set shot with 3:41 to play.

The hulking Custer then came to the front again, however. Parkersburg surged back into the lead as Custer ran the count to 51-49 in favor of the Big Reds with a basket from close in and a free throw.

Peters followed up with two foul shots and then a basket to run the Big Red edge to 55-49 with but 1:18 remaining.

Basketball Will Retain "One And One" Foul Rule

Regulation To Remain At Least Another Year

KANSAS CITY, March 19 (AP) — Basketball rules makers decided today to keep the widely criticized "one and one" free throw regulation for lack of an adequate substitute.

They acknowledged "a lot of people are not satisfied" with the rule but it said it would have to so until something better comes along —another year, at least.

Thus the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada, which writes the book for colleges, high schools, Amateur Athletic Union, YMCA and Canadian groups, wound up two days of conferences without making a single major change.

This, in itself, is something of an accomplishment since the restless cage fathers have made approximately 3,000 alterations since Dr. James A. Naismith tacked up his original 14 rules back in the 1890's.

The "one and one," adopted a year ago amid considerable misgivings, stipulates that the victim of a common foul get two chances to make one basket until the last three minutes of the game when he gets two shots with a chance to make both good.

The common foul is one committed not in the act of shooting and until a year ago brought only a one-shot penalty. A foul on a shooter provides two free throws.

Indiana Cagers Annex National College Title

Stop "Finger Man," Beat Kansas, 69-58

By WILL GRIMSLEY

KANSAS CITY, March 19 (AP)—Indiana's Hoosiers are national collegiate basketball champions today because they spotted Phog Allen's "finger man"—and got him.

They clipped Kansas, 69-68, last night in the closest, hair-raisingest final in the history of the NCAA tournament.

Foul Wins Game

Leonard, perhaps the deadliest outside shooter in present-day college ranks, got two shots. With heavy pressure, he missed the first. Then he calmed jumpy nerves and the second was good. Indiana led, 69-68.

Coach Phog Allen called a quick time-out. His team had the ball with 27 seconds to make the field goal that could bring the Jayhawks their second straight college championship.

The Hawks huddled on what was meant to be the winning maneuver. For 22 seconds they were to freeze the ball—counting off the seconds to themselves like this "one thousand and one, one thousand and two, etc." Then with the clock showing five seconds to go, the ball was whipped to Allen Kelley, the team's best outside shooter, and he was to pop it in from the side. He was the "finger man."

Didn't Get Shot

All worked well and the ball was shot to Kelley as scheduled. But three Indiana men—Leonard and two mates not identified in the pell-mell commotion—pounced in front of the Kansas guard and six wild-flinging hands barred the road to the basket. He didn't have a shot.

He was forced to pass out to Jerry Alberts, substitute for the ejected B. H. Born. Alberts made a frantic but fruitless stab at the bucket and missed as the game ended in wild bedlam.

Cartier Is Fined $2,800 By British Ring Commission

LONDON, March 19 (INS) — New York middleweight Walter Cartier was fined $2,800 — ten per cent of his purse — and suspended for three months by the British Boxing Board of Control today for his unsatisfactory showing against Randy Turpin on Tuesday.

Cartier was disqualified for holding in the second round of the bout in London. The disqualification touched off a wild scene in the ring, with Cartier attempting to attack Referee Tommy Little.

During the 1952 season the Los Angeles Rams topped the NFL in pass interceptions. Opponents tossed 360 forwards against the Rams of which 38 were intercepted. The average return was 18.7 yards.

As You Were

(This is the 101st in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

A quarter of a century ago this young heavyweight knockout artist was packing 'em in at the State Armory here. "Vic" Ricker promoted all of the shows in which he appeared and Charley Short of Baltimore refereed all the bouts.

In 1928 he made his debut in a four round preliminary and knocked out "Buck" Greb, local heavy, in the first round.

Within a period of eight months he was graduated from the curtain raiser class to a main bout performer. During that time he flattened seven consecutive opponents in three rounds or less.

On August 27, 1928 he belted out Sammy Oliverio of Clarksburg, W. Va., in two heats. In October he stopped Cliff Stufft of Ralphton, Pa., in the second round. The following month he added two more K. O. victims to his growing list, tagging Jack Roberts of Wellersburg, Pa., in the third round and Martin Lunsford, of Washington, D. C. in 1:01 of the opening stanza.

Making his debut as a main bouter, December 21, 1928, he floored Ray Braun of Pittsburgh seven times and then starched him in two rounds. This bout was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Before a jam-packed house on Feb. 18, 1929 he liquidated Battling John Conrad, Frostburg tire builder, in the second round of a scheduled 10-rounder for his 7th win in a row.

It was on March 19, 1929 that he finally met his Waterloo. Before a capacity crowd he was knocked out in 1:32 of the second round by Joe Proctor, the "Fighting Bank Clerk" of Washington, D. C. He belted Proctor all over the ring in the first round then was flattened by a left hook and took the full count.

In a rematch he was kayoed again by Proctor — this time in the opening round. In succeeding matches here, this scrapper knocked out "Curly" Reese, a highly touted heavy from Buckhannon, W. Va., and was stopped by Billy Van Meter, Ohioan, who was managed by the late Tommy Maus.

These bouts were warm-ups to a series of the best ring battles ever staged in Cumberland. Harold Scarney, of Youngstown, Ohio, whipped Proctor. Then Charley "Chuck" Burns, the rugged Texan, decisioned Scarney and in turn was outpointed by Patsy Perroni, of Canton, Ohio, in a scrap that was sought by Columbus, Ohio. On January 4, 1935 Perroni gave Joe Louis a great fight in Detroit, losing a 10-round decision.

He is Clarence "Socko" Tremayman, formerly of Westernport. After quitting the ring his weight ballooned from 190 to 340 pounds. He now scales around the 270 mark and is preaching in Middletown, Ohio. His son has taken over his former charge in Belvoir, Va., where the Tremamans were very successful in their religious work. The photo was taken of "Socko" in the days when he carried a stick of dynamite in his right hand.

Braves' Writer Calls Hotel Funeral Parlor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 19 (AP)—The hotel here in which league officials agreed to shift the Boston Braves franchise to Milwaukee is the same one where A. B. Chandler lost his job as baseball commissioner and the NCAA Football Rules Committee discarded the two platoon system.

"This ain't a hotel—it's a funeral parlor," said one unhappy Boston Braves baseball writer as he prepared to go home.

Pirates Sign O'Brien Twins From Seattle

PITTSBURGH, March 19—(INS)—The Pittsburgh Pirates signed the University of Seattle's basketball playing twins, Johnny and Eddie O'Brien, to a "package" baseball contract today in which each received a five-figure bonus.

Both 5'9" twins are considered excellent baseball prospects, but they have long insisted that the same club must take both of them. Johnny, All-American basketball star who broke the all-time collegiate career scoring record last season, is an infielder.

Brother Eddie, a harder hitter on the diamond than Johnny, is an outfielder.

The 22-year-old twins plan to fly to their South Amboy, N. J., home Saturday and will join the Pirates in Havana on Monday.

Australia May Lose Olympics

Refuses To Finance Building Of Village

MELBOURNE, March 19 (AP)—Australia's hopes of holding the 1956 Olympic games faded almost out of sight tonight when Victorian Premier John Cain rejected a request that the state government finance the building of an Olympic Village.

Earlier Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies had delivered a final ultimatum to the state government, indicating that the commonwealth would not provide housing or any extra money for the construction of an Oympic village.

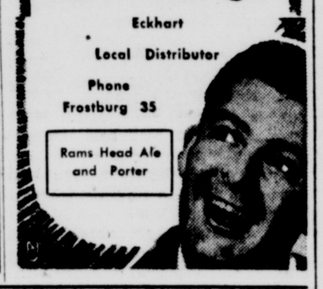

The housing problem has been the big stumbling block in planning to hold the 1956 games here and time is running out. Tomorrow night the Olympic Organizing Committee will meet to receive a report from the Olympic Control Committee, in turn, must report to the International Olympic Committee at Mexico City April 17.

Several nations have been pressing for a report on definite progress toward organizing the 1956 games and it has been indicated that if satisfactory plans are not presented at Mexico City, the Olympics will be taken away from Australia. Rome, Los Angeles and Mexico City have indicated willingness to hold them.

Pirates Sign O'Brien Twins From Seattle

PITTSBURGH, March 19—(INS)—The Pittsburgh Pirates signed the University of Seattle's basketball playing twins, Johnny and Eddie O'Brien, to a "package" baseball contract today in which each received a five-figure bonus.

Both 5'9" twins are considered excellent baseball prospects, but they have long insisted that the same club must take both of them. Johnny, All-American basketball star who broke the all-time collegiate career scoring record last season, is an infielder.

Brother Eddie, a harder hitter on the diamond than Johnny, is an outfielder.

The 22-year-old twins plan to fly to their South Amboy, N. J., home Saturday and will join the Pirates in Havana on Monday.

Australia May Lose Olympics

Refuses To Finance Building Of Village

MELBOURNE, March 19 (AP)—Australia's hopes of holding the 1956 Olympic games faded almost out of sight tonight when Victorian Premier John Cain rejected a request that the state government finance the building of an Olympic Village.

Earlier Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies had delivered a final ultimatum to the state government, indicating that the commonwealth would not provide housing or any extra money for the construction of an Oympic village.

The housing problem has been the big stumbling block in planning to hold the 1956 games here and time is running out. Tomorrow night the Olympic Organizing Committee will meet to receive a report from the Olympic Control Committee, in turn, must report to the International Olympic Committee at Mexico City April 17.

Several nations have been pressing for a report on definite progress toward organizing the 1956 games and it has been indicated that if satisfactory plans are not presented at Mexico City, the Olympics will be taken away from Australia. Rome, Los Angeles and Mexico City have indicated willingness to hold them.

Bad News For Their Seven League Rivals: Yanks Could Be Even Rougher This Year!

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series on the Big League teams. Others will follow on this page daily.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — I'm afraid it's the same old story with the Yankees again. Maybe the "old" should be accented because it looks now like the Yanks will be fielding the same team which was good enough to win the pennant again last year, and, of course, the World Series.

The "old" description fits the club fairly well, even including the possibility that the "old pros" — guys like Phil Rizzuto, Allie Reynolds, Johnny Mize and Ed Lopat —are getting older.

However, don't be fooled by that. The young Yanks are coming up through the minors as always and if you're worrying about some of the old pros breaking down, stop right now, for Casey Stengel has replacements if he need them.

"The regulars won for me on the road in the closing weeks of the 1952 campaign," he said, with gestures, "and so it wouldn't be right for me to say they can't play ball again for me this year.

"This ball club is in better shape than any ball club I ever managed. I look at my pitching staff and I've got 15 . . . you hear me . . . 15 of 'em and if you can pick the ones to stay you're a better man than I am. Actually this is the first time that I've had 15 pitchers who are pitchers.

CASEY, still at the bat, carried on:

"This year I've got three regular outfielders. Last year I had five hopefuls. When we ended the season Irv Noren was my utility outfielder but I had him at the Glendale camp this spring and he should be able to play better ball and play any position in the outfield.

"I'm anxious to see Jim Brideweser (shortstop) play," Casey continued. "He didn't get a chance at all last year but I may need him this season. I had him at Glendale for two weeks and I had him ready to take over here but now he has the flu. He'll be okay, though.

"I'm not worried about Allie Reynolds and Vic Raschi. Ed Lopat hasn't complained about his arm but watching him I know something is wrong. On the other hand, Blackie (Ewell Blackwell) has given me a real big surprise. He's up to 210 pounds and he can throw that thing today."

ONE BIG question mark on this club, of course, is the key man himself, little Phil Rizzuto. He still is battling that ulcer and he doesn't look as if he weighs the 150 pounds he says he does. Phil went through a rugged season last year and it is believed he may be given a month or so to get his health and weight back. Brideweser will fill in.

Yogi Berra, naturally, will do the catching with Ralph Houk and Charley Silvera in reserve. Billy Martin, the scrappy kid who did such a fine job at second after breaking his leg last year, is back with more experience. Gil McDougald holds forth at third.

Bob Cerv is back for another outfield try. He was at Kansas City. Two newcomers here are Bill Renna, from Kansas City, and Art Schult, from Binghamton.

Bill Skowron, the former Purdue bonus beauty who set all sorts of front page records in the American association, could be brought up if help is needed. Casey says if it wasn't for the regulars Bill would be on the Yankee roster right now.

Andy Carey, the kid hopeful in the infield, has come up with a sore arm. He is being tried at shortstop just in case.

The pitching staff could be loaded. Adding to the trio of Reynolds, Raschi and Lopat is Ed (Whitey) Ford, the sensational rookie of 1950 who won nine and lost one for the Yanks before going in the service. Ford now is out and on deck here. Casey is waiting to see what Whitey can do.

If Blackwell comes back to his National league form and if Casey gets additional fine pitching from Johnny Sain, Bob Kuzava, Johnny Schmitz and Tom Gorman, he should be rough to beat.

Youngsters being given a look are Al Cicotte, righthander from Kansas City and Binghamton who has a world of stuff if he can get the ball over the plate; Bill Miller, southpaw who won four for the Yanks last year; Harry Schaeffer, from Kansas City, and Art Schallock, another Kansas City boy. Then there is Ray Scarborough and some men in camp think he might have a big year.

CASING THE CASEYMEN—

The big, bad Yanks are just as rough as always and, if the old pros hold up, rougher. Return of Whitey Ford, improvement in Blackwell and the experience gained by Mantle in the first full season should make the Bombers the team to beat again.

Rio Grande Coach To Disclose Offers Made To Francis

RIO GRANDE, O., March 19 (INS) — Fiery Rio Grande basketball coach Newt Oliver said today he plans to consult with the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Board before disclosing offers other schools made to his star player, Bevo Francis.

Oliver promised the expose yesterday when the National Collegiate Athletic Association ruled that Bevo's single season scoring record of 1,954 points was invalid. The action was recommended by the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Beckley, Morgantown Score In Tourney

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 19 (AP)—Defending champion Beckley dumped Charleston, 66-50, tonight to join Morgantown, Parkersburg and Grafton's 63-58 upsetters of Benwood as semi-finalists in West Virginia's Class A High School Basketball Tournament.

Parkersburg followed up Grafton's victory by beating down a late Princeton rush, 58-51, and will meet Grafton in tomorrow night's first semi-final contest.

Beckley, seeking an unprecedented third straight crown, will go against Morgantown in the other semi-final. Morgantown broke a 48-48 tie with about six minutes to play, then routed Huntington East, 68-56.

Bad News For Their Seven League Rivals: Yanks Could Be Even Rougher This Year!

The Big Four—From left: Pitchers Allie Reynolds, Ed Lopat, Vic Raschi and Ed (Whitey) Ford

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — I'm afraid it's the same old story with the Yankees again. Maybe the "old" should be accented because it looks now like the Yanks will be fielding the same team which was good enough to win the pennant again last year, and, of course, the World Series.

The "old" description fits the club fairly well, even including the possibility that the "old pros" — guys like Phil Rizzuto, Allie Reynolds, Johnny Mize and Ed Lopat —are getting older.

However, don't be fooled by that. The young Yanks are coming up through the minors as always and if you're worrying about some of the old pros breaking down, stop right now, for Casey Stengel has replacements if he need them.

Casey is in an especially jubilant mood this year and he's more talkative than ever. Just listen:

"The regulars won for me on the road in the closing weeks of the 1952 campaign," he said, with gestures, "and so it wouldn't be right for me to say they can't play ball again for me this year.

"This ball club is in better shape than any ball club I ever managed. I look at my pitching staff and I've got 15 . . . you hear me . . . 15 of 'em and if you can pick the ones to stay you're a better man than I am. Actually this is the first time that I've had 15 pitchers who are pitchers.

CASEY, still at the bat, carried on:

"This year I've got three regular outfielders. Last year I had five hopefuls. When we ended the season Irv Noren was my utility outfielder but I had him at the Glendale camp this spring and he should be able to play better ball and play any position in the outfield.

"I'm anxious to see Jim Brideweser (shortstop) play," Casey continued. "He didn't get a chance at all last year but I may need him this season. I had him at Glendale for two weeks and I had him ready to take over here but now he has the flu. He'll be okay, though.

"I'm not worried about Allie Reynolds and Vic Raschi. Ed Lopat hasn't complained about his arm but watching him I know something is wrong. On the other hand, Blackie (Ewell Blackwell) has given me a real big surprise. He's up to 210 pounds and he can throw that thing today."

ONE BIG question mark on this club, of course, is the key man himself, little Phil Rizzuto. He still is battling that ulcer and he doesn't look as if he weighs the 150 pounds he says he does. Phil went through a rugged season last year and it is believed he may be given a month or so to get his health and weight back. Brideweser will fill in.

Casey was planning on trying Don Bollweg, Wheaton, Ill., youth who hit .325 for Kansas City, at first base. However, Bollweg hasn't looked too well in fielding the spot in camp and old Casey is expected to go with Joe Collins and big Jawn Mize.

Yogi Berra, naturally, will do the catching with Ralph Houk and Charley Silvera in reserve. Billy Martin, the scrappy kid who did such a fine job at second after breaking his leg last year, is back with more experience. Gil McDougald holds forth at third.

Bob Cerv is back for another outfield try. He was at Kansas City. Two newcomers here are Bill Renna, from Kansas City, and Art Schult, from Binghamton.

Bill Skowron, the former Purdue bonus beauty who set all sorts of front page records in the American association, could be brought up if help is needed. Casey says if it wasn't for the regulars Bill would be on the Yankee roster right now.

Andy Carey, the kid hopeful in the infield, has come up with a sore arm. He is being tried at shortstop just in case.

The pitching staff could be loaded. Adding to the trio of Reynolds, Raschi and Lopat is Ed (Whitey) Ford, the sensational rookie of 1950 who won nine and lost one for the Yanks before going in the service. Ford now is out and on deck here. Casey is waiting to see what Whitey can do.

If Blackwell comes back to his National league form and if Casey gets additional fine pitching from Johnny Sain, Bob Kuzava, Johnny Schmitz and Tom Gorman, he should be rough to beat.

Youngsters being given a look are Al Cicotte, righthander from Kansas City and Binghamton who has a world of stuff if he can get the ball over the plate; Bill Miller, southpaw who won four for the Yanks last year; Harry Schaeffer, from Kansas City, and Art Schallock, another Kansas City boy. Then there is Ray Scarborough and some men in camp think he might have a big year.

CASING THE CASEYMEN—

The big, bad Yanks are just as rough as always and, if the old pros hold up, rougher. Return of Whitey Ford, improvement in Blackwell and the experience gained by Mantle in the first full season should make the Bombers the team to beat again.

Mohair Is a TV Hit

Guy's under-the-lights tux

FASHION: Television is giving a big boost to the newest trend in formal wear. The mohair tuxedo has become a favorite of such TV performers as Bandleader Guy Lombardo (right), because the sheen of the material looks good under the lights. Mohair and blends of mohair have virtues for non-TV men, too. It's smart in appearance and light in weight.

Good Ideas: Re my suggestion of painting "up" and "down" arrows on venetian blind pulls, a reader adds, "Make one pull green, the other red." . . . In moist weather, a quick way to dry your car battery and points, if you have a handy electrical outlet, is to use your wife's hair dryer. . . . In removing a button from a coat, slide a comb under the button before snipping the thread. That way you can't damage the coat fabric.

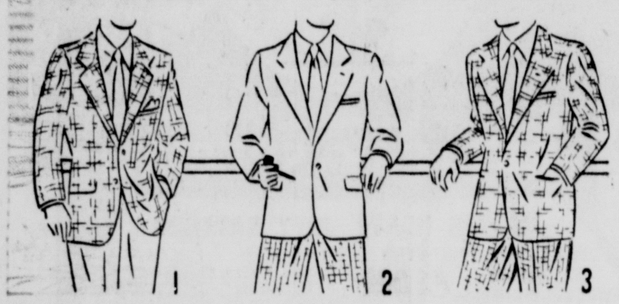

Helpful Hints: To keep pigeons from parking outside your windows, sprinkle the outside sills freely with moth crystals. . . . On very icy days, a few strips of adhesive tape on the soles of your shoes may help keep you upright. . . . Here's another "sure-fire" cure for hiccoughs: Take three-fourths of a dessert spoon of vinegar.

Handyman: Don't hurt your fingers trying to screw in cup hooks or screw eyes. They can be tightened nicely with the slots in the handle of a pocket knife. . . . Wind fishing line on old metal adhesive tape spools. Snap cover back on—and it will be safe and untangled.

New Ideas: Arthur Murray has showed us a new Swiss clock that has no face. Just press a button and the clock announces the right time, by means of a minute internal phonograph! . . . And there's a new model electric shaver that has its own battery. Can be used anywhere!

Pass the Cigars: This week to—Red Buttons, who has brought a fresh note to his CBS-TV show by discarding the trite and hackneyed devices used by a large number of the other television comics and being himself.

Spring Reminder: With another sportswear season approaching, it's time for another summary of the "rule of contrasts" in your ensembles. If your jacket is patterned and colorful (see 1, below), wear plain slacks. If jacket is plain, patterned slacks will liven up the outfit (2). But don't wear a bold jacket with patterned slacks (3).

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

He Couldn't Miss

HOBE SOUND, Fla.—The man came here for dinner the other night. He said the story was true. He was invited to the home of a well-known lady newspaper publisher by her son. It was to be a birthday surprise party for her.

"Should I wear a black tie?" he asked.

"I guess you had better," answered the young man. "We are expecting some distinguished guests."

John Wheeler

This event took place before election. Among those present were John Foster Dulles and Trygve Lie, secretary of the United Nations. He had gotten up before dawn to go duck shooting and was grousing about how tired he was. Then a latecomer arrived. He was General Eisenhower, and he told this story.

"Years ago I knew some fellows who went duck shooting down in Louisiana. I wasn't along, but I got a full report later. Some of the boys sat up pretty late playing bridge and poker and drinking water as a chaser. As usual, they arose at 4:30 to go to the blinds to attack the game. One of them was in pretty bad shape and took along a little of the hair of the dog that bit him.

"The birds were shy and the morning dull. Finally a lone Mallard came whizzing along and the hunters in one blind let go with all barrels, but nothing fell except the wads. The duck, making about sixty miles an hour, passed the place where the gent with the hang-over was located. He fired once and the bird hit the water with a thud. Later his friends picked him up in the power boat and congratulated him on the fine shot. By this time, he had finished most of the emergency medicine. He was modest about it.

" 'How could I miss when I had the whole flock to aim at?' he asked."

How Great Minds Work

A New York lawyer, who is a good friend of Professor Einstein, went to Princeton to see the great mathematician one fine spring day. The weather being beautiful, the good doctor suggested they go for a walk. High on a ridge overlooking the lovely valley, Einstein suddenly turned to his guest and very kindly said,

"I have been working on a problem for months and now I have just gotten an idea that may solve it. Would you mind retiring?"

Not wishing to interfere when this big brain began to whirr, the barrister withdrew with the feeling that one of the great secrets of the universe was being unraveled. When dusk came, the scientist had not returned to his home so the man decided he was still wrestling with the world-rocking item and caught a train to New York.

The next fall he was again in Princeton to see his friend, and once more they took a walk. The professor led him to the exact spot where they had been in the spring when the big idea had hit him between the eyes. Dr. Einstein turned to him and said,

"Do you remember the last time you were here? At this very place I left you because I thought I had found the solution of a great problem."

"Yes, indeed, I do," answered the lawyer eagerly, expecting to be told he had been a kibitzer at an historic event.

"Nothing to that idea, nothing to it at all," replied Einstein, as they continued their walk.

B & O To Check Autos On Crossing Safety

A series of observations at the Paca Street and Beall Street crossings will be made Friday, March 27, by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company to test whether motorists cross railroad tracks with sufficient caution.

Tallies will be kept on the number of motorists who use each crossing and note those who fail to exercise minimum caution. The observations, part of the railroad's drive to reduce needless mishaps, will be under the direction of C. T. Williams, superintendent of the Cumberland Division and R. L. Ward, general safety supervisor. The license numbers of careless motorists will be recorded and owners of the cars will be sent a "friendly tip about a slip that could have been serious.

The ancient Romans used lemons to keep moths from their garments. At one time they were considered a deadly poison.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 19 (INS)—Lex Barker isn't taking off for Europe with Lana Turner for the good reason he's putting the finishing legal touches on an independent corporation which will keep him working abroad for a long time.

Through his attorney, Nat Willis, Lex has formed Delbar Productions with Del Armstrong as his partner. The present plan is to make four films abroad under this banner.

First is "The Black Pearl" followed (they hope if the deal can be closed with the estate of Edgar Rice Burroughs) by "Outlaw of Torn."

And, if Lex stays in Europe this long—you can bet Lana will get herself a second film to follow "Flame and the Flesh," and they'll be married there.

My spy from Rome says it's definite now that Jennifer Jones will star in "Isadora Duncan," the life of the famous dancer. Everytime I hear the name of La Duncan I recall her saying how wonderful it would be if she had a child by George Bernard Shaw. "His brains and my beauty," sighed Isadora.

When Shaw heard this he huuuumphed, "could be the other way. My beauty and her brains!"

Max Opuls will direct the Duncan story. He almost directed Claudette Colbert in her picture, but the moola ran out.

P. S.: Speaking of Jennifer, several people are sure they saw her recently in New York, a secret flying trip to consult a doctor.

My friend, Marie (Irma) Wilson, who's dumb like a quiz kid, has been offered $25,000 per week from The Sands in Las Vegas—$3,000 more than Tallulah Bankhead's high salary mark.

"Sold," said Marie, just like that. In preparation she's signed Sidney Miller to whip up her act which will open this summer.

I saw Marie and Bob Fallon at Chasen's the other evening. She was happy because she was entertaining her in-laws, the Ike Friedmans from Memphis — and also because she was up and around after a serious bout with the flu.

A very excited Zsa Zsa Gabor called me from Las Vegas to say I had done her George Sanders wrong.

"You don't know what poor George goes through in Rome with Rossellini," she told me. "He'll be called for 10 o'clock at night, and he'll wait and wait and wait while Rossellini drives his car looking for inspiration."

"But Zsa Zsa," I reminded her, "you wouldn't do a radio show with George because he was supposed to talk to you in a sarcastic manner."

"Oh, that's before I became an actress," said Zsa Zsa. "I understand now."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Mona Freeman's mother is taking shots and getting her passport so she can accompany Mona to Europe. There's a possible picture deal, and, of course, Bing Crosby, who sails Saturday with his son, Lindsay, on the Queen Elizabeth.

Gene Raymond, former major in the Air Corps, and Harold Lloyd were the only actors who watched the atomic bomb explode in Las Vegas in a group with the brass.

On March 25 all the original George Gershwin compositions including "Rhapsody in Blue" will be presented to the Library of Congress in a special ceremony.

Shirley Temple gets back in Hollywood in a week. Her husband, Charles Black, winds up his Navy chores about that time.

Congratulations to Betty Hutton and Charles O'Curran on their first wedding anniversary. Betty's happier than she's ever been in her life. This marriage has worked out wonderfully.

Wanda Hendrix was the girl chosen to wave the Marines goodbye when they took off for Korea. Last year Mala Powers welcomed our boys home.

The old Arcade Building, landmark in downtown Los Angeles, will become the property of Director Clarence Brown. He is negotiating for the property at three million dollars—and Clarence is the boy who has it.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

There are very few red flowers which are fertilized by bees probably because bees seem to be color-blind to red.

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

Ode To A Copy Writer

On the subject of commercials about which I occasionally wax pettish, I have a kind word to say for a change, incredible as it may sound, I have become passionately fond of a particular advertisement writer, fellow by the name of Jack Goodman. Goodman is executive editor of Simon & Schuster, a frustrated writer (but not frustrated often enough), and the man who writes those crazy book ads for S & S.

John Crosby

Goodman's specialty might be described as the "For Heaven's sake don't buy this book" gambit. His ads may start out with the startling admission that S & S has been bludgeoned into publishing a book of which they hopelessly disapprove. He'll warn the reader that the book will shock him to the marrow or bore him to distraction or utterly demoralize him. The piqued reader instantly buys the book to find out if any of these crazy claims are valid. They never are. But the device sells books, showing how contrary people (or at least readers, who are a specialized branch of the human race) are.

Ode To A Copy Writer

On the subject of commercials about which I occasionally wax pettish, I have a kind word to say for a change, incredible as it may sound, I have become passionately fond of a particular advertisement writer, fellow by the name of Jack Goodman. Goodman is executive editor of Simon & Schuster, a frustrated writer (but not frustrated often enough), and the man who writes those crazy book ads for S & S.

John Crosby

Goodman's specialty might be described as the "For Heaven's sake don't buy this book" gambit. His ads may start out with the startling admission that S & S has been bludgeoned into publishing a book of which they hopelessly disapprove. He'll warn the reader that the book will shock him to the marrow or bore him to distraction or utterly demoralize him. The piqued reader instantly buys the book to find out if any of these crazy claims are valid. They never are. But the device sells books, showing how contrary people (or at least readers, who are a specialized branch of the human race) are.

One of Goodman's latest and finest outpourings concerned a book called "The Unfair Sex" (which won't be in the book stalls till late April). It started: "Simon and Schuster is in a delicate position. Only you—the male booksellers of America—can help us. In an unguarded moment—and moved only by the innocent notion of making some money—we signed on a little book called 'The Unfair Sex.' We'd read a chapter or two and thought it very funny. When the entire manuscript came in, we realized that this seemingly innocuous book was actually a ruthless expose of the human male in his relations with the female, by a writer who had shrewdly veiled her identity under the nome de plume of Nina Farewell.

"What we had, we discovered to our acute dismay, was a book that was to woman, in her eternal battle with man, what Mahan is to sea power and Machiavelli to the

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 127 of the Charter of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, 1950 Edition, notice is hereby given that the Mayor and Council of Cumberland, did, in regular session on Monday, March 16, 1953, approve the Report of Commissioners on the closing of an Unnamed Alley and Short Avenue which extend northwardly from Isabel Street to Orlando Street and lie parallel to and westward of Ford Avenue. Said commissioners were appointed by virtue of Ordinance No. 1943 for the purpose of assessing any damages or benefits incurred by or accruing to any owners of property affected by the closing of said Unnamed Alley or Street. After meeting on the premises to be affected without hearing any claims for damages, the commissioners present the following:

"It is our opinion, therefore, that no damages are inflicted by the closing of said unnamed alley and Short Avenue and that no material benefit not already enjoyed, will accrue to adjoining property owners. It is therefore recommended that said alley and avenue be closed as indicated and that no damages be assessed or awarded to any adjoining property owner."

Any person, persons, firm or corporation feeling aggrieved by the decision of the commissioners may appeal therefrom within thirty (30) days after March 16, 1953, by filing written notice of such appeal with the City Clerk of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, who will transmit same to the Circuit Court for Allegany County to be docketed for jury trial.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 127 of the Charter of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, 1950 Edition, notice is hereby given that the Mayor and Council of Cumberland, did, in regular session on Monday, March 16, 1953, approve the Report of Commissioners on the closing of an Unnamed Alley and Short Avenue which extend northwardly from Isabel Street to Orlando Street and lie parallel to and westward of Ford Avenue. Said commissioners were appointed by virtue of Ordinance No. 1943 for the purpose of assessing any damages or benefits incurred by or accruing to any owners of property affected by the closing of said Unnamed Alley or Street. After meeting on the premises to be affected without hearing any claims for damages, the commissioners present the following:

"It is our opinion, therefore, that no damages are inflicted by the closing of said unnamed alley and Short Avenue and that no material benefit not already enjoyed, will accrue to adjoining property owners. It is therefore recommended that said alley and avenue be closed as indicated and that no damages be assessed or awarded to any adjoining property owner."

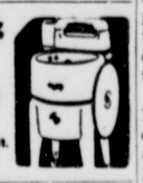

Any person, persons, firm or corporation feeling aggrieved by the decision of the commissioners may appeal therefrom within thirty (30) days after March 16, 1953, by filing written notice of such appeal with the City Clerk of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, who will transmit same to the Circuit Court for Allegany County to be docketed for jury trial.

PARKWAY BILL PASSES SENATE 24-4

Kimble Gets Approval On Area Freeway

Measure Now Goes To Delegates

The Maryland Senate yesterday afternoon passed the much debated C&O Canal Parkway measure by an overwhelming vote. Only four Senators voted against the bill.

The measure, now on its way to the House of Delegates, would authorize the State Roads Commission to purchase 4,100 acres of private land bordering the canal to provide sufficient right-of-way for the 57-mile federal parkway between Cumberland and Hancock.

Bitter Struggle

The federal government then would construct the parkway, estimated to cost from eight to 10 million dollars. Yesterday's approval by the Senate came on the heels of a turbulent fight during the past two weeks by the opposition.

One snag which threatened the bill was the plan last week of Senator Lofstrand (R-Montgomery) to introduce an amendment which proponents had feared would kill the plan.

But Senator Lofstrand took no action on the amendment which would require the government to give the entire canal tract back to Maryland before work on the parkway would begin.

Two amendments were tacked on the bill by the Finance committee, limiting expenditures to $350,000 and requiring that Congress provide easements to the route prior to the beginning of construction work.

Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble during the early part of this week beat down another curbing amendment. Sen. Barton (D-Baltimore 2nd) offered an amendment which would require the federal government to give back the canal property from Hancock to the District of Columbia line before the parkway was started on the old canal right-of-way between Hancock and Cumberland.

Amendment Defeated

Through the verbal efforts of Kimble, the amendment was later defeated by a voice vote of the Senate. Yesterday Senator Barton again took the floor briefly to protest once more against giving the federal government any more Maryland land.

Voting against the bill were Sens. Barton, McLaughlin, (R-Washington), Ramsburg, (R-Frederick), and Turnbull (D-Baltimore County). Ramsburg rose to explain his negative vote. Twenty-four senators voted for the parkway.

He said that in courtesy to Minority Floor Leader Kimble he would like to support it. "But there are many people in my county", Ramsburg added, "who feel that the bill's passing will be an opening wedge to continuing the parkway south of Washington. And they don't want that."

Should the C&O Canal Parkway measure get favorable action by the House of Delegates at Annapolis it will then be sent to Governor McKeldin for action.

Senator Kimble At Work

Sen. Robert B. Kimble, of Allegany County, minority leader of the State Senate, is shown above as he launched the proposed C&O Canal Parkway Bill which successfully passed the Senate yesterday and will go to the House of Delegates. Through his efforts many obstacles in the way of favorable action for the parkway were removed. Senator Kimble worked many weeks on the program before the bill was introduced. The proposed parkway is to extend along the old scenic route of the C&O Canal from Cumberland to Hancock.

5-Day Week Issue Still Stalemated

Department Heads Request 14 Men

Methods of financing a five-day work week for police and firemen of this city ended in a stalemate last night after a lengthy meeting of department officials with the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association.

Officials of the Police and Fire Departments stood firm on their estimates that it would take eight additional police and six more firemen to put the shorter week into effect.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long stood behind the decisions of the chiefs, saying he wanted to improve working conditions in the departments and that he is on record as favoring a five-day week for the men but that the only issue is, "Where can the money be found?"

The commissioner said he is opposed to an increase in the tax rate and thus closed the door to granting the request through boosting the tax rate 6½ cents.

Suggests Deferral

The Association, through Thomas N. Berry, attorney, suggested that the plan could be placed into effect with less men through increasing the efficiency of the units.

Berry also suggested that a number of services which the Police Department provides for local industries could be done by off-duty policemen and effect a savings of time in the department.

Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, suggested that action be deferred until shortly before the end of the fiscal year, when the city will be in a better position to know if funds would be available.

Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan says it would cost $45,303, a 6½ cent increase, to put the additional 14 men on the city payroll if the work week is shortened.

The men insisted that the city has always found money in the past when the General Assembly provides wage increases.

Berry suggested at the opening of the meeting that the men wanted to explore the possibilities of providing a standard work week with less men.

Police officials declined to term duties such as acting as leading traffic at funerals, working athletic games and helping take payrolls to banks as non essentials, saying they were services to citizens.

Another suggestion of the men was that one man be taken from the detective bureau and placed on regular duties, but officials declined to consider the move.

There was also some discussion on the time spent by officers guarding school crossings.

Fire Chief Virgil Parker flatly refused to consider operating his department under a five-day week, saying this would be a backward step.

He rejected a suggestion that the companies operate with three men — with two companies answering alarms. This, he said, would mean that two sections of the town would be unprotected each time an alarm came in.

Commissioner Long insisted throughout the conference that the only question was finance.

Berry suggested that funds now spent on non essential projects be allocated to the five-day project.

Commissioner Long pointed out that the city had considered the use of women as crossing watchmen but said the project is a good one except that it would involve extra expense since it is now being done by the department.

Asks New Schedule

Berry insisted an effort should be made to work out a schedule which would enable the Police Department to operate with a few less men and thus cut the cost of the plan.

Long said there were two possibilities, either get additional funds or cut down coverage, and said the latter was turned down by the heads of the departments who must be responsible for the protection.

Berry said it is not a question of authority but desire and that the tax rate could be raised to finance the plan.

At this stage, Finan suggested that the discussions be delayed until about May, since by then, the city will know if money is available. He said it is impossible to say now if the money will be there. There is a possibility extra revenue will be forthcoming, he said.

Officer Joseph H. Stitcher, representing the Police Department, said the men will take their bill providing for the standard work week to Annapolis. A Fire Department spokesman said he was unable to give an immediate answer.

Women Poultry Growers

Two of the more than 30 women who attended an all-day poultry growing meeting at the LaVale Fire Hall are shown discussing the program with two specialists from the University of Maryland who spoke at the meeting. At the left is A. V. Krewatch, agricultural engineer at the university, showing his demonstration of lights and electric equipment in poultry production. Watching him, left to right, are Mrs. Edith Gelner, Mrs. Charles Harvey and Wade H. Rice, poultry specialist at the university.

Poultry Talks Give Emphasis To Production

Many Women Attend All-Day Session

Nearly 65 poultry growers, about half of them women, attended an all-day poultry meeting at the LaVale Firt Hall yesterday, where they heard specialists from the University of Maryland offer them advice which should make their poultry production more profitable, according to County Agent Ralph F. McHenry.

W. H. Rice, poultry specialist, explained to the poultry growers effective methods of getting eggs to weigh enough per dozen to meet Grade A standards. He also stressed management factors that affect eggs for market.

In other remarks, Rice emphasized profitable production of hatching eggs. He said that many hatcheries that produce broilers pay good prices for hatching eggs. Most from this area are shipped into the Pennsylvania market at Altoona.

The other speaker was A. V. Krewatch, agricultural engineer at the University of Maryland.

Krewatch discussed the ventilation of a poultry house. He cited methods of getting air into a poultry house, circulated and out again. This varies with the outside air but is easiest to regulate in the spring and fall months.

Both speakers devoted much of their comments to the women in the audience. They are aware that with most of the small farm flocks in Allegany County women have the responsibility of taking care of the eggs.

Several Pennsylvanians were in the audience but most of those attending were from Allegany County farms.

Westernport Will Get Most Of School Fund

Compromise Plan Assures New Buildings For Bruce, LaVale And Possibly Carver

Slightly more than half of the $3,500,000 compromise Allegany County school construction program is earmarked for Westernport, according to figures released yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster.

A new high school for Westernport and conversion of the present Bruce High School into an elementary school will cost about $1,850,000, Webster indicated. These improvements are expected to take care of Westernport's school needs for the next 50 years.

One Of Nine Jobs

This Westernport program is one of the nine projects listed by the superintendent as most critically needed in Allegany County. This listing took place at a conference Wednesday in Annapolis at which the county commissioners, the Board of Education and County Delegation agreed to have House Bill 441 amended to make it an enabling act calling for the $3,500,000 program.

LaVale School

At LaVale a new elementary school will be constructed at an estimated cost of $500,000. Junior high facilities will be added at a later date.

Flintstone School will get additional facilities that Webster figures will cost in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Additions to Oldtown School will run about $210,000, Webster pointed out.

A new Lincoln School in Frostburg will cost an estimated $40,000.

Additional classrooms at Johnson Heights will cost $75,000.

Something For Carver

The conversion of Old Central School building in Lonaconing to an elementary school will amount to $20,000, Webster estimated. This school will be made for the first six grades when the new high school is completed at Lonaconing.

Alloted for Carver School here is $250,000, which will go either for a new school or addition to the present plant.

Webster explained that the actual work as outlined Wednesday will total $3,510,000 and he said he will have to either trim one of the projects or get the money from some other source.

Temporarily shelved because the Board of Education failed to give them critical ranking are five jobs. The agreement stresses that they are not being abandoned, but only deferred. Included are the proposed new elementary schools for Bowman's Addition and Potomac Park-Bowling Green, additional classrooms at Beall High School in Frostburg, new gymnasium and health rooms for Allegany High School and cafeteria alterations at Fort Hill High School.

Police Chief's Wife Injured In Accident

Car Hits Truck Near Uniontown

Mrs. Eleanor Flynn, wife of Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, 619 Patterson Avenue, was reported in very good condition in Sacred Heart Hospital last night where she is recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Uniontown, Pa., Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Flynn's leg was injured when the automobile her husband was driving sideswiped a tractor-trailer truck five miles east of Uniontown on Route 40 at 4:45 p. m. Monday.

Pennsylvania State Police said Flynn was driving east on a three-lane section of the highway and started to pass an unidentified car ahead. As Flynn started to pass, the car in front swerved and forced the chief's car into the westbound lane where it struck the truck just in back of the cab.

Both Flynn and Elwood C. Decker, RD 1, Garrett, Pa., driver of the truck owned by Elam D. Miller, Meyersdale, Pa., gave the same account of the accident to Trooper John J. Lopatosky who investigated.

Pennsylvania police said their report showed that there was no improper driving on the part of either Flynn or Decker, and that no charges were filed against either operator. The unidentified car did not stop.

Mrs. Flynn was taken to Uniontown Hospital for treatment of a possible fractured ankle and later was brought to Sacred Heart Hospital here. Neither Flynn nor Decker was injured. Flynn's car was damaged to the extent of about $400. Damage to the truck was negligible.

Dr. John K. Rozum, city physician, said he had ordered Flynn to take a rest and that Flynn and Mrs. Flynn, who was seriously ill recently, had been to Pittsburgh for a few days and were returning to Cumberland when the accident happened. Flynn still has not returned to duty on orders of his physician.

Landing Device Equipment For Tests Arrive

CAA Prepares Port For TVOR Testing

The Civil Aeronautics Administration yesterday began installing TVOR landing equipment at the Cumberland Municipal Airport in order to conduct tests next week.

Warren R. Mullenax, manager of the airport said last night four representatives of the CAA arrived here yesterday and will be here about two weeks conducting tests with terminal visual omnirange equipment.

The plane landing system enables planes to land and take off in fog and inclement weather, cutting overflights of commercial planes resulting from CAA requirements of a 2,500 foot ceiling and visibility of two miles. Cumberland has been considering installing the TVOR equipment to meet requirements.

Mullenax said after all the equipment pieces have been installed, the CAA men will use a plane in conducting their tests next week.

Officials said the tests will provide the city with information it needs concerning the homing device.

At hearings before the CAB in connection with Allegany Airlines attempt to drop service to Cumberland, city officials promised that a landing system would be installed if service continued. They added that efforts would be made to keep rdunways clear of ice and snow.

Since the hearings, a heavy duty truck was purchased for the clearing work. The city's second promise will depend on tests to be conducted in the next two weeks.

Post Office Joins Campaign To Better Rural Mail Boxes

The Cumberland Post Office in May will join with other post offices in the nation in marking the 15th year of the Post Office Department's campaign for the improvement of the appearance of rural mail boxes.

W. R. Thayer, superintendent of mails at the local post office, said he will make his annual inspection of the rural mail boxes in the Cumberland area this May.

He explained the purpose of the inspection is to check about 3,100 boxes on the six rural mail routes in the district and see that the receptacles conform with regulation size, location and condition. He added that if any box needs repairing, paint or if it does not conform with regulations, a form marking the defect is sent to the resident owner asking that it be corrected.

Postal officials said rural mail boxes are individually owned and maintained and it is to the civic pride of these patrons that the postal service appeals, requesting that they group boxes at road intersections and have single boxes properly erected, painted with names on them.

Mail delivery to farm homes was started slightly more than a half century ago, and during its early years there were few specified requirements about the size, nature or location of the roadside boxes. Consequently any kind of a receptacle, from discarded kitchenware to old baskets shakily mounted on a post, was deemed as a mail box.

Later the Post Office Department stepped in with an order that such boxes must conform to definite size, shape and mountings. More recently the Postal Department supported by many national organizations has continued the drive to improve the appearance of the mail receptacles. Their idea is to make rural and mounted route mail boxes the highway billboards of postal service.

The first rural mail delivery in the United States was put into operation in West Virginia in 1896, an experiment which was both condemned and ridiculed. The first complete county rural service was established December 30, 1899, in Carroll County, Md., where it proved a complete success.

Today in the United States there are 32,546 routes covering a mileage of 1,499,910 miles at an annual cost of $188,785,405. They serve 7,044,679 boxes, 9,294,171 families or 33,686,628 individuals.

Purring Diesels Are Prime Movers Of B. & O. Trains

Diesels are gaining on the Western Maryland Railway also. Last month's dispatchments included 1,020 steam and 446 Diesels.

Only one bad smoke violation was reported last month. This occurred on February 9 when a fire watcher filled a firebox with coal and apparently forgot to turn the blower on.

The violation was discovered by F. L. McGaga, fuel economy instructor, and was immediately corrected.

A. E. Beckman, master mechanic for the B. and O. reported a special lot of coal has been delivered to the Queen City Station and is expected to reduce smoke complaints from that point.

Railroad officials showed slight interest in an offer from Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., to conduct a series of combustion conferences in this city.

The offer was explained by Charles F. Owens, deputy smoke inspector.

CD Fire Unit Meets Tonight

The Civil Defense Fire Unit will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in City Hall.

Plans will be made for the resumption of mock fire runs which have been discontinued during the winter.

William G. Barger, county Civil Defense director, will be present to explain the allocation of fire hose which is to be distributed to Allegany County fire companies.

Plans for the construction of a Civil Defense fire tower in Western Maryland will also be discussed. Allegany County will attempt to have the training tower located here.

Group To Boost Tourist Trade In Western Md.

A co-operative venture to attract the tourist trade into Western Maryland will get under way next Thursday, March 26 at 8 p. m., with a meeting of interested persons in the social rooms of the Cumberland Brewery.

A spokesman for the group said last night that a primary aim will be to publicize U. S. Route 40, emphasizing its attractions as a scenic route and as the shortest route to Washington from the west. The principal effort, he said, will be made in areas considerably west of the Cumberland area, to persuade motorists to stay on Route 40 and avoid diversion to highways in other states.

All business concerns along the route are invited to attend the meeting, to consider a plan of action. Especially invited are operators of hotels, motels, service stations, restaurants, taverns and amusement places.

The group pointed to the efforts of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce to attrcat tourists and conventions into the Cumberland area and expressed a desire to supplement those efforts. All types of business enterprises along the route, the group feels, can materially benefit from a co-operative campaign, and as travel along the route increases, the reputation of the area as a scenic and historical area will be more firmly established.

McHenry.

W. H. Rice, poultry specialist, explained to the poultry growers effective methods of getting eggs to weigh enough per dozen to meet Grade A standards. He also stressed management factors that affect eggs for market.

In other remarks, Rice emphasized profitable production of hatching eggs. He said that many hatcheries that produce broilers pay good prices for hatching eggs. Most from this area are shipped into the Pennsylvania market at Altoona.

The other speaker was A. V. Krewatch, agricultural engineer at the University of Maryland.

Krewatch discussed the ventilation of a poultry house. He cited methods of getting air into a poultry house, circulated and out again. This varies with the outside air but is easiest to regulate in the spring and fall months.

Both speakers devoted much of their comments to the women in the audience. They are aware that with most of the small farm flocks in Allegany County women have the responsibility of taking care of the eggs.

Several Pennsylvanians were in the audience but most of those attending were from Allegany County farms.

Westernport Will Get Most Of School Fund

Compromise Plan Assures New Buildings For Bruce, LaVale And Possibly Carver

Slightly more than half of the $3,500,000 compromise Allegany County school construction program is earmarked for Westernport, according to figures released yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster.

A new high school for Westernport and conversion of the present Bruce High School into an elementary school will cost about $1,850,000, Webster indicated. These improvements are expected to take care of Westernport's school needs for the next 50 years.

One Of Nine Jobs

This Westernport program is one of the nine projects listed by the superintendent as most critically needed in Allegany County. This listing took place at a conference Wednesday in Annapolis at which the county commissioners, the Board of Education and County Delegation agreed to have House Bill 441 amended to make it an enabling act calling for the $3,500,000 program.

LaVale School

At LaVale a new elementary school will be constructed at an estimated cost of $500,000. Junior high facilities will be added at a later date.

Flintstone School will get additional facilities that Webster figures will cost in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Additions to Oldtown School will run about $210,000, Webster pointed out.

A new Lincoln School in Frostburg will cost an estimated $40,000.

Additional classrooms at Johnson Heights will cost $75,000.

Something For Carver

The conversion of Old Central School building in Lonaconing to an elementary school will amount to $20,000, Webster estimated. This school will be made for the first six grades when the new high school is completed at Lonaconing.

Alloted for Carver School here is $250,000, which will go either for a new school or addition to the present plant.

Webster explained that the actual work as outlined Wednesday will total $3,510,000 and he said he will have to either trim one of the projects or get the money from some other source.

Temporarily shelved because the Board of Education failed to give them critical ranking are five jobs. The agreement stresses that they are not being abandoned, but only deferred. Included are the proposed new elementary schools for Bowman's Addition and Potomac Park-Bowling Green, additional classrooms at Beall High School in Frostburg, new gymnasium and health rooms for Allegany High School and cafeteria alterations at Fort Hill High School.

Police Chief's Wife Injured In Accident

Car Hits Truck Near Uniontown

Mrs. Eleanor Flynn, wife of Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, 619 Patterson Avenue, was reported in very good condition in Sacred Heart Hospital last night where she is recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Uniontown, Pa., Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Flynn's leg was injured when the automobile her husband was driving sideswiped a tractor-trailer truck five miles east of Uniontown on Route 40 at 4:45 p. m. Monday.

Pennsylvania State Police said Flynn was driving east on a three-lane section of the highway and started to pass an unidentified car ahead. As Flynn started to pass, the car in front swerved and forced the chief's car into the westbound lane where it struck the truck just in back of the cab.

Both Flynn and Elwood C. Decker, RD 1, Garrett, Pa., driver of the truck owned by Elam D. Miller, Meyersdale, Pa., gave the same account of the accident to Trooper John J. Lopatosky who investigated.

Pennsylvania police said their report showed that there was no improper driving on the part of either Flynn or Decker, and that no charges were filed against either operator. The unidentified car did not stop.

Mrs. Flynn was taken to Uniontown Hospital for treatment of a possible fractured ankle and later was brought to Sacred Heart Hospital here. Neither Flynn nor Decker was injured. Flynn's car was damaged to the extent of about $400. Damage to the truck was negligible.

Dr. John K. Rozum, city physician, said he had ordered Flynn to take a rest and that Flynn and Mrs. Flynn, who was seriously ill recently, had been to Pittsburgh for a few days and were returning to Cumberland when the accident happened. Flynn still has not returned to duty on orders of his physician.

Landing Device Equipment For Tests Arrive

CAA Prepares Port For TVOR Testing

The Civil Aeronautics Administration yesterday began installing TVOR landing equipment at the Cumberland Municipal Airport in order to conduct tests next week.

Warren R. Mullenax, manager of the airport said last night four representatives of the CAA arrived here yesterday and will be here about two weeks conducting tests with terminal visual omnirange equipment.

The plane landing system enables planes to land and take off in fog and inclement weather, cutting overflights of commercial planes resulting from CAA requirements of a 2,500 foot ceiling and visibility of two miles. Cumberland has been considering installing the TVOR equipment to meet requirements.

Mullenax said after all the equipment pieces have been installed, the CAA men will use a plane in conducting their tests next week.

Officials said the tests will provide the city with information it needs concerning the homing device.

At hearings before the CAB in connection with Allegany Airlines attempt to drop service to Cumberland, city officials promised that a landing system would be installed if service continued. They added that efforts would be made to keep rdunways clear of ice and snow.

Since the hearings, a heavy duty truck was purchased for the clearing work. The city's second promise will depend on tests to be conducted in the next two weeks.

Post Office Joins Campaign To Better Rural Mail Boxes

The Cumberland Post Office in May will join with other post offices in the nation in marking the 15th year of the Post Office Department's campaign for the improvement of the appearance of rural mail boxes.

W. R. Thayer, superintendent of mails at the local post office, said he will make his annual inspection of the rural mail boxes in the Cumberland area this May.

He explained the purpose of the inspection is to check about 3,100 boxes on the six rural mail routes in the district and see that the receptacles conform with regulation size, location and condition. He added that if any box needs repairing, paint or if it does not conform with regulations, a form marking the defect is sent to the resident owner asking that it be corrected.

Postal officials said rural mail boxes are individually owned and maintained and it is to the civic pride of these patrons that the postal service appeals, requesting that they group boxes at road intersections and have single boxes properly erected, painted with names on them.

Mail delivery to farm homes was started slightly more than a half century ago, and during its early years there were few specified requirements about the size, nature or location of the roadside boxes. Consequently any kind of a receptacle, from discarded kitchenware to old baskets shakily mounted on a post, was deemed as a mail box.

Later the Post Office Department stepped in with an order that such boxes must conform to definite size, shape and mountings. More recently the Postal Department supported by many national organizations has continued the drive to improve the appearance of the mail receptacles. Their idea is to make rural and mounted route mail boxes the highway billboards of postal service.

The first rural mail delivery in the United States was put into operation in West Virginia in 1896, an experiment which was both condemned and ridiculed. The first complete county rural service was established December 30, 1899, in Carroll County, Md., where it proved a complete success.

Today in the United States there are 32,546 routes covering a mileage of 1,499,910 miles at an annual cost of $188,785,405. They serve 7,044,679 boxes, 9,294,171 families or 33,686,628 individuals.

Purring Diesels Are Prime Movers Of B. & O. Trains

Purring Diesel giants, which helped to make Baltimore and Ohio Railroad operations profitable last year, were put to good use in the Cumberland terminal last month.

Figures released at a Cumberland Terminal Smoke meeting disclosed that the B. and O. dispatched 4,798 Diesel-electric units in and out of the terminal during February.

Steam locomotives, prime movers until a few years ago, accounted for 1,434 of the B. and O. dispatchments here.

Diesels are gaining on the Western Maryland Railway also. Last month's dispatchments included 1,020 steam and 446 Diesels.

Only one bad smoke violation was reported last month. This occurred on February 9 when a fire watcher filled a firebox with coal and apparently forgot to turn the blower on.

The violation was discovered by F. L. McGaga, fuel economy instructor, and was immediately corrected.

A. E. Beckman, master mechanic for the B. and O. reported a special lot of coal has been delivered to the Queen City Station and is expected to reduce smoke complaints from that point.

Railroad officials showed slight interest in an offer from Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., to conduct a series of combustion conferences in this city.

The offer was explained by Charles F. Owens, deputy smoke inspector.

Group To Boost Tourist Trade In Western Md.

A co-operative venture to attract the tourist trade into Western Maryland will get under way next Thursday, March 26 at 8 p. m., with a meeting of interested persons in the social rooms of the Cumberland Brewery.

A spokesman for the group said last night that a primary aim will be to publicize U. S. Route 40, emphasizing its attractions as a scenic route and as the shortest route to Washington from the west. The principal effort, he said, will be made in areas considerably west of the Cumberland area, to persuade motorists to stay on Route 40 and avoid diversion to highways in other states.

All business concerns along the route are invited to attend the meeting, to consider a plan of action. Especially invited are operators of hotels, motels, service stations, restaurants, taverns and amusement places.

The group pointed to the efforts of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce to attrcat tourists and conventions into the Cumberland area and expressed a desire to supplement those efforts. All types of business enterprises along the route, the group feels, can materially benefit from a co-operative campaign, and as travel along the route increases, the reputation of the area as a scenic and historical area will be more firmly established.
